Highlanders Have Scourge To Battle

By Guy Rhodes
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OBAN, Argyllshire, Nov. 30.—(CP)—A rust-colored scourge, creeping relentlessly across the hills of the west highlands is bringing cold sweat to the brows of long-viewed Scottish agricultural students.

The scourge—gorse—has made devastating headway since the sheep are started in highland agriculture and the cattle are wanted. A tall, fern-like weed, rusty brown at this time of year, it stifles grass, spoils pasture and has practically no nutritional value.

In the old days crofters cut it for bedding. Mixed with other materials it made good silage. Growing unchecked, students say, it threatens eventual ruin to a potentially rich grazing country.

Formerly when the great tan-colored highland cattle grazed the hills and glens the spread of gorse was checked. The cattle made paths deep and wide enough to prevent the weed from spreading. They even ate some of it.

Now the principal livestock of the country now, are too light to check its advance. They are selective eaters and will not touch it. They stay outdoors all year and do not need bedding, so the farmers have stepped cutting the weed.

The farmers' side of the argument is that they can find little market for their beef, although they themselves raise it. Some English prices are bid for Scotch beef. Sheep are marketable in a shorter time than cattle and require less attention. Their wool fetches a good price and cattle provide no such profit.

They do not take the long view of the experts. They are practical men with an eye to the present. They reserve capital and resources that would enable them to turn back the hands of the clock to a few days and survive for a few seasons until the old agriculture is re-established.

Young Pilot Injured In Plane Crash

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—A 19-year-old licensed pilot was injured critically today when his rented monoplane crashed into a tree after 30 minutes of dizzy flying during which he almost collided with automobiles and broke electric wires.

The pilot, Emil Hampel, was taken to hospital after the plane struck the tree. Motorists reported the plane sped along only 10 feet above the streets and barely missed the tops of their cars.

In Markham, a suburb, electric service was disrupted when the airplane ploughed through high tension lines.

Hampel was thrown to the ground when the craft hit the tree. He suffered internal injuries, a dislocated right hip and fractures of his right leg and arm.

Quints Do Christmas Shopping Early

NORTH BAY, Ont., Nov. 29.—(CP)—The D'Onne Quints are doing their Christmas shopping early. But unlike most little girls they don't have to worry about the price tags or brave the crowded store aisles.

They just go into a huddle, choose the gift they want to give to members of their family and friends and Nurse Louise Corriveau acts as personal shopper, carrying the bill to the Quints.

But what the five little girls will give their friends on Christmas morning is a secret. However, Dr. A. R. Dafoe, their physician, hints that the gifts are not expensive.

The youngsters have no idea of the value of money. In fact, although they have a fortune of about $850,000 and play "stors" with "dollars" they have never seen a penny or other coin.

Card Of Thanks

Mr. Harry Cotton and family wish to thank their neighbors and friends for the many deeds of kindness and sympathy in their recent sad bereavement.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our darling little Ausie, only daughter of Robert L. and Mrs. Stevenson, November 29, 1936.

Gods angel came to earth one day,
While gentle children were at play,
And needing one more flower above,
To share the Heavenly garden's love.

He gathered Ausie to His Breast,
And left our aching hearts bereft,
But yet her smile lingers long
As to our hearts her faithful song
To call us in ecstasies dear
To meet her over there.

Lovingly Remembered by Daddy,
Mamma and Brothers,
William D. and Robert N.

FINED UNDER MIGRATORY BIRDS ACT

Hampel was taken to hospital after the plane struck the tree. Motorists reported the plane sped along only 10 feet above the streets and barely missed the tops of their cars.

BLACK DUCKS OFF FLAVOR

Many sportsmen are expressing their disappointment over the decidedly fishy flavor of black ducks bagged in November. All agreed that the birds are very fat, and in wonderful condition. A few of the birds bagged upheld the high table quality generally ascribed to the black duck but this appears to be the exception rather than the rule. This condition appears general as complaints have come in from Savage Harbour and North River. Orwell and sections of the East River. It is thought that the ducks developed the "off flavor" from feeding on a species of plant that grows in the water. Black ducks close at one hour after sun set (approximately 5:19 p. m.) on Tuesday, Dec. 29.
