Island Fisherman Asked To Co-operate With Dept.

The future of the Atlantic lobster fishery which puts millions of dollars into the pockets of Maritime fishermen each year rests to a large extent on the provinces' 17,000 lobster fishermen co-operating with the Department of Fisheries in conserving this great natural resource.

That was the statement made in Charlottetown by Hon. J. Angus MacLean, Minister of Fisheries, who told newsmen that the increasing intensity of the lobster fishing effort made conservation more vital now than ever before.

The Prince Edward Island cabinet minister emphasized that the great majority of Maritime fishermen were acutely conscious of the need for protecting the industry. "It is only that small handful of fishermen who haven't yet seemed to realize that the lobster fishery isn't an inexhaustible resource. This minority are not only hurting the fishery but they are hurting themselves and the big majority of honest fishermen."

Mr. MacLean said it was the policy of his department to continue its crack down on illegal fishermen. "I think by now that they know we mean business," he said.

DON'T MIGRATE

The fisheries minister emphasized that scientific research had proven that lobsters don't migrate. "That means," he said, "that every undersize lobster that is put back into the sea will be still there to be caught in the following season when it will be larger and more valuable."

Mr. MacLean emphasized that the program of conservation was aimed at only one thing. That, he said, was to ensure that the lobster was harvested to the point where it would bring the greatest return to the fishermen and at the same time, sustain the industry.

Federal Govt. Said Planning Further Island Road Program

MONTAGUE—Fisheries Minister MacLean intimated here last night that the Diefenbaker Government was seriously considering a new road construction program for Prince Edward Island.

Guest speaker at a joint meeting of the PC electors of the third and fourth district of Kings, Mr. MacLean said that it was difficult for anyone in government to understand why the provincial Liberal administration had never attempted to persuade the former Liberal government in Ottawa to build in Prince or Kings highways connecting with the TCH at Borden and Wood Islands.

"A method can be devised and will be devised to build new roads in P.E.I. under a system comparable to the TCH plan," he said.

SPEAKERS

Other speakers included the provincial PC leader, Walter Shaw; Douglas MacGowan and Thomas Curran, PC candidates in third Kings; and Ewart Keeping and Murdock MacGowan, PC candidates in fourth Kings; John A. MacDonald, M.P., Lefie Munter, PC candidate in 5th Kings, Edwin MacDonald, Panmure Island, president of the Kings YPC's and Bennett Carr, Charlottetown, president of the provincial YPC organization, also spoke briefly.

Held in the Beaver Hall the meeting was chaired by the president of the Kings County Progressive-Conservative Association, Cyrus Shaw of Montague. Entertainment was provided by the Roberts Sisters of Charlottetown accompanied by Anneas Curley, Charlotetown and John MacKinnon of Montague.

Mr. MacLean urged the electors to put a government in Charlottetown that would work in harmony with Ottawa. "The Island must move ahead, and where there is no change there is no progress," he said.

A change in government would ensure an efficient administration that, co-operating with Ottawa, would bring to the Province "developments as yet undreamed of by the citizens," Mr. MacLean declared.

FAILURE SCORED

Mr. Shaw scored the Matheson administration for its failure to take active measures to promote better markets for the Island's quality produce. "The best they best they can do is a weak imitation of the Conservative program being presented to the

Paving Laid At Alberton

ALBERTON — The work of laying the main asphalt base on the highway form Alberton to Alberton South, one of the busier roads leading through the town, was completed yesterday afternoon by the Hayes Paving Company.

Year-round traffic on this road is very heavy especially during the fishing season.

The new federal farm loan policy has been broadened to include farmers from 10 to 50 years of age, provincial Conservative party leader W. R. Shaw said Thursday night at Mt. Stewart. IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Harry Kelly, Lake Verde is a patient in the Charlottetown Hospital.

By paying the teachers supplement out of provincial revenues it will eliminate inequities in the present taxation scheme in the province, said W. R. Shaw, provincial leader of the Conservative party at a meeting held in Morell.

He also stressed that this new plan would not interfere in any way with the power of local school boards and districts.

Mr. Shaw also announced to his Kings County audience that the establishment of a national park in Kings County will be promoted in conjunction with the Diefenbaker government. This of course will mean a large increase in the tourist industry in the eastern county.

Another development which was promised by the Liberals before the 1955 election, the Victoria causeway, and tourist promotion for that area, will be carried out, he promised, if the Conservatives are elected. He pointed out that this "was a promise by the party that claims it doesn't break its promises."

Mr. Shaw continued that we lead Canada agriculturally, as stated by the Premier, "and I heartily agree with him on that point, but it is no credit to his government. It is because we have wonderful farm people and they are farming some of the best land in Canada."

Mr. Shaw declared that his party when elected will reduce the price of ground limestone and also to promote the establishment of plants for the production of vegetable and animal matter.

The leader said the PC's have many great plans which will be unveiled during the campaign.

DIDN'T ASK

Another speaker on the program, John A. Macdonald, M.P., for Kings, said that provincial Liberal speakers have said that they have not received any money from Ottawa under the "Roads to Resources" program. This, he stated, is entirely due to their own neglect.

In a statement issued earlier, the Member said that other promises have received interim payments, but only five days later on July 23, the Matheson government applied for an advance of a million dollars under this program.

The reason for no money coming through, he said, is obvious. "They had not thought until now to ask for it."

The candidate for Second Kings, Leo Rossiter, announced that another $100,000 has been made available for further P.E.I. causeway surveys.

When speaking of the provincial hospital insurance plan, which he compared to the pipeline debate, he said S.S. Hessian, Q.C., had stated that "he would support the bill on a voluntary basis only" and that the minister of health, Dr. M. L. Bonnell, had stated in the house that it would be voluntary. Mr. Rossiter said later they saw fit to make it mandatory.

"How much do they think they can get away with?" concluded Mr. Rossiter.

PAYS LARGER SHARE

Walter Dingwell, another candidate for Second Kings, in referring to the Hillsboro causeway and bridge, pointed out that the reason the federal government is paying such a large share of the cost is under the Trans-Canada Highway agreement the provincial government is allowed to pick out the most difficult portion of the construction to which to apply the federal government's share, and in this case its the Hillsboro bridge which is costing the federal government the most.

Mr. Dingwell concluded by again pointing out that the Matheson government is not four years old but has been "pussy-footing for 24 years."

The chairman of the meeting was Colin Jackson of St. Peters Bay. The ladies of the community supplied the refreshments.

One of the speakers on the program was Don MacDougall, Summerside, vice-president of the Young Progressive Conservatives.

Belfast Area Aims For Cup

Lester MacRae of Pinette and his committee, consisting of members of the Canadian Legion and the Women's Institutes in the Belfast area, are making a very complete and enthusiastic canvass of all the districts this week in preparation for the once-a-year Red Cross blood donor clinic which will be held in the Belfast Hall next Tuesday, August 25th, between 1 and 3 p.m.

The Belfast committee is out to take the coveted "Manning Trophy" away from the Kinkora committee which won it for 1958. Eldon was the winner in 1957 when a record attendance of 156 was established. This is the best result ever achieved at an afternoon clinic in the rural centres in Prince Edward Island.

At last summer's clinic held in Eldon, 152 donors registered on an objective of 150; but this year's objective has been set at 158 to fall in line with the pattern being carried out everywhere throughout this Province since all have a quota established on the basis of the best results ever attained.

So far this year, Kensington is in the lead for the "Manning Trophy," as they exceeded their objective at the 1959 clinic held there during the month of June.
