Good cows were 18, medium 15.50-17.75, common 13-16.75 and canners and cutters 9-14.75.

Good bulls were 19.75. Common and medium were 15.50-19.75.

Good vealers were 24-27, medium 20-23 and common 15-20. There were no sales of hogs. A few common sheep were 6. Lambs were 26.50 and a few sheep were 12.

DIPLOMAT DIES

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former Norwegian Ambassador Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne died here Monday at the age of 75. He served as ambassador here from 1942 to 1958.

Farmer Drives To Palace To Tell Queen About Pigs

LONDON (AP)—A farmer who faces eviction because he insists on keeping pigs drove a 2½-ton tractor to Buckingham Palace Sunday to tell the Queen about it.

The approach shook up the palace, palace guards and throngs of Sunday tourists.

Farmer James Lee, 58, did not see Queen Elizabeth but the palace guards accepted his protest and promised to deliver it to the sovereign first thing in the morning.

Lee rolled up just after lunchtime after trundling his tractor from Crawley New Town. It took him almost five hours at 10 miles an hour.

As he wheeled into Hyde Park, the Union Jack flew from the tractor and Lee's Home Guard certificate from the Second World War was pasted on the hood.

A bobby on a bicycle waved him down. Tractors, said the policeman, are not allowed in Hyde Park.

WENT THATAWAY

Lee spun around and went at it by another route, down fancy Grosvenor Place and into Buckingham Palace Road. At the palace lodge gate the guard stopped him. He drove to the main gates where a sergeant and three constables blocked the way. The sergeant peered at signs on the tractor which said:

"Farmer Lee protests, feels swindled. Crawley New Town commission tries to kill farmer and wife with worry."

The policeman said Lee was violating the rules about advertising without a licence and driving a vehicle constructed for commercial trade.

"But," said the policeman, "under the circumstances we'll let you advertise because you're going out of the park, not coming in."

"How about my protest?" asked the farmer.

"Give it here," said the policeman.

Lee chugged off to Crawley New Town. His row is with the Crawley Development Corporation, a municipal organization which bought his 194-acre farm for $37,800 in 1957. It will build a housing project on the farm. In the meantime, it gave him the right to continue living there if he would get rid of his pigs. Lee refused. Complaints about the pigs came from the neighbors.

The corporation went to court and obtained an order evicting him next Friday.

Promising Signs Of Christian Unity

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Montreal, told an historic session of the fourth World Conference on Faith and Order Sunday night Christianity's road to complete unity will be long but is marked already with promising signs.

Cardinal Leger spoke at a conference "service of witness," held at the University of Montreal and attended by people from almost every Christian denomination.

It was the first time a prince of the Roman Catholic Church has ever addressed a gathering connected with the World Council of Churches. He called it "a family reunion."

"Is not this ecumenical gathering a sign of our common hope?" the cardinal asked. "May it also be the proof of our good will to live according to the truth, in all charity, so that we may grow every manner toward the one who is the head, Christ."

With Cardinal Leger on the platform were Dr. Willem Visser 't Hooft of Holland the secretary-general of the World Council of Churches; Most Rev. Athenagoras of Elaia, Greek Orthodox Metropolitan in Canada; and Rev. George Johnston of the United Church of Canada, principal of the United Theological College in Montreal.

Prayers for unity were led by Rt. Rev. Kenneth MacGuire, Anglican Bishop of Montreal.

SERVICE UNIQUE

The presence of the cardinal and other dignitaries representing major branches of the Christian faith made it a service unique in history, reaching across the barriers thrown up by the 16th century reformation and the much older split between Roman Catholicism and the Orthodox churches.

All major branches except the Roman Catholic are represented in the World Council of Churches and have sent 300 theologians to the Montreal conference for a full-scale confrontation on their conflicts of doctrine and tradition. There were five Roman Catholic observers at the conference.

Cardinal Leger said "we acknowledge with gratitude the sincere desire and firm will of all who are gathered here to establish unity among those who rejoice in being united in faith to the Lord Jesus."

"I know well, and so do all who are gathered here, that the road to complete unity will be long. But is not the family reunion of this evening, in the words of John XXIII, a sign of the times?"

