BRITISH WIN!

A Terrible Battle in West Africa.

Murderer Deeming Executed.

HE PROTESTS HIS INNOCENCE TO THE LAST.

The Floods Still Continue.—Red River Valley Under Water.

[SPECIAL TO THE GUARDIAN.]

LONDON, May 23.—A terrible battle has been fought near Wallone, West Africa, in which the British troops came out victorious. Jebu's army was defeated with loss of 400 killed, including 20 chiefs. The British loss is not many. The latter now occupy Manguaten.

Deeming Dies Game.

HE SPENDS SUNDAY SKETCHING GIBBITS AND COFFINS.

MELBOURNE, May 23.—Deeming was executed today. He spent Sunday reading the Bible and in alternately writing and sketching gibbets and coffins. Towards evening it was thought he would relieve his mind, but on the arrival of the Chaplain he made no confession and persisted in declaring he was innocent of murder. He passed a restless night, but fell asleep at 3 o'clock. He walked to the gallows with a steady step and head erect, and when asked if he had anything to say before death, replied: "Lord Jesus receive my spirit." He left no statement.

The World Over.

THE AMERICAN HOG WINS.

LONDON, May 20.—A despatch from Madrid says Spain has cancelled the prohibition of all import of American pork which has been in force.

DESTROYED BY EARTHQUAKE.

ODESSA, May 20.—Three villages near the town of Erivan, on the Zengi, have been destroyed by earthquake. Twenty-seven persona were killed and a large number of others injured. The most solid buildings in the three places collapsed. Many harrowing scenes were witnessed.

STILL AT LOGGERHEADS.

LONDON, Ont., May 20.—The breach in the Western Ontario Bible society is complete, and its membership consists entirely of Methodists. Correspondence with the Anglican and Presbyterian seceders read at the meeting shows there is no hope of the breach being healed. The seceders claim that the Methodists obtained an undue ascendancy in the association's affairs.

ESCAPE OF A NUN.

ROME, May 18.—A sensation has been caused here by the escape of a nun named Ermelind from the Convent of Santa Maria at Orta, near this city. Owing to a suspected love affair she had been ill-treated. She escaped with the assistance of pupils, and took refuge at the home of one of the pupils.

The ecclesiastical authorities have applied to the police to recapture the nun, but the police refuse to interfere in the matter.

ANNE HATHAWAY'S COTTAGE.

LONDON, May 19.—A despatch from Stratford-on-Avon says that at their meeting yesterday the Shakespeare birthplace trustees confirmed the purchase of Anne Hathaway's cottage, in order to prevent the historic building from going to the World's Fair at Chicago. With the same object in view, they also empowered the committee having the matter in charge to purchase the furniture which the cottage contained. The removal of the cottage would, undoubtedly, prove a serious loss to Stratford-on-Avon. Six thousand Americans alone visited the place during 1891. The trustees paid $15,000 to retain the cottage, being $3,000 more than the sum offered by the American bidders.

ECONOMIC QUESTIONS.

LONDON, May 20.—The Standard says: "We hope the English Government will make no more blunders through loose talk on economical questions. Lord Salisbury has done no good either to himself or to his party by his Hastings speech, and Mr. Goschen may now see that his too facile acceptance of America's invitation to the silver conference has failed to secure a rise in the price of silver. There is not among the most ardent bi-metallists one who has faith enough to buy metal at current rates Cheap silver has given us cheap food and raw materials, and has enabled England to hold her place in the world far more easily than her rivals. Nothing would be so disastrous to our foreign trade as a sudden rise in silver."

SENTENCE OF A SPIRITUALIST.

BERLIN, May 19.—Frau Valesca Toepper, a spiritualistic medium of wide reputation, has been sentenced to imprisonment for two years for having given fraudulent manifestations at seances, and thus having obtained money by false pretences. She worked with a confederate, and by rapid changes of costumes impressed her patrons with the idea that they were seeing the spirits of dead friends.

It is said also that she used the same means of deception to get under her influence a high member of the east Prussian nobility, although this fact was carefully suppressed during the trial. Frau Toepper has been the most prosperous and otherwise successful medium in Berlin and has been a favorite adviser of many persons of high standing at the court.

The Morning Guardian.
MAY 24, 1892.

A Little Too Previous.

The praise heaped upon certain Island representatives at Ottawa, by the Examiner, and Mr. Richard Hunt, by the Journal, regarding the restoring of trains and re-opening of stations on our Island railway, appears to have been rather premature. The trains have not been replaced and the stations have not been reopened. Meanwhile the discharging of employees goes on. Our contemporaries were a little too previous.

Professor Schurman.

