WOMEN JOIN WATCH FOR NAZI INVADER

BENHALL, England, Aug. 13—(CP)—If Nazi parachutists make an undetected landing near this pretty Suffolk village it will happen only as a result of everyone going blind suddenly because the men patrol the district at night and women take over by day.

Pretty Diana Hollond organized the women ranging in age from 17 to 70, into a volunteer force. They work in two-hour shifts and patrol in pairs. Those not working help with the domestic duties of the female patrol and any husbands with nothing to do also aid in the house-keeping.

Diana's father, for instance, was busy keeping the luncheon dishes warm while she went out on patrol and volunteered the information that the 30 women members of the squad were "as keen as can be on doing their bit."

The vicar, Rev. H. L. Connor, was another meal warmer-upper. He expressed himself as proud of the way the women had organized themselves, said it was their own idea and they were "doing a good job of work."

"They are armed only with knitting-needles. They knit all the time they are on duty—my wife has made dozens of Balaclava helmets since she joined.

The women work seven days a week and when the weather is bad do their observing from a wooden hut erected on a hilltop.

KETCH SALVAGED WITH BOY'S KITE

A boy's kite was used in the salvage of the ketch Pengana, which recently ran ashore.

To get a line from the stranded boat to the salvagers, who were 200 yards out over a dangerous reef, the kite was flown over the salvage vessel. From the kite was atached a tuna line, the end of which was kept afloat by a balloon and sinker. When this was obtained by the salvagers, a shark line was hauled across from the Pengana, then a Manila rope and eventually the steel cable. The Pengana was re-floated on a favorble tide.

One of the camp cooks doles out soup to a smiling Canadian at headquarters of the first Canadian Division "somewhere in England". The sunshine made the cook's straw hat seem a bit more suitable although it hardly matches the rest of his army equipment. This straw hat is a regimental joke—and the cook's "mascot."

'British Subject' Definition Set For National Registration Form

Canada's forthcoming national registration is a matter of vital importance to the Dominion and the British Empire. The public is anxious to co-operate with the Government to the fullest extent possible, but indications are that some confusion exists as to how it would affect the ordinary person. The following series of questions and answers reflect the spirit of the legislation and may clear up doubts.

Q. Since it is important to obtain accurate information on the factor of nationality or citizenship, what is the law relating to British nationality?

A. Speaking in the most general terms, a person may become a British subject by birth, by naturalization, or, in the case of a woman, by marriage, but British nationality once acquired may be lost by naturalization in some other country, by the cancelation of a naturalization certificate, or, in the case of a woman by marriage, the general rule being that a wife has the same nationality as her husband.

The statutory provisions on the subject of nationality are extremely complicated, and a simple statement of them is impossible. All that can be done is to state first the circumstances in which British nationality is acquired and then those in which it is lost, following the instructions given under national registration regulations to deputy registrars.

(1) Acquisition of British nationality: Every person has become a British subject who—

(a) was born in any of His Majesty's Dominions or on a British ship, no matter what was the nationality of his or her parents, or

(b) was born elsewhere of a father who, at the time of the child's birth, was a British subject, or

(c) has been personally granted a certificate of naturalization under any statute of Canada or under the Imperial Naturalization Act in Canada or in any other of His Majesty's dominions, or

(e) is the child of a person naturalized in Canada before January 1, 1918, otherwise than under the Imperial Naturalization Act, and was a minor and resident in Canada at the time of the naturalization of the parents, and in any case, not later than January 1, 1915, or

(f) being a woman, has married a man who, at the date of the marriage, was a natural born or naturalized British subject, or

(g) being a woman, has married a man who was an alien at the time of the marriage but later, during the marriage and before January 15, 1932, became a naturalized British subject, or

(h) being a woman who becomes or remains an alien after her marriage to a man then an alien but later, during the marriage and after January 15, 1932, naturalized as a British subject in Canada has, within six months after the issue of her husband's certificate of naturalization or such further time as may have been authorized in special circumstances, made and caused to be registered a declaration that she desires to acquire British nationality, and, in which case, she has obtained a certificate of British nationality.

(2) Loss of British nationality: Every one who has become a British subject so remains until his or her death unless

(a) he or she has (apart from marriage) become a naturalized citizen of some other country, or

(b) being a naturalized British subject, his or her certificate of naturalization is cancelled, or

(c) being a woman, has before January 15, 1932, married a man who at the date of the marriage was not a British subject, or

(d) being a woman, has married a man who although a British subject at the date of the marriage, later, during the marriage and before January 15, 1932, ceased to be so, or

(e) Being a woman, has on or after January 15, 1932, married an alien and has by virtue of the marriage acquired her husband's nationality, (at the date of publication of the instructions the foreign countries in which a female British subject marrying a subject of such foreign country does not, by reason of such marriage, acquire the nationality of her husband are the following: France, United States of America, Argentina, Cuba, Guatemala and Uruguay), or

(f) being a woman whose husband has during the marriage and on or after January 15, 1932, ceased to be a British subject and who by virtue only of her husband's change of allegiance has acquired her husband's new nationality unless within six months after such change of her husband's allegiance or such further time as may have been authorized in special circumstances, she has made and caused to be registered a declaration that she desires to retain her British nationality, and, in which case, she has obtained a certificate of British nationality.