IMAGE OF FUTURE?

Metropolitan Athenagoras, whose see is also in Montreal, said the history-making togetherness we are witnessing tonight is perhaps an image of things to come.

"A few decades ago it was inconceivable even to hope and plan for such a kind of prayerful ecumenical gathering. Today it is a reality."

Dr. Visser't Hooft, a member of the Dutch Reformed Church, told the assembly it was meeting "not on the basis of some vague religious concern, but quite specifically on the basis of our common faith in the one and only saviour Jesus Christ."

Dr. Johnston said people brought up in the Protestant tradition are coming to realize "that most of our divisions are ungodly, unbrotherly, self-defeating."

These divisions "make our missionary zeal unattractive and they reduce the gospel of reconciliation in the modern secular world."

The idea of disunion was repudiated by the Bible itself, "the supreme standard of faith and morals for Protestants."

Seven Mile Swim Towing Little Girl

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — "I just did what somebody had to do," said a 45-year-old Canadian priest who swam seven miles in Lake Pontchartrain, towing a 14 - year - old girl to shore.

"I feel the real hero is the priest who clung to the boat and saved the other little girl," said Rev. John Savageau, pastor of Our Lady of Guadalupe Roman Catholic Church and chaplain of the New Orleans police and fire departments.

Father Savageau swam more than seven hours in Lake Pontchartrain Saturday after his 18-foot outboard motorboat capsized.

Another priest, Rev. Anatole Baillargeon, 40, of Natick, Mass., tied himself and three-year-old Christy Martine to the board which was partially under water. They were rescued after more than 10 hours in the water early Sunday by the coast guard.

"I'm so beat, I just don't want to talk about it now," said Father Savageau Sunday. He said his usual Sunday masses and started a nine-day novena at his church, preaching seven sermons — substitute for Father Baillargeon.

WAS MISSIONARY

"The doctor told me to stay in bed for 48 hours," said the solidly built Father Savageau, a French - Canadian from Quebec City who did missionary work along the Mexican-U.S. border before coming to New Orleans.

"But somebody had to preach and say mass today since Father Baillargeon is in the hospital."

Father Baillargeon and little Christy Martine were taken to the hospital suffering extreme exhaustion, exposure and shock.

The girl is the daughter of Mrs. Jean Martine, 26, secretary in Father Savageau's office. Mrs. Martine, also on the boat, tried to swim for help and was picked up about two miles from shore by a boat manned by deputy sheriffs.

The two priests, Mrs. Martine and her child, and 14-year-old Lanne Fagout, a babysitter, were in the boat when it was swamped by a sudden swell.

Several hours later Father Savageau and the baby-sitter decided to swim ashore.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Opening lead—king of clubs.

Bridge is not what could be properly called a guessing game. Most of the time when you have a problem of which bid or play to make, you can find a good reason for selecting the right one. There are few guess situations that arise where there isn't some clue to guide you to the right decison.

Here is a typical situation which declarer sometimes runs into. South is in four hearts and West leads the king and ace of clubs.

Declarer ruffs, of course, and now has to decide how to play the hand. He has lost a club and will almost surely lose two diamonds. There are no spade losers so South's only problem is to avoid a trump loser.

This doesn't look like much of a task, since the trumps figure to be divided 2-1, but nevertheless there exists the possibility they are divided 3-0. It is a matter that cannot be ignored, since, if the hearts are actually 3-0, the trump loser can still be avoided by playing the suit correctly.

Thus, if West has the Q-6-5 of hearts, South can trap the queen by first leading the king and then taking a finesse after East shows out.

But if East is the character with three trumps, South should first lead a heart to the ace and then finesse against East.

How does declarer solve the problem of whether to play the king or ace first? Obviously, he does not toss a coin to resolve the matter — he looks instead for every possible clue that can help him.

In the present case, South has strong indications that West is not void of hearts. West has shown up with the A-K of clubs. If he also had a void in hearts, he would almost surely have either overcalled in a suit or made a takeout double on his distribution.

Declarer therefore leads the king of hearts, and, when East shows out, takes the marked finesse to bring home the contract.
