BENSDORP'S ROYAL DUTCH COCOA.

BENSDORP'S Royal Dutch Cocoa has a most enviable repute the world over. It is manufactured at Bensdorp & Co.'s extensive works in Amsterdam, Holland. The excellence of the beverage is not to be wondered at, considering the care exercised in its production. The beans from which it is manufactured are the product of one of the famous South American plantations, exclusively. The crop is shipped to the factory, where it is carefully picked, roasted and ground; the grease is then extracted by hydraulic pressure, resulting in a powder entirely free from oil and moisture, which completes the manufacture. The product is then put up in parchment papers and in turn enclosed in hermetically sealed tins, which preserve it from deterioration in any climate. It is so highly appreciated at court that it is manufactured under Royal Letters Patent of the King of the Netherlands, by whose special command it is known as the "Royal Dutch Cocoa." The Royal family of Great Britain are constant consumers and prefer it to any other.

Bensdorp's Royal Dutch Cocoa is for sale in Charlottetown by Geo. Carter & Co.

MAY END IN CONFLICT

Emperor William Greatly Irritated at the Paris Incident.

A VICTORY FOR BISMARCK.

PARIS, Feb. 28.—This has been one of the most critical weeks for France and Germany since the outbreak of the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-71. So early as Tuesday last it began to be felt in several circles that the Empress Frederick was prolonging her stay in Paris to a dangerous extent. The surprise caused by her practically unannounced and sudden arrival and the curiosity which her movements occasioned slowly gave way to a feeling of anxiety. Early in the week a prominent member of the diplomatic corps privately informed Count von Munster, the German ambassador, that it was evident the Empress was making a mistake in staying so long in Paris. The ambassador replied: "I am quite of your opinion, but I am powerless to change the situation of affairs."

WHAT CAUSED THE TROUBLE.

Then in rapid succession occurred the three events which raised the Parisians to a dangerous point and which the crowned Empress' mission, both in its political and artistic sense, with disaster of Europe. The first of these events was the drive to Versailles. When the attention of the Empress was called to the public clamor caused by the drive she said:—"I went there for reasons of sentiment, so many recollections of my husband centre there." The second incident was the thoughtless removal by an over-zealous French official of a wreath laid on the tomb of Henry Regault, the celebrated French painter, who died at Buzenval when only 24 years of age, while fighting against the Prussians during the Franco-Prussian war. This caused another outbreak of popular clamor and another series of articles in the newspapers commenting unfavorably upon the Empress' visit to Paris.

AN ILL-NATURED GERMAN EDITORIAL.

The third incident and the one which most enraged the Parisians was the publication of the anti-French articles in the Cologne Gazette Thursday, and read by the people here at the very moment the Empress was driving to the railway station The savage editorial destroyed every vestige of good that might otherwise have been done by the Imperial visit.

The French Government has not done anything in the matter and neither in the Senate nor in the Chamber of Deputies has any one opened his mouth in regard to the Empress Frederick's visit.

A minor influence in bringing about the strained relations has been the rivalry of the two saloons. Boergueari, the painter—the party known as the "Berlin party" and Meissonier's successor, as president of the Champ de Mars seceders, was the leader of the Anti-Berlin party. The result is there has been a grand victory for the Champ de Mars painters, who received a great set back by the death of Meissonier.

CHANCELLOR CAPRIVI'S ORDER.

The feeling of general confidence that the unpleasant incident had ended with the departure or the Empress was rudely shaken to-day upon the public learning of Chancellor von Caprivi's order to Prince von Hohenlohe Schillingfurst with reference to the passport regulations. The Chancellor's action has caused great excitement, a portion of the press denouncing it in fierce and bitter terms and calling it wilful provocation of the people of France.

The comments of to-day's Berlin newspapers on the passport incident have been telegraphed to this city. These comments admit von Caprivi's action was the direct result of Empress Frederick's treatment in Paris and they serve to intensify the feeling of disquiet. An article in the National Zeitung is especially offensive to the Parisians. That paper declares the recent decree making more strict the passport regulations in Alsace-Lorraine is like a stream of cold water poured on Paris.

BOULANGER'S OPPORTUNITY.

It is reported that General Boulanger is preparing an anti-German manifesto. The General and his companions in Brussels are constantly exchanging communications by telephone with the leading Boulangists of Paris.

La Liberte says public opinion is divided regarding the motives behind Emperor William's coquettries with France; that when he found the triple alliance collapsing he sought to stay the progress of the Russo-French alliance.

The Temps, referring to the visit of Empress Frederick, says;—"We conclude that; however much the policy of Germany toward France may have varied, the spirit of the French nation is unchanged. This fact, however, does not preclude relations of perfect courtesy between the two Governments, nor is it likely to disturb the incontestible relaxation produced in the European situation by the elimination of the Bismarck-Crispi majority."

A SENSE OF RELIEF IN BERLIN.

BERLIN, February 28.—A sense of relief was experienced here when it was announced that the ex-Empress had left Paris in safety. The substance of newspaper comment is that it will be a long time before the experiment is repeated or Germany again exposing herself to the suspicion of desiring to make friendship cheap, and that the next advance must come from the other side of the Rhine.

