Quiet Revolution To Go On, Says Lesage

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage said Wednesday the quiet revolution in Quebec will not die with the change in government because he intends to keep it alive from his position in the opposition.

Mr. Lesage was speaking at the end of the Liberal government's last cabinet meeting. He is to resign today and the government is to be turned over to the Union Nationale party which won the June 5 provincial election.

"I will see that the quiet revolution continues, see to it from my temporary position in the opposition, starting tomorrow."

Mr. Lesage's Liberal government won 51 seats in the provincial election and the Union Nationale 55. Two other seats in the 108-seat house are held by independents.

WILL BE NO DEALS

Mr. Lesage said there will be no deals about voting methods in the house and that "for my part, I will see that the Liberals fill up their seats."

This means that, because of the Union Nationale's slim majority in seats, full attendance will be required from both parties.

If "seven or eight" members of the Union Nationale were not in the house, "it will be up to the (Liberal) Opposition to decide if the time is ripe for a vote of non-confidence."
