Highway Death Toll Heads For B.C. High

By RON SUDLOW

VICTORIA (CP)—Despite repeated warnings from police, safety councils and government, British Columbians are killing themselves at a record clip on the province's highways.

Officials predict the families of at least 31 more victims will have their Christmas and New Year's holidays ruined by unnecessary death.

Statistics to the beginning of December show traffic fatalities reached 469 and with one month to go the record of 500 will inevitably fall.

"I'm sure we will go over 500," Ray Hadfield, superintendent of motor vehicles said Thursday. "I don't think there's a chance in the world the record won't be surpassed."

Howard Hicken, an official of the B.C. Alcholism Foundation, estimated that the "deadly combination of drinking and driving" caused damages totalling $35,000,000 last year.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said he couldn't explain the increased death toll.

He doubted a roadside testing program of drivers suspected of impairment will be ready for implementation before Christmas.

The minister said he is looking for a tube-like device into which a suspected impaired driver would blow and would suit B.C. requirements.

The devices were provided for in a controversial bill passed at the last session of the legislature. The bill gave police power to make an immediate, 24-hour suspension of a drinking driver's licence.

Mr. Hadfield said alcohol "is one of the largest factors in fatal accidents."

Alcohol was involved in 75 per cent of fatalities caused by single-car acidents, and a high percentage of other accidents were caused by alcohol "combining with speed and other recklessness engendered by impairment."
