me and acts as though he hates me. But after he gets over his bout, he is ashamed and can't be nice enough to me. His conduct has made me a nervous, unhappy woman. I don't want to lose all my love for my husband, but I am afraid that many more of these tantrums will make me hate him. What can I do? We have one child.

ANSWER: When you think of all the mean, selfish cantankerous husbands you know who are hell to live with all of the time, it doesn't seem that the wife who has a husband who is tender and kind and pleasant most of the time is getting such a bad break. But obviously your husband has some mental trouble that makes him act as he does, and you should lose no time in putting him under the care of some good psychiatrist.

If you can't persuade him to do that, your next-best move is to pack up your bag. Take your child and go to some place where you will not have to endure the agony of seeing your husband go through the Dr. Jekyll-and-Mr. Hyde transformation.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a woman 50 years old, with little money left after 30 years of being a widow. Also, I am very bored with having nothing to do. The only thing I know how to do is housework, and I love it. I would like to get in some nice family where I could get a good job. Life would be more interesting to me if I had some occupation.

ANSWER: You are quite right in thinking that you would be much happier if you had something definite to do, instead of just sitting sucking your thumbs. Idleness is not only the devil's workshop, but also the most depressing thing that a lone woman ever has to deal with.

My advice to you is to put your pride in your pocket and to get a job in some nice household where you will be made one of the family.

their attempt to bring about a cure. The patients were divided into units of 20. The first half of the first three sessions was devoted to helping each patient to "come to himself" as to his actual condition in his home, and community. The material discussed included the history of epilepsy, causes of epilepsy, various types of seizures (fits), the modern treatment, the hereditary factors associated with the disease, and the question of marriage of epileptic persons. The second half hour was devoted to a discussion with Drs. Deutsch and Zimmerman as friendly mediators and advisers.

Then further sessions were taken over by representatives from the Vocational Rehabilitation Section, who advised the group as to the various occupational skills and aptitudes which were necessary in future employment. Further meetings were held with members of the patients' families so they could learn how they could help in relieving the anxieties and tensions resulting from the family's natural overconcern. As the family was brought into the discussion, many of the patient's anxieties and concern about their relatives was reduced. This common sense method of handling a condition that was formerly so terrifying is bringing excellent results.

EPILEPSY

Attacks of epilepsy may be very greatly lessened and even prevented by more attention to diet. Send 5 cents, coin preferred, and a 3-cent stamp to cover cost of handling and mailing, to The Bell Syndicate, Post Office Box 88, Station G, New York 19, N. Y., and ask for the Barton leaflet called "Diet Suggestions in Epilepsy."

Address and Presentation

*On Monday night a large group of the citizens of Montague gathered at the Armouries to express to Corporal and Mrs. Doug George their sincere regret on their departure from Montague for Newfoundland where Mr. George will take up his duties with the R.C.M.P. there. Mr. and Mrs. George were presented with lovely gifts by the group, the address being read by Mr. Cecil Beck, and the presentation being made by Mr. Harold Stewart.

Afterwards Mr. George was presented with his hockey sweater No. 14, and also a lovely gift from Mrs. C. G. Clay, owner of the Bison Restaurant. Mr. George was then bounced by a group of the boys, after which a sing-song was enjoyed with Miss Peggy Beck as pianist. A delicious lunch was served by the ladies, after which the evening closed with dancing. The following is the address read by Mr. Beck. T. Corporal Doug George:

We, the citizens of Montague, feel that we could not let this opportunity pass without showing you in some small measure how we appreciated being able to count you among our residents for what seems to us only a short while. None can question the good work done by the R. C. M. P., nor the thoroughness of their organization, yet, in this instance (though we know it would be useless) we would like to dictate to them and say, "You cannot take Corporal George from us."

Had we known it would cause your removal from our midst we might even have protested against the union with Newfoundland. Now that you are leaving us we want you to know that we will miss not only your presence and cheery smile, but also your willingness to help at all times in every effort put forth to make our town a better place in which to live. Your interest in sports, such as hockey, baseball, tennis, etc., has been an incentive to our younger set, and your assistance will be greatly missed. You have capably, earnestly, and faithfully performed each duty entrusted to you, and it may well be said that in every way you were willing to go "the second mile."