Q. Who determines whether the registrant is a British subject or not?

A. Registration officers will abstain from attempting to advise or settle whether registrants are or are not British subjects. The registrant must decide the question for himself, but cases may occur in which he, by reason of honest doubt or lack of knowledge on this subject, will be unable to determine the appropriate answer. In such cases, the deputy filling in the card should ask the man in authority for his interpretation.

Q. Does one have to produce a birth certificate to prove age while registering, or proof of British citizenship if naturalized?

A. Not while registering, though these may be requested subsequently if deemed desirable.

Q. If an alien resident does not speak English or French, may he have an interpreter?

A. Yes, but the registrant must furnish his own interpreter, who will be duly sworn.

Q. Is there any penalty for failing to register during the three-day registration period if one is not away from Canada?

A. Yes. A person may register subsequently, however, at a post office in Canada, but this will not necessarily relieve him or her of the penalty incurred for having failed to register during the registration period or within the time limited.

Q. Is proof of registration required?

A. Yes. On completion of the registration form, a certificate of registration is given the registrant and it must be carried at all times. Employers must require one to be shown by all their employees on August 21.

Q. Does one have to fill in one's own registration form?

A. No. The answers furnished by the registrant are filled in by the deputy registrar or his assistants. A registrant may, however, insist on doing his own writing but it is preferred to have the officials in charge do so.

Q. Are there any penalties attached to the giving of wilfully false or misleading information?

A. Yes.

French Canada Doing Its Part On Many Fronts

QUEBEC, Aug. 13.—(CP) — Sons and daughters of New France, like the rest of Canada, have rallied to the Empire cause, some of them already in the war zone, others in training to serve, and still others working on the home front.

among industrialized Quebec's contributions of war materials in addition to quantities of army clothing and accessories for the soldier.

Some ships for the Royal Canadian Navy already have come off Quebec ways. In ever increasing numbers others will follow.

Some planes also have been produced and the tempo is being speeded up. Before long "Mark III" tanks will rumble out of Quebec shops, the first such machines of war to be built in Canada.

At first, however, as in most other areas, French Canada's initial contribution was in manpower for the 1st Division, such as those men who formed the Royal 22nd Regiment, famed in the First Great War.

Thousands of men have been recruited in the province. Modern war necessitates skilled men and the demand has been for tradesmen of all kinds to serve in the forces.

Among Quebec regiments which have become mechanized are the Duke of Connaught's Royal Canadian Hussars and the Duke of York's Canadian Hussars. Formerly cavalry regiments, these now are motorcycle and armored car outfits.

At Sherbrooke, centre of military activity in the Eastern Townships, the 35th Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery, was mobilized on the outbreak of war and became part of the 1st Division. The 73rd Battery from Magog went on active service with the 2nd Division.

After a lull during the early spring recruiting stepped up to bring thousands of young men out for training in the militia at camps at St. John's, Bruno and Valcartier.

The air beckoned other youths, and in Montreal several hundred are in training at No. 1 wireless school of the Royal Canadian Air Force. Many other training establishments for air force personnel are operating or being prepared in the province.

Many others, living near the St. Lawrence and within striking distance of the sea, have turned to the navy and gone into service through the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve.

Women are serving, too, in factories, for the most part making shells and clothing. Virtually all of Quebec's industrial plants are working at capacity; textiles, fabrication plants, airplane factories and chemical works.

One of the most important industries in Canada, Vickers' Limited, already has produced several anti-submarine craft for the Royal Navy and the Royal Canadian Navy.

The Aluminum Company of Canada, with headquarters in Quebec province, has sold practically all of its crude aluminum output for the remainder of 1940 and 1941 to the British Ministry of Supply.

The company began a program of expansion and it is expected that other units under construction will put Canada in a position to produce alone as much aluminum as Germany.

Munitions are being manufactured on a large scale at various plants "somewhere in Quebec," at the old arsenal at Quebec City and the new arsenal set up at Valcartier camp.

Among those who motored from Charlottetown to attend the Anniversary Service at Cape Traverse United Church last Sunday evening were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Muttart, Miss Jean Muttart, Mr. John H. Muttart, Mr. and Mrs. George Hennessey and son.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at St. Andrew's United Church, Regina, on July 17, when Miss Helen Jeanette Pedigerne and Kenneth S. Ben were united in marriage, the officiating clergyman being Rev. Harry Joyce. The bride was charming in her gown of azure blue sheer with white accessories. Her bouquet was of roses and carnations. Her bridesmaid, Miss Lillian Deschennes wore a pretty dress of dusky rose sheer with a corsage of carnations. The best man was Alexander Stephens. After a short wedding trip to Moose Jaw, the young couple returned to Regina, where they will reside. Friends here wish them every happiness in their wedded life.

