VIOLET'S SYMPATHY
Chapter 24

I sat in the kitchen for a time thinking about it. After all I was sorry to have done something Esther did not approve of. She had been good to me. She had gladly taken me to her home when I had none of my own. The fact that I had more than earned all I ever cost, had nothing to do with the case.

Esther wanted me to marry. It was her sole idea of—could it be happiness? At least it was her notion of what a woman should do.

Why?

Esther had not been happy in her married life. She had probably cared for Jim in the beginning—as much, at least, as Esther was capable of caring, he had been deeply in love I knew that I knew that Jim was capable too of a great deal of affection. Probably they both cared now—after a fashion. But it was habit, not love, that kept them together.

For Esther was the sort of a woman who considered it immoral to look attractive after she was married—a conviction that grew with every baby she bore. Her duty to her husband did not include making herself alluring in his eyes. The great mistake many women make is—that they think the promise to love in the marriage ceremony is an easy one to keep.

I picked up the other lamp and went to my room. I could not understand the affair at all. I did not know then that my sister-in-law never really thought, but only reasoned along conventional lines. That was why though not happy herself, she wanted me to marry a man I did not love.

I pulled down my hair stiff collar, dull and thin. I unfastened my high collar, noting the brown ridge around my neck where it had rubbed the skin. I looked at my sunken cheeks, sallow skin and thin shoulders. Then I turned on the light and undressed in the dark. There was no saving this wreck of what had once been a pretty girl. The best thing to do was to forget both its past and its present.

The door opened softly and Violet's voice called me.

"Will you tell me about it Aunt Edith?" she asked. She sat down in a chair by the open window. I can still see her there, so young and pretty in her cheap cotton wrapper Her shining hair.

fell around her shoulders, in the silvery light from the stars, she did not look like a real girl so much as a golden haired sprite bathed in silver mist.

"Well he did ask me just as Esther thought," I told her.

"But you didn't promise to marry him?" her voice was all anxiety.

"No I said I wouldn't."

"Oh I'm so glad!" She relaxed in the chair as though a great weight had been lifted. "I was afraid Mother would make you do even that, and I couldn't bear the idea of you marrying that odious old man."

"Esther's awfully cross."

Violet laughed a little low laugh, for we did not dare disturb the other members of the family.

"I know she is. She talked about it all evening, and when Mother had her mind made up, its awful to change it."

"It is exciting being proposed to," she asked presently.

"No not very," I answered. But this wasn't the sort of proposal you read in novels. I mean, it wasn't romantic. Of course, we're too old for that. Unconsciously I was quoting Mark.

"Rubbish!" answered my young niece "I'll bet when we go to the city this Fall you'll begin to grow young. For one thing you won't have as much work to do. Do you get tired much?"

"That, too, was a new idea. Of course I got tired—I was tired most of the time! But farm life was hard, Esther and I both overworked, there were duties to be done and being tired naturally followed. I really had no thought of it—I had merely accepted it."

"It's all settled about the city," Violet went on. "Father and I talked about it this evening—I went out in the barn with him this evening while he was bedding down the horses."

"We're to go there a few days before the college opens and find a room through the Y. W. C. A. or some other organization like that. Miss Manx—she's my history teacher, you know—she's given me a letter to the secretary of the Y. W. C. A. and they'll help us."

"Then we're going to find a couple of rooms very cheap, where we can keep house. I'll be a sort of day pupil, it costs less. They sent me some catalogues and I've been reading about it this evening. We're going into Hartford, and stay with those friends of Mother's—you know, the ones I don't like—and take an early train next morning, so we'll have most of the day to find a temporary place. You're to take your money and deposit it in a New York bank and we'll be very very economical and go without desserts, and have lovely times."

"I laughed at the mixed up plans of Mother's. 'When do we go?' I said, catching her enthusiasm."

"September 7," she said.

"But I was so afraid you'd marry that dreadful Upjohn person, and I'd have to go alone. We will have such good times."

"You don't blame me then I asked."

"She came over and put her arms around me and said 'I'd just want to kill him if you married him she said.'

Province of
PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND
In the Surrogate Court 13th George V., A. D., 1922.

In Re Estate of John D. McNeill late of Cavendish in Queen's County in said Province deceased intestate.

By the Honourable A. Bannerman Esquire Surrogate Judge of Probate &c. &c.

To the Sheriff of the County of Queen's County or any Constable or Iterate person within said County.

