A Summer Song

Ah! whither, sweet one, art thou fled—
My heart of May?
In vain pursuing I am led
A weary way.

The brook is dry; its silver throat
Rills song no more;
And not a linnet lifts a note
Along the shore.

Wilt thou return?—I ask the night,
I ask the moon,
The doubt that wounds the old delight
Is like a thorn.

Oh, come! I lean my eager ear
For laughter's ring;
Bring back the love-light cool and clear—
Bring back my Spring!

—Clinton Scollard, in the June Century.

Not so Fast.

At one of the late Mr. Bradlaugh's meetings in the Newcastle Hall of Science, when that gentleman was holding forth upon his favourite topic, an impressionable young man became so excited that he started up from his seat in the body of the hall, and there and then declared, "I renounce my father's faith; I renounce my mother's Bible!" Raising a'aft a warning finger, Mr. Bradlaugh said, "Not so fast, young man; not quite so fast!"

Death and Life.

"Death is not death, if it takes away from that mother forever all a mother's anxieties, a mother's fears, and lets her see, in the gracious countenance of her Saviour, a sure and certain pledge that those she has left behind are safe—safe with Christ and in Christ—through all the chances and dangers of this mortal life. Death is not death, if it rids us of doubt and fear, of chance and change, of space and time, and all which space and time bring forth, and then destroys. Death is not death, for Christ has conquered death for himself and for those who trust in Him."—Rev. Chas. Kingsley.

A Dangerous Playmate.

On Sunday, Mrs. Divine, of Cornwall, N. Y., went to church, leaving her two little girls, Nora and Fanny, aged respectively six and five years, to amuse themselves in the garden until she returned. Half an hour afterward Mrs. Benton, a farmer's wife, who lives about a hundred yards from Mrs. Divine's house, heard the children laughing loudly, and looking out of the open window she saw them seated on the grass, each armed with a short switch, with which every few moments they struck at something on the ground, and then screamed gleefully. Mrs. Benton watched them for a minute, and then went about her household affairs.

An hour later she again looked out of the window. The little girls were still striking the grass with their switches and laughing as before. Mrs. Benton's curiosity was aroused and she went to Mrs. Divine's garden to see what was amusing the children. They were seated before a hole in the foot of an apple tree, and as the farmer's wife approached; Nora called out: "A big worm playin' peek-a-boo with us." Almost as she spoke twelve inches of a great copperhead snake darted out of the hole. Both switches promptly fell upon it, a shriek of hilarity broke simultaneously from the two little girls, and the ugly head was withdawn.

Whether the venomous reptile was really playing with the children, or whether he was kept at bay by their switches, was a question that Mrs. Benton did not stop to investigate. She screamed to her husband, who was watching her, and dragged Nora and Fanny out of danger. Just as Mr. Benton arrived the snake thrust its head out of the hole for the last time. The farmer's heavy stick descended upon it and it went back no more. Its body measured a little less than four feet in length. When Mrs. Divine returned from church and saw what the children had been playing with she fell on the sofa in a faint.—N. Y. Sun.

Breakfast Relishes.

Breakfast relishes that can be prepared from the various vegetables that remain from dinner are legion. There is perhaps no vegetable so abused in its cooking as that commonest of all, the potato. Delicately fried potatoes are the exception, not the rule. In fact, where their cooking is intrusted to an ordinary servant, one need scarcely look for an edible dish; still they are not difficult to prepare in many appetizing ways. A French cook of great celebrity boasts that he can prepare potatoes in 200 different ways, and apples in 400. Potatoes boiled whole with their skins on can be cooked over far better than if boiled without their jackets. Those intended for breakfast can be removed from the fire before they are quite done, and after paring, set away until the following morning. If they are boiled until fully done they are often so mealy and crumbly as not to cook over well.

For tasteful fried potatoes, slice some of these potatoes in slices thick enough to retain their shape, dredge with flour and fry in a pan containing a little hot dripping; season them with salt and pepper, put a cover on the pan and brown on both sides. Use just as little fat as will keep them from burning, and serve on a hot dish, and at once. Like time and tide they wait (in their perfection) for no man. Better let John wait for his potatoes than to let the potatoes wait for John.

Fried tomatoes, with a slice of broiled ham, some warmed cauliflower and potatoes and a hot muffin, is as nice a cold weather breakfast as an epicure could wish. It is possible to fry canned tomatoes if you put them up yourself. When canning, take some of the larger ones that are not over-ripe, wipe clean, and just allow them to get heated through in the vessel in which you are cooking your tomatoes for canning. Seal up boiling hot in wide-mouthed cans. To fry, dredge with flour and brown quickly in a little butter.

THE CHURCHES.

THERE are now 82 medical missionaries in China. Sixteen of these are from the United States.

THE Conference of N. B. and P. E. I will meet in St. Stephen on Wednesday, the 24th inst.

THE P. E. Island Baptist Association will meet with the Summerside Baptist church, on Friday, 3rd July, at 10 a. m.

