College's Activities

sociations and the very cordial contact that has always existed between those two institutions. I remember with pleasure when we had several students from this diocese in the Grand Seminary of Quebec. Some were my classmatts, and I taught some of them. Some of them taught me, actually. I learned some English with Father Urban Gillis. I must thank him if I can make myself understood in English now, and he is the only one to be blamed if I speak English with a Scottish accent.

"There is a third reason for my presence here, which no one has mentioned so far. I was brought up on "The Island". Of course I must confess that it was the wrong island. It was the Island of Orleans. When we speak of the Island in Quebec we mean the Island of Orleans. It is a much smaller island and is much closer to us. So we have to distinguish between "The Island" and "The Island". So as a son of "The Island" speaking to the sons of this Island, I am very glad to be with you today. Perhaps we should remember that no matter where we were brought up we were brought up as the sons of the Catholic Church. Today we are on an Island. But we are not isolated as we used to be. In the old days when this college was founded a Catholic home standing next door to homes that were not Catholic, or had no religion at all, could be fairly well isolated. Catholics could live a Catholic life very quietly in their homes or in their schools without being disturbed very much by those who did not share their faith or those who had no faith at all.

I thing it is true that all that has changed considerably and of course, now, no matter where we live we come into contact with the whole world — whether it be a Christian world or a pagan world. There are many things we hardly knew, that had just been mentioned to us when we were boys, things like big hotels, and music halls, and many other places; there were a lot of examples that we had never heard mentioned except in the books that now everybody can see right on his doorstep or in his home with the radio, the television and all the illustrated magazines. I think we cannot help being in touch with the whole world, whether it be the good part of it or the bad.

Christian Inheritance

And in a way it may be a good thing. We have received a Christian inheritance and this was meant to be shared with others, not to be kept as a hidden treasure, but to be distributed, to be given to others. And we should see in those different conditions in which we live an opportunity for us to radiate all that we have received. Yet when all this has been said it remains true that we have to live on an island. We must adopt all that is good and discard all that is bad. We cannot be Catholic and live exactly as those who are pagans. We have to be different to some extent, if we believe what the others do not believe, if we have a standard of life which has not been adopted by others. To that extent we are different. We have something that they do not want to have or which they have not received yet, something that we must keep before we can share it with others; something that we must defend before we can invite others to share it with us. In that sense there is our island, and with God to discover all there is in it, with God to defend it, and with God to live it.

Future Progress

"You have kept the faith in a wonderful way and you have spread the faith from this island all over Canada," Archbishop Roy concluded. "The sons of Prince Edward Island, the alumni of St. Dunstan's are to be found all over North America. They have spread the faith everywhere they have gone. This was the ideal which was yours in the past and which must remain yours in the future. It is more difficult now than it ever was before, but it is still a matter of having the right type of schools. When there is a Catholic school somewhere, where there are convents and nuns and priests and Catholic homes, and finally the parish. It is at bottom the same problem the world over. We should not be deceived with all that we have accomplished in the past. We have to do it all over again, with each new generation. And the danger is here just as it is in Japan or India. We could become pagans as other countries have become pagan after having been real Christian countries. This is the great endeavor in which St. Dunstan's will have a great part to play. But I am sure that so long as you remain what you have been there are grounds for great hopes. I am quite confident that both Canada and the Church will always be very proud of this Island."

During the banquet piano music was supplied by Miss Patricia MacDonald of Charlottetown, a student at St. Dunstan's who has won wide recognition in this Province for her musical accomplishments.

Earlier in the day a Pontifical High Mass was celebrated in the college chapel by Archbishop Roy. The sermon during the Mass was preached by Rt. Rev. J. A. Murphy. The text of Msgr. Murphy's sermon appears elsewhere in this paper.

Concluding the day's activities was the College Dramatic Society's presentation of T. S. Eliot's drama, "Murder in the Cathedral."
