JUST A GIRL

MISS WILCOX PUTS ZENA WISE CHAPTER 94.

The next day Miss Wilcox came into the office where I was transcribing my letters, dictated to Mr. Claxton, and remarked: "Want me to put you wise?"

"Wise to what? I don't quite understand." "I didn't understand at all; but remembering the day before, I tried to be tactful.

"Wise to the place and—the boss; if he likes you it is an easy place enough. The hours are short. But don't let Betts get down on you. He's the one man in the place who hires and discharges all of us, and he does it for nothing sometimes. So watch out. You never can tell when he is going to turn you off for some other girl—usually a good-looker."

"You have nothing to fear on that score," I returned. She was a remarkably pretty girl, although over-dressed. She had a good education also, yet at times was far more ungrammatical and slangy than Mary was now.

"I'd been gone long ago if I hadn't been good-looking," she confided. Then, "Why don't you wave your hair and comb it down over your ears more? It's awfully old-fashioned the way you wear it."

"My father liked it so," I replied, just as some one called her, so relieving me of her unwelcome confidence, and advice.

What Miss Wilcox had said about Mr. Betts made no impression on me. I was not working for him, but for Mr. Claxton. Should the manager discharge me, I should merely walk out to give some better looking girl my place.

When I told Mary she said: "She's jealous of you! Didn't I tell you she was a cat? Is she good-looking?"

"Very, and would be much more attractive if she wasn't overdressed. She tries to tell me how to comb my hair."

"The dickens she did! The nerve of her! You're too good-looking, too refined, to be much of a pert around any office. You sure are if the girls are setting their caps for the unmarried men around. Are they all married?"

"From something she said I have a notion she cares for that Mr. Betts."

"Is the high mucky-muck married? That Mr. Claxton?"

"I'm sure I don't know, nor care. What difference does it make whether he is married or not? I am hired to take his letters, attend to office work, not to keep house for him."

"I know, Zena, and you needn't get huffy. But remember, I was a working girl long before you knew anything about it. Most of the time it don't make no difference whether the bosses are married or not. They flirt with a pretty girl just the same. But it makes a lot of difference whether the girl is the right sort or not. I'll bet a nicker's worth of pancakes that your Mr. Claxton ain't married, and the Wilcox girl is setting her cap for him."

"I laughed merrily. I was happy because I had secured such a nice place and Mary's peculiar ideas amused me."

"Girls who work are too busy to think of flirting," I told her. "You should have heard me telling Mother that I knew no one but you and Mrs. Fagin. She couldn't understand why I had no young men calling on me, bringing me bon-bons and flowers as they used to when I didn't need them."

"Ain't it the truth! When you don't need things you have them. When you do, you don't! It's a case of them that has, gets, and them what ain't got nothing, gets left! But honest, Zena, most working girls look out for the main chance."

"Tell me more about the manager?" she asked after a bit.

"Oh, he likes pretty girls in the office, guess. He can't be blamed for that, can he?"

"I knew there was a worm in that raspberry, a nice bitter one. He'll be making love to you pretty soon, and if you won't stand for it, you're fired. Out you'll go!"

I laughed again at Mary's expressions. I knew that there were fine business men, moral and good, like Dad. I had begun to realize here were some of the other sort, too, but I thoroughly believed the fine characters predominated.

I hated to think otherwise. Dad had been a business man.

WATER PUMPS GIVES TROUBLE. A. E. M. asks: Why is it that I cannot make my water-pump light? I have replaced it several times but water still escapes slowly along the shaft?

Answer: You may possibly find that the shaft, where it passes through the stuffing-box is worn considerably out of round. If so, it may have to be replaced as it is almost impossible to pack a shaft in a badly worn condition. Sometimes it happens that if the radiator is badly clogged, leakage at the stuffing-box occurs, because of the extra pump pressure that acts upon it. Asbestos-graphite string packing is the best material to use and we presume that you have tried it.

Questions of general interest to motorists will be answered in this column, space permitting. If an immediate answer is desired, enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address Albert L. Clough, care of our office.

IMPERIAL POLARINE HEALS ECZEMA IN RASH CUTICURA HEALS. On Face and Head. Itched and Burned. Disfigured.

"Last year I became affected with eczema. It started on the cheeks and spread and made my face sore all around the ear and partly on my head. The skin was very sore and red, and the breaking out itched and burned so that I could hardly help scratching. My face was very disfigured.

"Then I used a few samples of Cuticura. It helped so I bought three cakes of Soap and one box of Ointment, and my face was healed."

AMMETER IN PLACE OF CHARGING INDICATOR. A. McB. asks: What is wrong with a generator that has been set ahead as far as possible, but won't deliver any more electricity to the battery? Can an ammeter be put in my car in place of the charging indicator that came on it? There are three wires leading to this indicator.

