At Rotary

Dr. R. E. Wodehouse of Ottawa, Executive Secretary of the Canadian Tuberculosis Association, was the speaker at the Rotary luncheon yesterday. President J. A. McMillan presided.

The speaker opened his remarks by reference to "Daddy Allan" of International Rotary fame in aid of crippled children.

The Ottawa Rotary Club under a small beginning collected a small amount each year on the birthday of each member for an initiation fund for crippled children. They made a survey of the Ottawa district and made records of every crippled child in the district. One striking feature was the small number of crippled children, owing to tuberculosis. This no doubt was so in Ottawa because the city milk supply was received from cattle proven free from tuberculosis and for a number of years milk has all been pasteurized. This happy state of affairs will soon be applicable to this Island owing to the completion of the work in making a tuberculosis free area for cattle and the limitation of the spread from human beings by treating the adult cases in a sanatorium about to be constructed.

We try to practise the prevention of tuberculosis by every known method; a medical school inspector under the Red Cross in this province; examination of children from homes having tuberculosis; by the travelling chest clinic and by many other means, but the crippled children committee of the Rotary Club in Ottawa, unintentionally did a greater effort in preventive medicine by having the names of all crippled children, and therefore all the victims of infantile paralysis were known in their record. Last year when an epidemic of the disease swept Ottawa and they wanted to get blood serum from recovered cases to treat the new victims, the Rotary Club members personally visited those boys and girls whom they now knew and whose confidence they enjoyed, and got them to volunteer to give all the blood necessary to meet the demand in the Ottawa district, and even to send for the assistance of children in other cities. By this one practise more than 150 to 200 children were prevented from developing the resulting paralysis which is usually left in train of an epidemic of this disease as a very sad reminder of its visitation.

It is for this and similar experiences with Rotary Clubs that the speaker always gladly accepts the privilege of addressing their service group.

Having completed this introductory reference he launched into the discussion of his first effort to bring financial assistance to this province to amplify its Public Health and Tuberculosis program. He proposed to raise $100,000 outside the province for expenditure here over a period of five years if $25,000 could be raised in this province. But owing to the inability to do it quickly enough, this allotment for expenditure over a period of five years went to the city of Three Rivers, Quebec. The next effort was to bring down to the Maritimes $100,000 to be spent over a period of five years in the three provinces, the money being furnished by the Health Committee of the Canadian Life Insurance Officers' Association. It is from this program that chest diagnosis clinics have been inaugurated in Prince Edward Island; that bonuses have been paid to each of the nurses employed by the Red Cross, and that arrangements have been made for Dr. Creelman as full time health officer jointly by the Prince Edward Island movements were like those of a cat. Whether he was at my side or searching in some far corner I could not estimate. At any moment I expected his groping hands to clutch me. When danger is close at hand, within a few yards or feet, the strain is intensified a thousand times if one's eyes are blinded; to see it coming nearer is sufferable; one can prepare to meet the shock; one can gauge the situation and prepare for action; but to imagine it approaching, to be in the flaming suspense of uncertainty, is a sensation almost intolerable. In my hip-pocket was the automatic, but my right hand was gripping the leather case, and I did not dare to risk changing it, in case the motion revealed our presence. If he came on us, it would be a case of close quarters and I had found my fists quite serviceable weapons on more than one occasion in the past.

The Third Warning

Then my eye caught the light again. This time it was receding; just a glow on the wall, and then it faded. Had he switched it out for some reason? Or had he gone into the sitting room? I waited, while a palpitating minute passed, then there was a click, and Gage's whisper broke the silence of the bedroom.