We want you, together with Mrs. George and family, to feel that there will always be a hearty welcome for you in our hearts and homes, and we hope that your thoughts may often turn back to the days spent with us. We trust that the golden chain of friendship formed here may not be broken, but shall grow stronger as years go by.

In conclusion we ask you to accept this small gift, not for its value, but as a token of our love and appreciation, and may it remind you of friends left in Montague. Our most sincere wishes go with you, and may God richly bless both you and yours at all times.

Sincerely yours,
The Montague Gang.

LOT 65 C. W. L.

The April meeting of St. Ann's, Lot 65, C. W. L. sub-division was held in the afternoon of April 3rd with twenty-seven members present. The meeting was opened with prayer by the chaplain, Rev. Father McCormac.

Due to the absence of the secretary the minutes were taken by Mrs. Eugene McQuillan. In Father McCormac's short talk he suggested, first, that all the members of the League receive Holy Communion on the feast of Our Lady of Good Counsel on April 26th; secondly, that the money be voted immediately for the scholarship; thirdly, that other card parties be held in other sections of the parish.

The treasurer's report followed, which showed that $44.66 was the net proceeds from the card party held on March 24th at Mrs. F. J. Trainor's home. Mrs. Trainor took this opportunity to thank all who in any way helped to make the card party the success it was.

It was decided that a nominating committee be appointed to take charge of names to be entered for nomination on the day of the annual meeting. Mrs. William Coady was appointed chairman of this committee. Those assisting are Mrs. Walter Coady, Mrs. Maurice McCloskey and Mrs. Vincent McCloskey. The president said that at future meetings someone would volunteer to read a religious article at each meeting.

$35.00 was voted for the Scholarship Fund, and the national taxes were also taken care of. One new member paid her fee. The meeting closed with prayer by the president, Mrs. F. J. Trainor.

cently come, these creatures that greet us in passing with plaintive lingering call, and whether in their "unerring flight" are they going? We may not mark it in distance, or time, nor may this farm-wife know why, or when, or how long they may linger at their various feeding grounds. Enough to know that on just such an evening as this was, when a lengthened day is calling in all the shadows of sunlight, and Spring has set her early promise on sky and stream and countryside, one hears the calls of their greeting. It is only a "Hail and Good-bye, now!" but hearing, one is aware that at journey's end, all the joys of family life await these wanderers.

And again when days have shortened, and the sun has faded in brilliance, and a melancholy quiet is over the land, we shall listen with bated breath as the calls float down to us, and come quickly to mark their flight . . . until it is gone, and a loneliness remains. Our farmers will mention the migration when they come to wonder perhaps if "Winter'll be earlier or later this year" and conjecturing we shall know that this time the birds' greeting were a "Hail and Farewell!" In mind, at any rate, a long time must elapse, a period of frost-bound streams and snow drifts before the sound of their voices, and the sight of their wings beating passage, return again.

Jamie too saw the flight, while he was on his way to the barn to carry a bundle of hay to "that calf" whose care-taker he sometimes is. Jamie came this evening with Rob—a team in his farm-sleigh, the best mode of travel along the intervening distance at the moment, because depths of snow, still lie in the shade of any woody spots along the way. Jamie brought a disturbing tale of his duck-raising, though rather bewitching. His pair has slipped the bonds of confinement, which kept them in and about the buildings through the Winter season, and heading its call has again taken up life on the open stream in their front meadow. Today, Jamie brought in a treasure-trove of eggs she had found in a stolen nest, one softly lined with down and smuggled away in straw surroundings, between two buildings.

And what treasure did Jamie bring? What was it that came out of a varied collection in the small fellow's pocket? A knife of course! Emblem of a lad's growth, one which as he said will prove to "come in very handy" both at school and home. As a family we admired the attractive handle, and must try the opening and closing of the blades, as well as their cutting qualities. James was concerned at the sight of it, but as Rob pointed out, "How are you going to keep a boy from having a knife—it's a phase they have. Didn't you come through that yourself?" James looked back through his years to chuckle: "I hope that he doesn't have the yen for trading that I had!" In times vastly different from the present with human nature unchanged, James too then, as Jamie now held a like treasure in the depths of a trouser-pocket.

"It's chilly tonight," James comes in to comment. "I shouldn't wonder but the gulls will be up shortly."

Until Saturday . . . Diary' . . . Good-night . . .