Prince Edward Island has just cause to be proud of some of the young men who have gone abroad. We might mention a large number of them who have brought credit on themselves and their Island home, such as Robert Harris, T. P. Gorman, J. J. Roche, Rev. W. B. King, J. H. Fletcher, Archbishop O'Brien, etc,; but the brightest star among them all is Professor Jacob G. Schurman, the newly elected President of Cornell University. An American paper gives the following account of his career:

Prof. Schurman has been at the head of the Sage school of philosophy at Cornell university during the past six years. The new president of Cornell came to Ithaca from Nova Scotia six years ago. His age is a year or two under forty, and he is a self-made man. His early school days were passed in the village school at Freetown, Prince Edward Island. At thirteen he began to serve as clerk in a village store. He was then entirely dependent on himself, but was ambitious to obtain an education. With his store duties he combined study, and in the fall of 1876 passed his entrance examination at Prince of Wales College, Charlottetown. His marks were sufficiently high to secure him one of the scholarships founded at the college by the government. From this institution he went to Acadia college in Nova Scotia, where he obtained several prizes, and he then competed for the London University Gilchrist scholarship, which he won. Being worth $500 a year and good for three years, this scholarship enabled him to continue his studies in London and Edinburgh. In London he counted among his teachers men of reputation. One of them was James Martineau, who taught him ethics; another was Jevons, from which he learned political economy; another, Robertson, who taught him philosophy, while from John Morley he learned something of English literature. On taking his degree in 1877 he won the Hume scholarship in political economy, and then went to Edinburgh, where he spent the winter of 1877-8, and devoted himself to the study of mental and moral philosophy. A year later he was able to take his master's degree in London and his doctor's degree in Edinburgh, and he then entered the competition for the Hibbert scholarship in philosophy, which was good for two years and worth $1,000 a year. He is said to have had some seventy competitors, who came from several British universities, but Dr. Schurman won the prize. He now went to Germany to prosecute his studies still further. In Heidelberg he sat at the feet of Kuno Fissher, and a year later at Berlin he sat at those of Zeller, Du Bob-Reymond and Paulsen. He closed his German studies at Gottingen under the teaching of Lotze. In 1879 he had written a book called "Kantain and Evolutionary Ethics," which was published in that year by the Hibbert trustees. In the following year he returned to Nova Scotia and accepted the professorship of English literature and logic at Acadia college. Later he was called to Dalhousie college. It was in 1886 that he was summoned from Canada to accept a chair in philosophy at Cornell. This chair, on the death soon afterwards of the wife of the chairman of the board of trustees of the university, in memory of her was called the Susan E. Levin Sage chair of Christian ethics and mental philosophy. Mr. Sage had generously endowed it. [Since going to Cornell, Dr. Schurman has written for periodicals, and has published a book called "The ethical import of Darwinism." He has shown a decided liking for politics. At county conventions he has been a prominent figure, and has been a delegate to two state conventions—the one of 1891 that nominated Mr. Fassett, and the late republican convention which nominated presidential electors. He has been an extremely popular professor at Cornell. Probably no member of the faculty in so few years ever created a deeper impression on the minds of students and alumni. With Mr. Sage he has enjoyed relations that were especially cordial. His appointment will scarcely bring surprise to any one who knew the extent of the admiration Mr. Sage has had for him. Dr. Schurman might have accepted the presidency of the California university some months ago. At one time it was understood that he was prepared to do so, but he finally declined the call. Personally Dr. Schurman is a man who would attract attention in almost any company. He is tall and straight in figure, with a bright and searching countenance and manner that charm and fix attention. He has energy with his youth, has shown fine executive ability as a professor, and talks in public with eloquence and grace. His administration will begin with a cordial disposition in university circles to support and co-operate with him in the advancement of the university's interests.

Is It Heresy?

To the Editor of the Guardian:

SIR,—The following language appears in the last sermon of Dr. Talmage:

"Modern music is a religious doggerel, a consecrated nonsense, a sacred tom-foolery."

"The stupidest places on earth are some prayer meetings."

This is surely a peculiar doctrine to be preached from a Presbyterian pulpit.

Yours,
PRESBYTERIAN.

[What are you going to do about it?—ED.]

The Weather

PROBABILITIES FOR THE NEXT 24 HOURS.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—1 p.m.—Fair; warmer Tuesday; north winds.

Early Marriages.

Nine-tenths of the unhappy marriages are the result of green human calves being allowed to run at large in the society pastures without any yoke on them. They marry and have children before they do moustaches, they are the fathers of twins before they are proprietors of two pair of pants, and the little girls they marry are old women before they are 20. If there was a law against young galloots sparking and marrying before they cut their eye teeth, we suppose the little cusses would evade it in some way. It is time enough for these bantams to think of finding a pullet when they have raised money enough to buy a bundle of laths to build a hen house. But they see a girl who looks cunning and they are afraid there are not girls enough to go round, and then they begin to get in their work real spry; and before they are aware of the sanctity of the marriage relation, they are hitched for life; and before they own a cookstove or bedstead.—EX.

Dr. Haynes Agnew, the great Philadelphia surgeon, who died recently, made it a rule to charge patients strictly according to their circumstances. Those of moderate means paid $2 for each visit, while a wealthy patient was often charged from $1,000 to $2,500, and the wife of an English nobleman once paid $20,000 for a single operation.
