One man was fined $20 and costs for possession of liquor while not being the holder of a permit.

Walter Scott Reeves, Freetown, pleaded not guilty to a charge of driving while not being the holder of a licence and the case was adjourned to March 26.

Seal Hunters Going Home

With unfavorable weather and ice conditions forcing seal hunting by plane to a halt, Alberton hunters are expected to return home during the next few days.

In a telephone report Monday, Glen Matthews said that seven members of his party were left overnight on the ice when their plane became damaged.

Early Sunday morning Robert McIlwaine of Crapaud, an experienced pilot working with the Matthews party, searched for the party for several hours before locating them about 20 miles from where they had been working on Saturday. In spite of treacherous winds McIlwaine landed and brought in three men on his first trip and returned accompanied by another light plane. Unfortunately the planes became separated in a snow storm but McIlwaine again located the hunters but brought in only two as it had been decided not to leave a man alone on the ice.

Although hampered by snow flurries the weary pilot again located the remaining pair of hunters but was unable to land as the ice pan had broken up into much smaller pieces. For some time he circled until the men started working their way toward a sealing vessel which came in sight of their location.

Matthews declined to give the names of the hunters as he said their families would worry about them.

The lamp which exploded on the kitchen table, was thrown out doors by Mr. Shea who was also able to extinguish the flash fire.

There was considerable delay in getting the patients to the hospital from the isolated community six miles north of Tignish. A snow plow was sent for owing to fairly heavy drifting during the day.

There are a number of other children in the family.

It is believed that Mr. MacEachern will be sworn in if a special meeting of the town council is called Thursday. If not he will be sworn in at the next regular meeting to be held April 13.

Lobster Carnival Crest Approved

SUMMERSIDE BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN

A design by Francis Mac Quarrie, president of the Summerside Lobster Carnival committee was approved last night by the carnival directors as the official crest for the event.

The design is circular featuring three lobsters surrounded by four small lobster traps and naming the five sponsoring clubs and organizations. It was emphasized, however, that although the design had been approved minor changes might still be made before the crest is actually put in use.

For this year's carnival the crest will appear on advertising and on the official booklets and programs, and it was expressed at last night's meeting that there was a possibility of the design being made into a lapel crest souvenir for next year's carnival.

Agreement was reached on the admission prices for the RCMP musical ride scheduled for the Summerside Raceway grounds, July 16. It was decided that all seats for the evening's program would be reserved with advance sale of tickets beginning immediately.

Although a definite decision was not made on the spectator arrangement for the afternoon performance the directors seemed agreed that again the seats should be reserved and standing room made available at the same prices as for the night performance. However, it was felt that children and students should come under special consideration in the afternoon and that a special section of the grounds be made available for their use alone.

With all seats being reserved it was pointed out that should the RCMP musical ride be cancelled for some reason the tickets could not be refunded and would be good for the races or the following day instead.

OTHER ATTRACTION

For this reason it was felt that some additional form of entertainment other than the horse races should be staged the day following the musical ride. It was agreed that the previous decision not to have the sky divers would be reconsidered as they would make a fitting addition to the musical ride program and could be staged the following day in the event the ride was cancelled.

Other discussions centred around the ever-increasing parking problem, the price to be charged for outdoor exhibiting of machinery, the duties to be handled by the various clubs during carnival week, the provision of $200 for the recreation committee to be used in addition to any government grants for the staging of the track and field meet, and discussion of new and possible events for the program during the carnival week.
