CONTRACT BRIDGE

By B. JAY BECKER

QUIZ

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has been:

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1♦ | Pass | 2♣ | Pass |
| 3♦ | Pass | | |

What would you now bid with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠K6 ♥KJ ♦KT8 ♣AQJ1093
2. ♠AJ4 ♥T53 ♦9 ♣KQ7642
3. ♠A82 ♥AKT ♦Q4 ♣AQ952
4. ♠AQ ♥J4 ♦T52 ♣KJ9763
5. ♠KR5 ♥K92 ♦Q6 ♣AJ854

1. Four diamonds. It is clear that a game must be undertaken with this hand. At the same time, though, thoughts of a slam cannot be dismissed, even though North indicated a minimum type of hand by bidding two diamonds.

Ordinarily, minor suit games are avoided because in most hands where a side can afford an 11-trick minor suit contract it is usually easier to make nine tricks at notrump. However, in this case, a notrump contract looks more dangerous than a suit contract, and a double raise (forcing) is therefore indicated. The jump raise to four has the advantage of allowing partner to try for a slam either by using Blackwood or by making a cue-bid in spades. If partner does cuebid spades, it would be proper to jump to six diamonds.

2. Pass. Game is unlikely, considering that North made the weakest rebid possible and that our hand has lost some of its value because of the misfit in diamonds. Trying to find a better part score contract might easily make matters worse. The odds are great that North will make two diamonds, especially since he is likely to have a six-card suit.

3. Two hearts. It is unusual to bid a three- card suit, but there is no better way of inducing North to bid notrump, the spot most likely to produce a game. It is sometimes necessary to make a false bid in order to get to the best contract.

4. Three diamonds. We can't afford to give up game possibilities yet, even though the two diamond rebid is not encouraging. The best we can do is invite North to go on by raising his diamonds.

In this sequence the diamond raise shows that the first response was not an absolute minimum and that there is still a chance for game if North has values in reserve not already expressed. The hope is that North will bid three notrump, but he is free to pass with an unsuitable hand.

5. Three notrump. Here there are no problems and a jump to three notrump is clearly indicated. We have an opening bid facing an opening bid— which means game— and we further more have an attractive spot to play the hand. A two notrump bid would not be forcing and might result in being left at the post.
