PRINCE OF WALES COLLEGE.—It is announced that the special course for farmers' sons opens on February 5th.

RELIGIOUS NOTICE.—The usual Wednesday evening prayer meeting will be held in the Second Methodist Church this evening.

THE HYDRANTS CLEARED.—The City Surveyor informs us that the snow has been removed from the hydrants throughout the city.

CHARLOTTETOWN HOCKEY CLUB will practice to-night for the coming match. All members are requested to be present. Game to commence at 8 o'clock sharp.—L. G. Whear, Secretary.

BEN HUR.—All should make it a point if possible to attend the illustrated lecture this evening in the Philharmonic Hall. The different views illustrating the subject are considered the best ever thrown upon canvass.

A SATISFACTORY EXPLANATION.—You say you were buried alive once? That's what I said. You must have felt queer? Oh, no, I was used to it. Used to it? Yes, I was salesman for a year in a store that never advertised.

AT THE CAPES.—There is no crossing from Cape Tormentine to-day owing to strong northwest wind and three miles of lolly on this side. The boats left Cape Traverse at nine o'clock this morning with twenty bags of mail matter.

A WARNING.—The attention of the civic authorities is called to the fact that some careless and thoughtless persons are piling snow upon the ice in the way of the approaches to the city. An example ought at once to be made of these offenders against the law in that regard.

SONS OF THE HEATHER.—The 1st Battalion Scots Guards, stationed at Chelsea, can lay claim this year to having the tallest company in the army. The right flank company of the battalion has ninety-three men on the roll, the tallest of whom slightly exceeds six feet seven inches. There are twelve men standing over six feet four inches, and no individual man of the ninety-three is below six feet. The average height of the company is given at six feet two and a quarter inches.

FARMERS' MEETINGS.—Prof. Harcourt announces through the Guardian that he is making arrangements for meetings at the following places: St. Peter's Bay, Jan. 18th; Tracadie, 19; Marshfield, 20th; Pownal, 22nd; Eldon, 23rd; Murray Harbor, 24th; Montague Bridge, 25th; Lower Montague, 26th; Little York, 27th; Rock Barra, 29th; Red Point 30th; Gowan Brae and Souris West, 31st; Bay Fortune, Feb. 1; Dundas, 2nd. Definite word has not been received from all the places, so that the list may be subject to some changes.

WESTERN FARMERS' CONVENTION.—Owing to the snow storm on Friday there were few farmers from a distance at the meeting of the convention at Searletown. An afternoon and evening meeting was held. The afternoon meeting was fairly well attended. In the absence of the President (R. C. Macdonald, St. Eleanors) Mr. D. Wright occupied the chair, and opened the meeting. A pleasant afternoon was spent in discussion and in the evening the programme was enlivened by songs and solos from the choir.—Guardian.

HOW TO COOK SMELTS.—This is what a new authority says on the subject of cooking smelts: Smelts are at their best just now—never more succulent, palatable and pre-eminent. No breakfast fish in the world can compare with them when properly cooked. And it's a discreditable fact to the gastronome that it is almost impossible to get them served without butter. The smelt's delicacy of flavor is lost by contact with either meal or cracker crumb, and the smelt should be fried only in the best butter, over a quick fire, in a pan that has been well rubbed with beef fat.

A MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE. — One of the daughters of our respected citizen, Mr. L. McKay, Manager of the Gas Works, disappeared from her home on Weymouth Street on the evening of the 5th inst., and no trace of her can be found by her relatives. The girl left her home presumably to spend the evening with a lady friend with whom she sometimes stopped over night. As she did not return the next day, her parents became alarmed, and upon their making enquiry of the lady friend with whom they thought she had passed the night, were informed that she had not been there at all. A search of her room showed that several of her dresses were gone, and fragments of a torn note were found, which on being put together read: "Be on deck to-night. I will be on hand with a sleigh." The note was signed "B." A few days later Mr. McKay received a letter through the Post office to which the name of his daughter was attached and in which it was stated she had gone away and might never return. The parents suspect that the torn note found was from a well-known young man with whom Miss McKay was keeping company. The young man, however, denies knowing anything about the disappearance. The girl's parents are at a loss to know why she should leave home, as her home life was a very happy one. She was twenty-one years of age.

A DOCTOR THREATENED.

He Was Given Notice to Make His Peace with God in Short Order.

A late despatch from Vancouver, B. C., says: Memories of the "Black Hand" cases which sent Dr. Gustav Hamilton Griffin to prison for attempting to intimidate the late "coal king," Hon. Robert Dunsmuir, were revived to-day by the arrest of one George L. Brown on a similar charge, he having recently sent several death-breathing letters to Dr. Ernst P. C. Hanington, a prominent Victoria practitioner. The circumstances of the case are briefly told in a series of documents which the prosecution will enter as exhibits when the case goes to trial. The first is from a record of the Onderdonk contract on which Brown worked during the Canadian Pacific Railway construction, until retired by an accident which sent him to Westminster Hospital and which shattered his knee cap. There Dr. True attended to him until he was discharged. Later he went to Yale Hospital, of which Dr. Hannington had charge, remaining about six months. In 1887 Dr. Hannington received a letter from him demanding $2,000 as compensation for a "ruined life." Supplementary information was given that no damages could be obtained from the railway company, and unless the doctor paid there would be trouble. Then there was silence again till the assassination of Chicago's mayor, which seemed to give Brown his line of action. His next letter demanded $200, with the alternative of Hanington making his peace with God inside of ten days. The doctor attributed the dangerous development of his crank Nemesis to Prendergast's act, and called in the police, who succeeded in arresting Brown.

WHAT IS CHRISTIANITY.

(Rev. Father Fielding's Rep'y to Ingersoll.)

An aggregate of virtues does not and cannot constitute Christianity or any other religion, no more than an aggregate of virtues constitutes a man, or an aggregate of different forces constitutes a locomotive, or an aggregate of brick, wood and mortar constitutes a house. Virtue is a force or a facility of doing a thing with ease, arising from the doing of that thing many times, so many times as to acquire a habit of doing it. Kindness, candor, truthfulness and the other moral virtues are habits of mind growing out of a frequent repetition of acts of kindness, candor, truthfulness. A truthful man is one who has acquired the habit of telling the truth and can do it without effort, so that even when speaking against Christianity he can tell it without danger of wrenching a muscle, fracturing a bone or rupturing an artery. We may then define virtue as a habit of mind inclining a man and making it easy for him to do good and act rightly. You can now see how these "habits of mind" may constitute a man good and religious, while they cannot constitute him a man, and why, taken altogether, they cannot constitute a religion or Christianity. Christianity teaches us all these virtues and exhorts us to practice them.

AS TOLD AT A BANQUET.

A man whose reputation for honesty was a little rocky, on going home from his work one night came across a pile of planks which somebody had unloaded by the roadside, and he couldn't overcome the impulse to steal the top plank. He knew it wouldn't do to go through the village and thus expose the theft, and so he struck across lots. In the growing dusk he wandered into a bog hole and sank into the mire. The more he struggled to extricate himself, the deeper he sank, until at last, alarmed for his safety, he called for help. His cries soon brought a neighbor with a lantern who enquired what the matter was. "Well," said the man, "I was in a hurry to get home to-night, and so I took my way across the swamp and I got into this bog. The more I tried to get out the deeper I got in. Finally I went back up the road and got this plank to see if I couldn't manage to get myself out with that."
