Camping Activities

AT THE CHARLOTTETOWN BAPTIST CHURCH CAMP

The inauguration of a church camping ground by the Charlot-town Baptist Church has met with immediate and outstanding success. Located on the farm of Mr. Ladlow Jenkins at Marshfield and overlooking the Hillsboro river the site is a splendid one—providing ample room for tents and play ground and fronted by a very safe bathing beach. A cook-house and dining hall, with a fully equipped kitchen, and a plentiful supply of good water, pumped right into the kitchen, afford great convenience for those in charge of meals.

The camp ground was officially opened with the annual Church School picnic when a large com-pany of folk gathered under the capable direction of Mr. Ross Be-thune and his school staff. Mrs. Gordon Barrett had charge of the Well Cup Camp which was the first regular group in Camp. The next Camp—the 4th. Charlot-town Boy Scout Troop was in charge of the Pastor, Rev. H. L. Denton. Mr. Denton acted as Camp Director of the splendid C. G. I. T. Camp. Her assistant was Miss Winnie Spurr of New Glasgow, Nova Scotia. It will be of interest to Island Baptists to know that Miss Spurr is a grand-daughter of the late Rev. John Spurr who held a number of pastorates on the Is-land. Accompanying Miss Spurr was her friend, Miss Mary Doull, daughter of Judge Doull of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia. Another visiting camper was Miss Louise Lindsay, daughter of Rev. R. W. Lindsay of Canard, Nova Scotia.

With the Rev. H. L. Denton of Charlot-town as Director and Rev. Alex. Gibson, General Secretary for Christian Education of the Maritime Baptist Convention as Honorary Director, the Baptist Young People's Camp for the Is-land opened on August 11th, with a substantial increase in enrolment over last year. Features of the program are coursed by Rev. Mr. Gibson and Rev. B. G. Manzer of North River. Mrs. Dan Bell is acting as Business Manager of the Camp, and Mrs. A. K. McPhee is the capable Camp Mother.

On Sunday afternoon, August 15th, a very fine open-air service was conducted on the Camp grounds under the auspices of the Marshfield Baptist Church. The service was conducted by Rev. H. L. Denton, assisted by Rev. R. W. Lindsay and Mr. Lloyd. Musical music was furnished by a large choir representative of a number of the Baptist churches of the Is-land, with special numbers being rendered by Rev. R. W. Lindsay, and a quartette from the Hazel-brook Baptist Church. Mrs. Harold Carver, Hazelbrook and Miss Margaret Webster, Marshfield were accompanists. Rev. Mr. Gibson addressed a large gathering of people.

The inauguration of this church camping ground is a new feature in the Christian Education policy of the Charlot-town Baptist Church, and one that promises to be of great value not only to the local Church but to the general work of the Denomination on Prince Edward Island. The Camping policy of the Charlot-town Church is under the direction of the Committee of Christian Educa-tion, of whom Mr. J. W. Boulter is the capable chairman.

In the passing of Russell Hunter the Dundas section of P. E. I. stood aghast in the realm of trag-edy. He was neither young nor old, a matured and vigorous man in full enjoyment of health and strength, a member of what a few years ago they termed themselves, "the younger set."

His illness lasted for only a very few weeks, and during the greater part of that time he was fully conscious, cheerful and confident of recovery. The best medical skill failed before the power of what-ever was working disaster and death. In his short career, he had worked with effectiveness, and suc-cess crowned his efforts. His com-fortable home and farm speaks sil-ently of what he was and did.

A man of cheerful disposition and optimistic outlook, he sought his companionships among the young and hopeful. A member of the United Church and a faithful supporter, who was ever ready to take his part in any Christian un-der-taking.

His passing is a crushing sorrow to his wife and four sons, who are left to carry on in separation and loneliness.

The poet's words may well be theirs:

"Console if you will, I can bear it
'Tis a well meant aim of breath,
But not all the preaching since
Adam
Has made death other than death."

We meet each other by the way and stop to exchange a mutual re-gret, and to express a mutual thought—why?

As the years passed he would have stood, as his father before him, in the front rank of all that is manly and good, but now dis-appointment and a prayer for guidance is our natural expression.

With deep solemnity and sym-pathy that was hard to restrain, we laid him to rest. And in sincerity and reverence we spoke and sang of peace.

Labor Embarks On National Campaign

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Aug. 16—Labor has embarked on a great national cam-paign. Nineteen mass conferences have been held. Three more take place in Scotland before the end of August.

Their purpose is to lift the Labor movement from the doldrums, to give it vitality, to make the great working class Socialist conscious.

Herbert Morrison, chairman of the national campaign committee—who steered Labor to startling victory in the London county council elections, thus describes the campaign:

"There are three outstanding features of the plans for the national campaign of the Labor Party: The business of its purpose, its completeness, and its long-term character.

"The purpose is to lift the po-litical fortunes of the Labor Party from their not too prosperous con-ditions today to the point of vic-tory at the next parliamentary general election.

"And we want the victory to be not merely a victory of discontent with the other side, but a victory which indicates acceptance of the broad principles of modern So-cialism. This means that we must attract to Labor some millions more voters, and that we have greatly to improve the economic and political understanding of a large proportion of those who vote for Labor candidate."

Both as a national force and as parliamentary opposition, Labor has lost ground.

By-election after by-election went for the Government. In the House of Commons, divisions among Lab-or men themselves sapped oppothe hour of their births they have lived in homes that were laboratories in which every possible experiment of marriage was being worked out.

Matrimony Can Best Be Taught in Home Dorothy Dix Children Follow Lines of Parents

In reality there isn't a child 5 years old who doesn't know what goes to make a marriage a success or failure. It knows that those marriages are happy in which the husband and wife are congenial, think alike and enjoy doing the same things; and that where they show each other kind-ness, consideration and affection there are peace and harmony in the household.

The child knows almost in its cradle that a marriage is a failure if the husband and wife are antagonistic to each other; if they argue and quarrel over everything and if they say cruel and bitter things to each other. Furthermore, by the time children are adolescent they have sat in judgment on their warring parents. They know which one is to blame and wonder why Father doesn't pay Mother a few compliments when she would eat out of his hand if he did, and why Mother can't lay off of Father with her nagging and let him have what he wants for dinner with-out starting something by telling him how bad what he likes is for his dig-estion.

It is these early impressions that children get of marriage that decide the kind of husbands and wives that they will make, and not what they will be taught in college. For every mother and father are either a shini-ng example or an awful warning to their sons and daughters.

Nearly always a girl treats her husband as her mother treated her father. If Mother was a good housekeeper and a frugal manager; if she petted and made much of Father and did everything possible to help him and make him happy, it is a safe bet that daughter will make the same sort of wife that Mother did.

If Mother regarded Father merely as a meal ticket; if she was whin-ning and complaining and extravagant, the chances are that her daughter will also think that husbands are only useful as bill-payers.

If a man treats his wife with tenderness and consideration and gen-erosity, so will his sons treat their wives in the great majority of cases. Just as the son is apt to follow the example of the father who has made a doorman-of-his wife.

But there are exceptions to this rule of like mother like daughter, like father like son. One of the most peaceful homes I was ever in be-longed to a woman who had been reared in a house of strife, and in her revision from it would not permit even an argument in hers. I have known girls who were so sorry for their henpecked fathers they spoiled their own hus-bands to death. And men who had pitied their own mothers' hard lots so much that they treated their wives like queens.

The things that we learn at our mothers' knees we never forget. They really teach us how to be husbands and wives.