The North German Gazette says: "No doubt ever existed in Germany as to the true feelings of the French people towards Germans, and the Berlin art exhibition would have been useful in showing how far the feeling would display itself.

EMPEROR WILLIAM'S WRATH.

The Emperor's wrath at the failure of the visit of Empress Frederick to Paris to establish in some sort good feeling between Germany and France has fallen upon both Chancellor von Caprivi and Count von Munster, the German ambassador at Paris. Upon the former for advising the trying of the experiment and upon the latter for assenting to the Empress' prolonged stay and to her fatally indiscreet visit to Versailles.

The Emperor appears to charge the Chancellor and Count Von Munster with misinforming him as to what the result of the visit would probably be.

WILL DEMAND AN OFFICIAL APOLOGY.

M. Herbette, who was probably instructed by M. Ribot, the French foreign minister, informed the Chancellor yesterday that he desired to express personally to the Emperor his regrets at the manner the Empress had been treated. He stated that he did not ask for a formal interview in his capacity of French ambassador. To his request the Emperor replied that he did not wish to hold any unofficial conversation on the subject, which would be personally painful to himself and M. Herbette. Unless the French ambassador had an official communication to offer he need not trouble himself to have an audience. The character of the response is interpreted in official quarters as pointing to the Emperor's determination to obtain from the French Government some form of satisfaction for the treatment accorded his mother.

A VICTORY FOR BISMARCK.

This Paris incident is a triumph for Prince Bismarck. The Hamburger Nachrichten holds that the French outbreak vindicates the Bismarckian system and advises the Emperor to return to the old policy, which regarded France as an inappeasable enemy. The Prince can point to his successful opposition to the project of Empress Frederick, when her husband's illness was declared grave, to take him for the winter to the South of France. Bismarck held that although the French might have treated a dying man with respectful sympathy for a time some sudden popular exultation might thwart every provision and that the risk ought not to be run. The well grounded criticisms of the Bismarckian press will not tend to allay the Emperor's irritation.

THE EMPRESS' LETTER TO HER SON.

LONDON, March 1.—Ex-Empress Frederick wrote a letter to Emperor William last Thursday night in which she said she could not understand the necessity of shortening her stay or avoiding publicity in Paris. Everyone with whom she had been in contact, she said, had been very polite to her and in fact she felt grateful for the attention she had received. She begged her son to keep cool, saying she was convinced that everything would come out all right.

THE RETALIATORY DECREE.

BERLIN, February 28.—A decree published to-day by Prince von Hohenloe Schillingsfurst, governor of Alsace-Lorrane, announces that from March 3 next all the passport regulations which refer to Alsace-Lorrane will be carried to the fullest extent and that all facilities for through tickets on railroads have been rescinded.

RUSSIA APPLAUDS FRANCE.

ST. PETERSBURG, February 28.—The Russian press is unanimous in endorsing the refusal of the French artists to take part in the Berlin art exhibition, as well as in condemning the irritation which the Germans have shown.

The Laugh Went the Wrong Way.

A young man who seemed to be boiling over to do something smart was a passenger on a Michigan avenue car the other day. After racking his massive brain for a while he took out a silver dollar and laid it on the seat, and took a seat opposite. The car soon stopped at a crossing to let on an old woman with a market basket. She saw the empty seat and the dollar, and it didn't take her over thirty seconds to drop herself into the place and the dollar in her pocket.

"Excuse me, ma'am," said the joker, "But I've lost a dollar. I think I left it on that seat."

"I don't!" she bluntly replied.

"But I'm sure of it. Did you pick up a dollar?"

"None o' yer bizness sir!"

"But all of us saw you pick it up, ma'am, and I can prove it was mine."

"Look a-here, young chap!" she said as she put down her basket, "If it's a row you wan't you'll find me me ready! I allow no one to walk on me!"

"But, ma'am, I left—"

"Come on, then!" she said, as she stood up and doubled up her fists. "I am a peaceful woman, and I want to get along the easiest way, but if I must fight, I will!"

Everybody began to clap and laugh, and the smart Aleck took a drop off the platform without asking what it was all about.—Detroit Free Press.

How to Live Long.

A physician in the Boston Journal of Commerce thus explains how one may live long:—"Take an hour of exercise to every pound of food. We are not nourished by what we eat, but by what we digest. Every hour you steal from digestion will be reclaimed by indigestion. Beware of the wrath of a patient stomach! He who controls his appetite in regard to the quality of his food may safely indulge it in regard to quantity. The oftener you eat the oftener you will repent it. Dyspepsia is a poor pedestrian; walk at the rate of four miles an hour and you will soon leave her behind. Abstinence from all stimulants is easier than temperance. An egg is worth a pound of meat; a milch cow seven stalled oxen. Sleep is sweeter after a fast-day than after a feast-day. For every meal you lose you gain a better."

Letter of Condolence.

To Mr. and Mrs. James N. McLeod:

DEAR FRIENDS,—The members of Gough Lodge, No. 34, I. O. G. T., hearing, with sorrowful regret, of the death of your son, John Alexander, who has been an exemplary member of this Lodge, in which his kind words and courteous acts has endeared him to all. We hereby extend to you our heartfelt sympathy in your time of affliction, trusting that "Him who doeth all things well," will sustain you in this, your hour of sad bereavement.

Yours in sympathy,