Miss Leacock, teacher of Art in the Ottawa Ladies' College, left on Thursday morning on return to Ottawa after a short sojourn here, the guest of Mrs. Louis Muttart. She took a brief but intensive course in Ceramics and Pottery Glazing from Miss Mary Allison Doull at her studio in Cape Traverse. Miss Leacock, who was visiting our province for the first time, was deeply impressed with the charm and beauty of the Island, and hopes to return many times in the future. She expressed her great appreciation of the value of the work Miss Doull is doing in her chosen field in Art, and feels that she received rich benefit from her studies with her.

The Cape Traverse Women's Missionary Society met on Thursday, August 1, at the home of Mrs. Alex Norring, with the president, Miss Mary Muttart, in the chair. The theme for the worship service was Service—the use of our possessions. Those taking part were: Mrs. Cutliffe, Mrs. Lord, Mrs. Haslam, Mrs. Nathan Bell, Mrs. Harper and Mrs. Gordon Harvey. Mrs. Harper contributed a very lovely solo. A most inspiring part of this meeting was an intensely interesting and delightfully informal talk by Miss Caldecott, missionary on furlough from Japan, telling of the life of the Japanese people, and of her work among them. She also showed some very interesting Japanese pictures. The president extended to Miss Caldecott the thanks of the members of the society. Rev. Ralph Barker gave a brief talk on the missionary work. The meeting closed with the hymn, Forth in Thy Name, O Lord, I Go, and prayer by Mr. Barker. A pleasant social hour was enjoyed, and the hostess, assisted by the members, served a delicious lunch.

There was a large congregation in attendance at the fiftieth anniversary service at Cape Traverse United Church last Sunday evening. The pastor, Rev. Ralph Barker conducted the service, and mentioned some interesting facts concerning the dedicatory service fifty years ago. Only two who were members of the church at that time are still living, viz: Mr. W. S. Muttart and Miss Penzie Bell. Two members of the original choir also were in attendance Sunday evening, viz: Messrs. W. S. Muttart and Albert Muttart. The choir, assisted by Rev. Ralph Barker and Mr. Barker, Sr., gave a splendid rendition of Dr. Lowell Mason's magnificent anthem, Jerusalem, My Glorious Home, which was also sung at the service fifty years ago. Miss Mary Muttart sang very sweetly "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings." At the close of the sermon the choir selection was the spirited hymn, Church Triumphant. The congregation joined heartily in singing the grand old hymns, All Hail the Power, The Church's One Foundation, and Onward Christian Soldiers. Mrs. Ernest Harper was the organist. Rev. Ernest S. Weeks led in prayer, and Rev. Geo. Ayers, who was pastor of the church 26 years ago, delivered the address. He voiced a stirring challenge to all to give themselves whole-heartedly to the service of Christ in the Church, for only thus can men achieve their full spiritual stature and the church fulfil her destiny. "Now ye are the body of Christ and members in particular." Mr. Ayers took as his text Ephesians 1. 22 and 23: "And hath put all things under his feet, and gave him to be the head over all things to the church, which is his body." also Ephesians 5.25:—"Even as Christ also loved the church and gave himself for it." Residents living near Highstown, New Jersey, may soon think they've been invaded by a platoon of Adolf Hitler's parachute troops. They will be regular army men in Uncle Sam's defence forces, however. As the army moved to give its soldiers more thorough training in parachute jumping, Highstown became the centre of activity for the leapers. This unusual picture was made when the first Doughboy made his jump.

Many of our local citizens are taking advantage of the excellent weather to secure their quota of blueberries for the winter months, many are to be seen every evening arriving home with full dishes of this delicacy.

Although a number of trucks are still continually passing through Kensington hauling gravel from the Hope River pit to the St. Eleanors airport, which is now under construction, many of them have been taken off this run and are now hauling the asphalt from Curran and Briggs the contractors plant in Bloomfield.

Many of our local sportsmen motored to Charlottetown on Monday evening where they attended and thoroughly enjoyed the boxing card staged there. Many of them fans of "Irish" Leo Kelly, were delighted to see him win such a clean cut decision over his highly rated opponent.

BY THEM BETRAYED ....

The soul is black with dark consuming hate,
The hands are red with blood shed wantonly,
The mind is morbid with decay of lust,
That forced upon the world this war; unwarranted
And cowardly as hell itself
Whose is the authorship
Of anguish of the devastation wrought
On life of friend and foe alike today.

There war moves on, where now too late to stay
The havoc and calamity of death;
Too late to stay the carnage to the end
Where awful holocaust of war sweeps on
To dull exhaustion of enfeebling famine
Brought on by those who'd rise on hate to power.

Stained crimson with the blood of innocence;
Could they be trusted to improve, protect?
Who break their promises, who murder truth.
Could they be builders of prosperity?

And where their place upon this earth today
As friends and neighbors trusted and admired
For those true qualities of citizenship,
On which must men and nations — all depend,
For life's security of faith and trust,
By them betrayed to so themselves betray?
