Encouraging Talk Heard As Firms Hold Meetings

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The last half of April is the peak season for company talk-talk about what has been done and talk about what is to come.

The talking is done at annual meetings and in annual reports and this last week it is mostly of a pretty encouraging kind, with impressive deeds to back it up and with forecasts of impressive things to come.

Here and there, however, was a warning that we shouldn't let the rosy glow blind us to duller hues.

Karl E. Scott, president of Ford Motor Company of Canada, expressed "cautious optimism" and saw indications that the public is in a good liquid position financially.

Nevertheless, in expansive 1962, after adjustment for price changes, the increase in retail sales of goods other than motor vehicles barely equalled the natural population increase of 1.8 per cent

Like Mr. Scott, some other commentators would feel better if they were convinced that the public is loosening its purse strings and some, indeed, think that the public is at least coming into a mood to do that.

The Bureau of Statistics gave confirmation to the previously generally accepted figure of an eight-per-cent increase in Gross National Product last year. After allowance for price increases the volume gain was above six per cent.

However, the rate of growth levelled off sharply in the fourth quarter—what Mr. Scott termed "a levelling off of the economy from the strongly-rising trend of the last 18 months."

R. A. Daly and Company's analyst, Paul Henry, comments that "it is much easier to sound like an optimist today than almost anything you can name." However, he says much depends upon many of today's "ifs" becoming "realities."

He adds:

"For instance, we feel that the New York market has been deriving a great deal of its recent strength from the anticipation of Mr. Kennedy's promised tax cuts and incentive measures.

"If he should disappoint the market on this score, or if he should prove incapable of dealing with several areas of weakness in the economy in the manner expected of him, then we very much doubt that the underlying strength being extelled so widely will be capable of withstanding the wave of disenchanted selling that would result. We see no reason for either more or less optimism in Canada."

TAKEOVERS PROMINENT

A current degree of independent strength in Canadian stock markets appears to come in large measure from the amount of capital available for reinvestment following various takeovers. When this money is stowed away again Canadian markets are not likely to do much straying from the Wall Street pilot ship.

Along with these various cautionary words come some expressions of high optimism.

M. S. M. Hamilton, general manager of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Makers' Association, Montreal, said in an address at North Bay, Ont., that barring any world disaster "we in the western world may be on the verge of creating a society beyond our wildest dreams."

International Nickel Company of Canada Ltd. with its life-long philosophy that it will always need more nickel and will always sell more nickel, says that despite its resources in Ontario and Manitoba it is on the lookout for more ore to develop, whether in the neighborhood of its present deposits or elsewhere in Canada or the world.

Observers at the company's annual meeting got the impression that so far as Inco is concerned, demand is expected to equal capacity in about another five years and that probably considerably before that Inco will embark upon new projects to ensure its supply.

Canadian motor - vehicle production last week reached a record week's high of 15,946 vehicles.

Container Shipping Is Expanded In Nfld.

MONCTON (CP) — Canadian National Railways has had such success with a simplified system of handling its Newfoundland freight and express delivery traffic that it plans to use the method more.

Several moves to pack more parcels in aluminum or steel containers for shipment from Sydney, N.S., to Port aux Basques, Nfld., were announced here last week by Howard C. Grayson, vice-president of the CNR's Atlantic region.

The system is deceptively simple but has met with unusual success. It reduces handling of goods and speeds traffic.

Mr. Grayson said 114 conventional aluminum containers were being added to those already in service and 122 advanced models would be used to organize a new shipping branch.

Stellarton and Halifax in Nova Scotia and several Newfoundland communities between Port aux Basques and Bishop's Falls will be added to the CNR's network using the new method.

HAD PACKAGING PROBLEMS

Development of the system stemmed from the problem of handling the numerous small parcels shipped across the Cabot Strait. It was necessary to pack them in railway cars at their point of origin, unpack them at the ferry terminal, stow them aboard ship and remove and repack them in railway cars after the crossing.

The large containers are transported to and from ferry terminals on flat cars.

Many ports and cities would like the new system in their areas.

The railway had been wanting to expand the operation for some time, but was unable to do so until enough flat cars were equipped to handle the containers.

Plans are also being made to include points from Bishop's Falls to St. John's in the system soon, Mr. Grayson said.

The system permits any point in the network to ship by container to any other point in it, provided the route is across Cabot Strait.

EXPORT OIL

Indonesia's state - owned oil company, Pertamin, is expected to export some 300,000 tons of crude oil annually.

INQUIRY DELAYED

MONTREAL (CP)—An official inquiry into the loss of a passenger from the Cunard liner Carmania will have to be delayed until the vessel returns to England, officials said Thursday. The passenger, Hendrick Boik, 30, of Edmonton, disappeared overboard Sunday while the 26,600-ton liner was near Newfoundland approaching the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1♥	1♠	Pass	2♦
Pass	3♠	Pass	3♦
Pass	4♠

Opening lead — six of hearts.

There is no use trying to perform the impossible in bridge, which is what South attempted to do in this hand.

The bidding was certainly reasonable. South overcalled with a spade and then raised two diamonds to three. North showed his spade support by bidding three spades, and South naturally went to four.

West led a heart. East took the ace and returned a heart which West ruffed. West then played a club.

Declarer won with the ace, cashed the king of spades, and led the jack. East covering with the queen and West showing out.

South had lost two heart tricks and now also had a trump trick to lose. In an effort to escape the club loser, he cashed the K-Q of diamonds and played a diamond to the ten, hoping East would follow suit, in which case he would be able to discard a club on the next diamond lead.

But East ruffed and South eventually had to concede a club trick to go down one.

Obviously, South failed to realize that this method of play was sure to fail. If he had thought the matter over, he would have known he was attempting the impossible.

East had shown up with a seven - card heart suit — conclusively proved when West ruffed a heart at trick two. East was also known to have started with three spades — neither more nor less. Furthermore, East had followed suit (with the king) when West returned a club at trick three.

Eleven of East's cards in three suits were thus accounted for early in the play, and it therefore became impossible for East to have more than two cards in the fourth suit, diamonds.

South should therefore have led a spade at trick six and given East his trump trick then and there. If he had done this, he would have made the contract. He should have played for what was possible — that East had a singleton club; not for what was impossible — that East had three diamonds.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
