Poor Figures Charge Sparks Style Quarrel

NEW YORK (AP)—A Briton's suggestion that U.S. females shun short-short skirts because they have second-rate silhouettes has roused roars of resentment and reams of rebuttal.

Basis of the transatlantic tizzy is the fact that those thigh-high dresses touted by London couturiers haven't really caught on in the U.S.

Safely home from a month-long stand with the London Symphony Orchestra at Daytona Beach, Fla., British violinist David Meshum was asked why. He told airport interviewers:

"American women have such terrible figures. They are doing themselves a favor by keeping them covered up."

Designers in the rival style centre of New York were livid.

"The figures of American women," declared Swiss-born Max Bernegger, "are better than anything Europe has to offer, and I know—I'm European. A skirt four or five inches above the knee is too short for any woman, no matter what she looks like."

AMERICAN'S CAREFUL

"I agree that our skirts are long by London standards,' said designer Bill Blass, "but that's not because American figures are bad—they're great. It's just that American women are a little more careful about what they display.'

An anonymous New Yorker who lived for years in London voiced another opinion.

"British girls tend to have legs which are practically straight up and down, he said. "But when they wear their hems north of the knee this shortcoming may escape the eye of the casual girl-watcher.

Raleighe Rogers, Boston fashion photographer and model agency operator, commented:

TAKEN 800,000 IX

"I've take more than 800,000 photos of American girls and I challenge any statement which knocks their legs. The average American girl has tapering calves and narrow ankles which have as much expression as their hands. Modesty is the reason she won't wear miniskirts.

Mrs. Donna Calkins, a 20-year-old model in Natick, Mass., observed:

"Ive seen pictures of some of those English girls in short-short skirts. With their legs they shouldn't wear them.

Adele Simpson, who runs a dress shop in New York, said the British dreamed up the short-short skirt in an attempt "to show that their fashions weren't as dowdy as everybody thought."

"American women have beautiful legs and feet," she said. "British women have terrible legs and feet. Sophisticated women, even in England, don't wear short-short skirts and don't need to."

Bell Telephone Proceeds With Maritime Takeover

MONTREAL (CP)—The Bell Telephone Co. of Canada said here it is going ahead with the mailing of a share exchange offer to stockholders of the Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Co. Ltd.

Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia said Monday night the Nova Scotia legislature, possibly in a special session, may block any Bell takeover of the Maritime company.

Mr. Stanfield said his Progressive Conservative government "disapproves strongly" of Bell Telephone's attempt to gain control of the Maritime voting stock.

A Bell spokesman at the company's headquarters in Montreal, said Tuesday the firm is "concerned" over Mr. Stanfield's opposition. But Bell would have no further immediate comment.

Mr. Stanfield said the Nova Scotia legislature "might very well compel the Bell company to relinquish any shares acquired."

The Bell spokesman said copies of his firm's offer to shareholders of New Brunswick Telephone Co. Ltd. also were being mailed Tuesday.

SEEKS CONTROL

Bell announced its takeover offers last week. Shareholders of both the eastern firms would receive Bell Telephone stock in exchange for their stock. Bell sought to bring its ownership in the two companies to 51 per cent. Its offer must be approved by the appropriate regulatory authorities.

Mr. Stanfield said he opposes a Bell takover on grounds that it is not in the interests of his province for Bell to gain control of Maritime Telegraph, a public utility operating under special privileges granted by the legislature.

"Maritime Telegraph should not be controlled by a company which manufactures telephone equipment, either directly or through a subsidiary," said Mr. Stanfield.

"The Bell Telephone Co. of Canada controls Northern Electric Co. Ltd. which sells telephone equipment."

In its letter to the Maritime Telegraph shareholders, "except those resident in the United States," Marcel Vincent, president of Bell Telephone of Canada, said:

"The directors of the Bell Telephone Co of Canada feel strongly that, in the best interests of the progressive development of this essential Canadian industry, we must do all we can to ensure that as many as possible of the key elements of the industry remain permanently under Canadian ownership and control."

The letter to non-U.S. shareholders in New Brunswick Telephone contained the same remarks.

The offers from Bell expire in the case of each company Sept. 8.

Spud Pickers Can Be Hired

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP)—Potato farmers in Rhode Island's South County have been authorized by the U.S. department of labor to hire up to 64 Canadian farm workers to help harvest their crops this year.

Last year hiring 35 workers was authorized but potato farmers in South County hired only 20.

The Rhode Island employment service had certified manpower shortage as far as this year's harvest was concerned prior to the labor department's decision.

Appointment Announced

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. Eric Campbell, 54, of Ottawa, a medical officer for 25 years in the RCAF, has been appointed medical director with the Traffic Injury Research Foundation, it was announced here.

Dr. Campbell, a native of Saskatoon and a 1937 graduate of the University of Toronto medical school, was an associate director of the Addiction Research Foundation of Ontario since leaving the RCAF in 1965.

As medical director, Dr. Campbell will supervise and coordinate the first Canadian program of research into the medical aspects of traffic accidents.

The actual research work will be done in Canadian medical schools. Dr. Campbell is the third full-time member on the staff of the foundation, which has an annual income of about $50,000.

The bidding:

3♦	Pass	3♠	Pass
4♣	Pass	4♠	Pass
5♠

Opening lead—six of hearts.

One unkind way of describing a player's lack of skill at the bridge table is to say that he bids his hands badly but plays his cards worse. I am reminded of this by the way South bid and played this hand.

Having opened with a forcing bid and then made a slam try by bidding four clubs, South should have retired gracefully from the auction when North denied interest in a slam by bidding only four spades. But apparently, South had not yet savored the full flavor of his hand when he went gaily on to five spades, which became the final contract.

West led a heart, the jack forcing the ace, and South ruffed. Declarer played a club to the queen and led a low spade. East following suit with the nine. The proper technical play at this point of finding West with the singleton jack, but South played the ten, losing to the ace. He later lost two trump tricks to the K-J and went down one.

Of course, South could have made the hand had he played a low spade at trick two and later entered dummy with a club to lead another spade through the K-J.

Actually, this was the right way to play the hand. Declarer can properly reason that if the spades are 2-2, they can be led with equal effect from either hand, as that if there is a 3-1 division it is clearly better to start the suit by leading a low one at trick two.

This method of play gains whenever West has the singleton ace or kings, whereas initiating the spades from dummy gains only when West was dealt the singleton jack. The odds are consequently 2 to 1 in favor of starting the trumps by leading low from the South hand.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