Answer: The most common cause of insufficient output from a generator is improper condition of the commutator and brushes. If the former is perfectly clean and true and the latter bear on the commutator with sufficient pressure are well fitted to it, with their ends free from glazing or dirt, you ought to obtain the full output assuming that all connections are tight and there is nothing wrong with the windings. As a general rule, an ammeter can be installed in place of a current indicator. It would perhaps be well in buying the ammeter to specify the name and year of your car, when you order, so as to obtain an instrument suited to your needs.

CARBONIZATION QUERIES. V. asks: (1) Does carrying oil too high in the crank-case tend to cause carbonizations? (2) Does the use of oxygen to remove carbon injure the cylinders or pistons in any way? (3) Please explain the best method of removing carbon. (4) What is the best way of renewing leather upholstery?

Answer: (1) Yes, it may result in there being too great a depth of oil for the connecting-rod ends to dip into too much oil being splashed a greater tendency for oil to work up onto the piston heads and thus more likelihood of rapid carbonization. (2) There are some engines upon which the oxygen method should not be used, according to their manufacturers and we advise their warning to be heeded. Generally speaking, however, we see no risk in using this method, if it is applied properly. A professional should do the job. One bad feature of the method is that the incombustible part of the deposits is not fully removed and works down into the engine. (3) Removing the head and scraping all parts is the best method and the oxygen process is the next. (4) Clean it with a sponge moistened in mild soap suds and dry with a chamolis. When it is perfectly-dry a reliable leather dressing may be used.

IN MEMORIAM. MISS BESSIE MCKAY. A gloom was cast over this vicinity by the sudden death of Miss Bessie McKay, youngest daughter of the late John and Mrs. McKay, of Wood Island. The deceased had but recently returned from Canton, Mass., where she had spent the winter with her sisters and was seemingly in good health on her return, but a few days previous to her death she was stricken with cerebral meningitis. Everything possible was done to relieve her sufferings, having the best medical aid procurable but she passed peacefully away on the 11th inst. Decedent was twenty-four years of age, of sterling qualities beloved by all. The funeral which was largely attended took place on Saturday at 2 p. m. services conducted by the Rev. Mr. Back, of Milltown, N. B. The floral tributes were beautiful. Miss McKay leaves to mourn five brothers and four sisters: Mrs. D. E. McLeod, of Nantasket, Mass.; Mrs. Walter Grey, Mrs. Fred Plante, of Canton, Mass., and Mrs. P. D. MacGregor, Wood Islands, Wm. and R. W., of Wood Island, John R., Walter H. and Harry, of Boston, the latter arriving in time to attend the funeral. Interment at Wood Island's new cemetery. The bereaved is extended our heartfelt sympathy.

MRS. JOHN LADNER. A sad gloom was cast over the town of St. Peter's Bay on Aug. 10th, when the angel of death took from its midst, one of its most highly respected citizens in the person of Mrs. John Ladner at the early age of 20 years.

Her death was indeed a severe shock to all, only a few hours previous to death, a baby boy was born to her, but despite the skillful care of Dr. MacLaughlin and nurse McLeod, God called her to be with Him. Florence (as she was familiarly known) was of a kind and loving disposition and had a host of friends who will severely mourn her death. The high esteem in which she was held was testified by the large number of friends who followed her remains to its last resting place at Midgill cemetery, where she will await the Resurrection morn. It might well be said of Mrs. Ladner that to know her was to love her. She leaves to mourn her untimely death besides a host of friends, a kind and loving husband, her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Warren, Miss Blythe and Miss Blanche, also one half-sister, Miss Ruth of the firm of T. Eaton Co., Winnipeg. A very impressive funeral service was performed by Rev. Fred M. Clay, assisted by Rev. D. B. McLeod of the Presbyterian Church. The singing by the choir assisted by Mr. Randolph Bruce was of a very high order. A duet 'Sife in the Arms of Jesus,' a favorite hymn of the deceased, was most pathetically sung by Mr. Bruce and Miss Beth MacLaughlin. The pall-bearers were Messrs Clarence Ching, Carl Stewart, Roy MacLeon, James Gillis, Randolph Bruce and Albert Quigley. (Pat. and Examiner please copy.)

Tom—You don't really imagine that girls actually propose sometimes, do you? Dick—Well, all I know is that this is leap year and some girls are getting married who never got married before.

MISS F. I. MACCORMACK. She was the youngest daughter of the late Angus and Leona MacCormack. Being a favorite in her home and in the community her death is deeply lamented by her family and friends. The late Miss MacCormack was educated at St. Eleanor's High School and Prince of Wales College. Interment took place on Sunday at St. John's Episcopal cemetery St. Eleanor's services at the home and at the church being conducted by the Rev. M. White. The pall-bearers were: Raymond Andrew, Gerald Andrew, Ambrose Compton, Leonard Gay, Ralph