MRS. HANNA, the eldest daughter of Dr. Chambers, died recently in her 76th year. She was a member of the Established Church.

DR. CROSS, of the Free Church of Scotland Missions on Lake Nyassa, Africa, has upon the roll of his school the names of 300 children rescued from slavery.

THE Rev. Phillips Brooks is descended from a line of clergymen, one of them being the Rev. John Cotton. When he was in England, in 1882, he preached in the pulpit of his ancestor, John Cotton, in old Boston.

BISHOP CROWTHER has recently opened at Bonny, West Africa, a new church built of iron, with seats for 1,000 worshippers. This is on the slave coast and Bishop Crowther, when a boy, was rescued from a slave-ship on its way to America.

BISHOP POTTER has taken prompt action in the case of the charges against the Rev. Dr. R. Heber Newton, having addressed a letter to the rector of the Church of the Transfiguration announcing his intention to take up the matter.

THE American Board of Foreign Missions has work on all thirteen of the Gilbert Islands, which contain a population of some twenty-five thousand, three-fourths of whom are said to be very eager to hear the Gospel.

REV. W. J. DAWSON, who ranks as one of the most popular preachers in British Wesleyanism, favors a six-years' pastoral limit with power to deal with exceptional cases on their merits as they may arise, instead of the present itinerant system.

OF the 21,000 parochial clergy of the Church of England (according to a recent speech of Mr Raikes), 400 beneficed clergy receive under £50 a year; 3,600 beneficed clergy receive under £150 a year; 7,000 without a house or roof receive £130 a year.

BISHOP TUCKER writes that the native Christians of Uganda (Africa) are so eager to get a copy of the New Testament in the Swahili language that a man will work for three months to obtain it. Only a limited edition of the completed volume has as yet reached the country

REV. DR. STEELE writes the Presbyterian Record from Sydney, N. S. W., March 23rd, announcing the arrival there of Rev. Hugh A. Robertson and his wife from Erromanga. They were not well. Mr. Robertson's health has been injured by his exdrtions in the wreck of the inter-island steamer "Truganini."

WOODSTOCK.—Mr. Williams, just out from England, is now curate under Rev. Canon Neales. The services at Upper Woodstock, Thursday evening. May 14th, was the first in which he took part in this church. So far he has gained the good will of his people who have heard him.—Telegraph.

IT is the understanding that the Rev. William Arthur of England will preach the opening sermon at the Second Ecumenical Methodist Conference to convene in Washington, October 7. It is also announced that the great historian of Methdism, Abel Stevens, is to have an important place on the programme.

REV. P. A. MCLEOD, M. A., of Songa, Presbytery of Lindsay, and his bride were welcomed home from their wedding trip lately, by a gathering in the new manse, which was specially beautified for the occasion. During the evening an address of welcome with some handsome gifts was presented. [Mr. and Mrs. McLeod are natives of this Island.—ED.]

A VERY successful series of meetings have been held at Alma, Lot 3, by Mr. Arthur Williams, son of Rev. Mr. Williams, of the Nova Scotia Baptist Church. Mr. Williams is a good speaker and earnest expounder of the truth. His services were largely attended, and many were edified, and at the conclusion of the meetings seven new believers were baptized by Rev. Jos. A. Cahill, of Summerside.

The arrival the other day at the Boston City Missionary Society of one thousand copies of different portions of the Bible and five hundred and twenty tracts in Chinese from the native Christians in Hong Kong, designed for their countrymen now in Boston, shows that the foreign lands are waking up to the needs of America and its alien populations.—Congregationalist.

DEANERY OF TORONTO.—At the last meeting of the Ruridecanal Chapter, held on June 1st, an earnest discussion took place regarding the growing spirit of worldliness, as evidenced by the excitement over the recent Woodbine races, and the betting, gambling, "hat-pools," etc., in connection therewith. A resolution was unanimously carried, asking the Bishop to bring the evil before the notice of the Church. Several of the clergy have already spoken out against it from their pulpits.

THE directors of the Union Theologic Seminary refuse to heed the dictum of the Presbyterian General Assembly and Dr. Briggs will retain his place as professor of Biblical theology in the denominational college. There was in the minds of the members of the general assembly some apparent doubt as to their authority to deal with Dr. Briggs' appointment, and this doubt was emphasised by the assembly appointing a committee to confer with the directors of the seminary as to the legality of the attempted vote. Dr. Briggs has for six or eight years past openly asserted his disbelief in the infallibility of the sacred Scriptures as taught in the Westminister confession, but he is still a minister in good standing. It was not the duty of the general assembly to try him of heresy, and he was not formally charged therefor that except as to his fitness for the chair of theology in the denominational seminary. But he will be tried by the presbytery of New York of heresy. Then his case will be tried on its merits, and it seems probable enough that the charge may be sustained and that his deposition from the ministry and from the theological chair may follow in due course.—Telegraph.