Greeting:

WHEREAS upon reading the petition on file of Cedric Simpson in Prince Edward Island, farm named Estate, praying that a citation may be issued for the purpose hereinafter set forth: You are therefore hereby required to cite all persons interested in the said Estate to be and appear before me at a Surrogate Court to be held in the Court House in Charlottetown, in Queen's County, in the said Province, on Wednesday the twentieth day of September next, coming, at the hour of eleven o'clock forenoon of the same day to show cause if any they can why the Accounts of the said Estate should not be passed and the Estate closed as prayed for in said petition and on motion of Donald McKinnon, Esq., Proctor for said Petitioner. And I do hereby order that a true copy hereof be forthwith published in some Newspaper published in Charlottetown in Queen's County aforesaid, once in each week, for at least four consecutive weeks from the date hereof and that a true copy hereof be forthwith posted in the following public places, respectively, namely in the hall of the Court House in Charlottetown aforesaid, in front of the Hall at Cavendish aforesaid, and in front of the School house at Cavendish aforesaid, so that all persons interested in the said Estate as aforesaid may have due notice thereof.

GIVEN under my Hand and the Seal of the said Court this fourteenth day of August, A. D., 1922, and in the thirteenth year of His Majesty's reign.

(Sgd.) A. B. WARBURTON, Surrogate.

FORTUNE IS WAITING
LONDON, Aug. 31. — Lawyers are endeavouring to trace the heirs of Ephraim Gregory who was born in Trowbridge, Wiltshire, and eventually went to America, where he amassed a fortune of £1,000,000. A claimant has come forward in the person of John Charles Gregory, Monmouthshire, and the inventor of his family was about eight years old. It had long been supposed that his father was dead.

Gregory who is a cottager, says he was born in Westbury, Wiltshire, in 1864. His father, whose name was Ephraim Gregory, and the inventor of his family was about eight years old. It had long been supposed that his father was dead.

Montreal Board of Trade Perpetuates Maisonneuve

There is a striking monument in Montreal to Maisonneuve, founder of Canada's Metropolis. As in his life time, his thoughts were of the West, so does the memorial to him stand to-day. The sculptor has caught the spirit of the adventurous pioneer in the poise of the body and the head. Vision, courage, determination are plain to the observant eye and understanding mind.

Maisonneuve and the host of gallant men and noble women who laid the foundation of the Canada of to-day, long ago embarked upon the greatest and last quest. But their faith in the new land is as a living flame in the hearts of their successors. They see their country favored by geography and nature, a link between East and West, and extending almost 4,000 miles from ocean to ocean. They know that it is endowed with a richness of natural resources beyond the power of man to calculate. Above all they rejoice in its attainment to a place and a voice in the councils of the nations.

Retrospect is often pleasant. The true Canadian has little time for that. His heart and mind are on the present and the future. He knows that if his country is to come to full fruition as a nation it must be by still worthier efforts on the part of its people individually and collectively. No single province within the Dominion's far-flung boundaries can afford to disregard another. Each must be in sympathy with all the rest. The East must share in the problems as well as in the joys and prosperity of the West. The West must have faith in the East. Bound by an unbreakable chain of mutual affection and goodwill they can and will put and keep Canada in the very vanguard of the world's great nations.

The development of the national spirit has been fostered in many an hour of peril, difficulty, and struggle. It is beginning to bloom in beauty and strength. Its progress has been greatly advanced of late years by the action of important organizations in sending delegations to many sections of the country, so that their members may add to their first-hand knowledge of their home land. Such an organization is the Montreal Board of Trade which will celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of its founding by beginning on September 1, a thirty days' tour of the Dominion. The members will not only see the country in all the glory of its most beautiful scenic settings, but the journey will be so arranged as to give them a new perspective of its wealth of soil, forests, mines and waters, and impressions of its industrial and commercial growth that would be impossible of visualizing in any other way.

From Montreal the party will travel westward via Toronto and the Great Lakes, thence from Port Arthur to Winnipeg, the greatest primary grain centre on the continent, across the vast prairie lands and through the Rockies to Vancouver and Victoria.

On the return journey they will make the 550-mile cruise up the north Pacific Coast from Vancouver to Prince Rupert, on one of the palatial Canadian National Railways steamers. This part of the journey will give the party a splendid idea of the development in the mining, lumbering and pulp and paper industries of British Columbia, with all their future possibilities. At Prince Rupert, Canada's most northerly Pacific port, hewn out of the solid rock of Kaien Island, there will be every opportunity to gain an insight into the enormity of the halibut and salmon industry of the province. From Prince Rupert eastward the party will become acquainted with the Skeena River, with its historic and romantic traditions, its arresting grandeur, and its fame as one of the most prolific salmon streams in the world. They will see too, some of the Bulkley and Nechako River Valley country, one of the newest fields of settlement opened up in the West. Unknown to the vast majority of Canadians, the luxurious valleys that lay between the historic and romantic traditions, its arresting grandeur, and its fame as one of the most prolific salmon streams in the world.
