8 Canadian Ships Reported Work Russian-Cuban Trade

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)— Eight ships owned in Canada but registered in Britain have been working the Russia-Cuba trade route in the last year, it became known here.

"The ships are likely to continue as they are," said a spokesman for the Halifax firm of L.H. Mathers and Son Limited, linked with the three Canadian companies that own the eight vessels.

His comment followed the initial disclosure here at a time when the United States is applying pressure to stop ships of NATO countries from carrying Communist goods to Cuba.

In London Tuesday, Transport Minister Ernest Marples sent a letter to the 800 members of the British chamber of shipping, asking them to avoid carrying arms to Cuba.

His action was advisory only, it was stated, and a foreign office spokesman said no British arms or military equipment have gone to Cuba in the last two years.

As far as was known, he said, British ships avoided cargoes of arms A chamber of shipping spokesmen said its members would willingly co-operate.

In Bonn, the West German government was reported pondering a legal measure to prevent West German ships being chartered by Communist bloc countries shipping to Cuba. It might be imposed today.

The eight Canadian vessels are the Beech Hill, Cedar Hill, Fir Hill, Mulberry Hill, Sycamore Hill, Maple Hill, Sudbury Hill and Streatham Hill. They are managed from London.

Owners are listed as Halifax-Overseas Freight Limited of Halifax, Acadia Overseas Freighter Limited of Halifax and the Vancouver Oriental Line Limited of Vancouver.

Harry Mathers and Evatt Mathers, president and vice-president of L.H. Mathers and Son Limited, hold similar positions in the three other firms.

"It's all right for the United States to say this shouldn't be done," said a Mathers spokesman Tuesday. "But the Russians aren't poor and if we don't take in the trade, they will charter the ships from somewhere else."

Sources here said the eight Canadian-owned vessels have been running the Russian-Cuban route for about a year. The three Canadian companies have other vessels under British registry as well.

Information here says the Streatham Hill, for example, was at Baltic ports in Russia about a year ago and then turned up in Cuba from mid-January until early March. By May, it was back at Odessa on the Black Sea and then back to Cuba

It is believed that Cuban sugar was hauled to Russia but there is no knowledge of the goods transported back to Cuba.

95 Freshmen Heading Into Opening Commons Session

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—A host of new MPs. some of them already shaping up as key personalities, will make their debut in the 25th Parliament which opens today.

There are 95 freshmen among the 265 MPs elected June 18. Most of them will pop up on the strengthened opposition benches.

Among the rookies is Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson, elected in Alberta's Red Deer riding, who has 25 other newcomers—all from Quebec—in his 30-member Commons group.

The 100 Liberals include 51 new faces. The 18 New Democratic party members are evenly divided between old and new hands. The Progressive Conservatives count nine new arrivals among their 116 legislators.

Walter Gordon, the Toronto accountant who headed the Liberals' election strategy, is expected to add new fire to the opposition assault on the government's economic front.

Charles M. Drury, deputy defence minister from 1949 to 1955, is counted on by the Liberals to liven the debate on defence issues.

The New Democrats will have David Lewis, prominent in labor law and one of the party's founders, up for his baptism of parliamentary fire.

BEST KNOWN ROOKIE

Probably the best known of the rookies is one of the least experienced in political affairs. Red Kelly, hockey star with Toronto Maple Leafs, has a seat among the Liberals.

Two former MPs who were not in the last Parliament will return to key roles.

Real Caouette, deputy Social Credit leader who did a four-year stint in the House before 1949, has served notice that he will have plenty to say in this Parliament.

Stanley Knowles, an MP for 16 years before being defeated in 1958, will be one of the strong men in the NDP corner. His mastery of parliamentary procedure is acknowledged by all parties.

Opening lead—two of spades.

If you wanted to guess whether a coin that is being tossed will come down heads or tails, you would have a 50 per cent chance of guessing right. If you tried this same operation 100 times, you would probably guess right or wrong about 50 times.

Good bridge players hate guesses and do everything they can to avoid them. Bridge contains an element of skill that can sometimes obviate guesswork to produce the best result.

Look at this hand played in a rubber bridge game. It was an instructive point. West leads a spade, which East wins with the queen. East continues with the ten, South playing the seven and West the six, and then the nine, on which South plays the ace and West the king.

Declarer takes a diamond finesse and East wins with the king. East must now return a heart or club, and if he guesses the wrong suit to play, South can make the contract.

Suppose East returns a club rather than a heart, because South bid hearts. Declarer can make nine tricks by cashing his clubs and diamonds. But if East returns a heart, South goes down, losing three spades, a heart and a diamond.

East's problem is not just a matter of guesswork. There is a way for East to know to return a heart. He goes back to the play at trick three when West, holding the K-J of spades, elected to play the king on the ace instead of the jack.

The king play is highly significant. It represents a use of the suit-direction convention. Since the K-J are equal in value at this point, West takes advantage of the situation to signal with the higher card to show that his entry lies in the higher-ranking side suit (as between hearts and clubs).

If he had held the ace of clubs instead of the ace of hearts, he would have indicated interest in the lower suit, clubs, by playing his lower spade, the jack.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
