In Memoriam

There's a dear old fashioned cottage
And a garden on the hill,
There's an orchard, dell and woodland
And a voice re-echoing still

Everywhere; But its lonely this old cottage
Slowly crumbling to the ground,
For the last dear tie is broken,
Mother Dear is not around.

To train the vines and roses,
That grow about the door,
To give loving words of kindness
Even when her heart was tried and sore.

Ah! out there in the garden
I think I see her stand,
As she sows the seeds of Beauty
With a dear caressing hand.

In that dear old fashioned garden
Gingham gown and "Hood" of blue
I will always see her toiling,
Glad, that she such work might do.

Now the garden's all in mourning,
For closed is that cottage door,
Where she oft appeared so happy,
And where she'll be seen no more.

While she lived it seemed so easy
To keep the fires aglow,
To brighten up the windows
Run errands to and fro.

Bathe her face and comb her hair
And dress her up so "fine,"
Then place her near the window
Where the warm sun loved to shine.

The sunshine! she loved its warmth
But the sun that thrilled her heart
Was the sunny word of kindness
Oft withheld! So few impart.

To run and make her happy
I'd bring some toast—a cup of tea
My reward,—"God bless you darling
You are too good to me."

Good to her! Well, I thought I was;
But now since she's been gone
I know there were a hundred things
I should and could have done.

But such is life, we do not know
How quickly go the years
How swiftly fade the joys of youth
How bitterly flow the tears

For things that we have left undone;
Dear God; please let her know
That we all loved her far, far more
Than we did ever show.

In my heart I'll keep that garden
And the cottage on the Hill
And a dear old fashioned mother
Whose place no one can fill.

There I'll always see her praying
Patient, gratified as could be
Lonely mother! Softly saying
"Dear, you are too good to me."

Every spring when trees are budding
I know she'll still want us to come
Back where she loved and sheltered us
Back Home—our dear old home.

And when the snow is on the roof
Again my vigil there I'll keep
With her in loving memory
Until I, too, shall fall asleep

—Carolyn Macdonald.

BOARD FINDINGS REFLECTED IN RHODES BUDGET

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire)

OTTAWA, April 19—There were four changes in the tariff schedule resulting from recommendations of the tariff board, announced in yesterday's budget. These changes were made on reports of the board following investigations and public hearings.

The outstanding item is that dealing with jute twines, this being the one item that was revised upward in all three categories. The tariff board found that while rovings, yarns and warp were not manufactured in Canada, the jute twine factories were highly efficient and capable of supplying the market.

The change was made therefore, by giving the United Kingdom free entry on yarns going into the manufacture of twines, where the preferential rate was 12 1-4 percent. The intermediate and general rate remain at 17 1-2 and 25 per cent. The preferential rate on the twine is increased from 20 percent to 27 1-2 percent, the intermediate from 22 1-2 to 30 and the general from 25 to 32 1-2 percent.

Representations with respect to yarns were made before the board by the Dundee, Scotland, mills, with respect to twines by the Dood Company of Kitchener, Ont.

The board, on representations from the United Kingdom, investigated the item governing canvas in the web wholly of flax or hemp, for awnings, tents, tarpaulins and such articles, and found they were not produced to any extent in Canada. The preferential rate of 25 percent and three cents a pound was reduced to a mere revenue rate of 15 percent, and the general and intermediate left unchanged at 35 per cent and four cents, and 30 percent and 3 1-4 cents respectively.

OTTAWA, April 19 (C.P.)—Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Finance Minister, having granted a great concession last year to the Scot in placing importations of bagpipes on the free list, made a graceful gesture today to the Irish in similarly removing from the realm of taxation importations of harps.

The Minister's action a year ago evoked paeans of praise from exiled Caledonians who were quoted as declaring this would "encourage the study of music in Canada."

The harpists have yet to be heard from.

Having returned from a trip to India the club member insisted upon describing his experiences over and over.

"You can believe it or not, as you choose," he informed a group for the fourth time, "but that black fakir threw that rope up in the air, and then he climbed up and utterly disappeared."

A member of his audience yawned and inquired: "You can't by any chance do that trick yourself, can you?"

JOHN ELLIS

The funeral service of the late John Ellis of Ellerslie was held from his residence on March 31, 1934 at 2 p. m. Rev. J. A. Nicholson, minister of Bideford and Tyne Valley United Churches was the officiating minister. Service was held in St. John's Anglican Church at Ellerslie where Mr. Nicholson preached from the text "Now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that sleep". After the service in the church the remains were laid lovingly to rest in the family lot in the Anglican Cemetery at Ellerslie. A large congregation, many unable to obtain seats in the Church was present at the funeral. Mr. Ellis was a man in the prime of life and will be greatly missed. He was an Orangeman and members of the Association conducted the usual service at the grave, after the clergyman had completed his service.

ALICE ELLIS

The funeral of the late Alice Ellis was held from her residence at Ellerslie on April 12th at 2 p. m. Rev. W. J. Phillips rector of the Anglican Church at Alberton assisted by the Rev. J. A. Nicholson, minister of Bideford and Tyne Valley United Churches. Services were conducted in the Anglican Church at Ellerslie on the arrival of the funeral there. Rev. Mr. Phillips and Rev. Mr. Nicholson officiating in the church. Mr. Phillips preached on the text: "My Peace I leave with you." Interment was in the family plot where she was laid to rest by her brother who passed away only two weeks before her death. "In death they were not divided". The sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved relatives.

PERCY BANKS

The funeral services of the late Percy Banks of Conway were held at his residence on April 3rd at 2 p. m. A service was also conducted in the Anglican Church at Lot 11 and interment was in the family plot at Lot 11. The services were all conducted by Rev. J. A. Nicholson, minister of the Bideford and Tyne Valley United Churches. Mr. Banks was a favorite with the young people and a member of the Conway Dramatic Society and he will be missed in the community.

GREAT WELCOME FOR SEALING COMMODORE

(C. P. Cable)
(By Guardian's Special Wire)

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 19. — Newfoundlanders can bestow no greater honor on a sealing skipper than to call him a "Jowler." But an admiring city used the word freely tonight to describe Captain Abram Kean, home from the north for the 66th time and with his millionth seal below the decks of the ice-scarred old sealing vessel Beothic.

It was the high spot in the life of the 79-year-old skipper, hailed on his return as the greatest seal killer of all time. Forty-seven thousand pelts were aboard his sturdy vessel as she nosed up St. John's Harbor this afternoon, and they brought his lifetime kill up to 1,007,000 seals.

Class By Himself

No other sealing master has come near the million mark. The grizzled old skipper stands in a class by himself. But perhaps it is because he has been "going on the ice" for more years than most. He was completing his 63rd season at the kill when the Beothic came back today.

And the Capital made the event one to be remembered. Deep-throated cheers were bellowed from a crowded waterfront. Other sealing vessels, in from the kill, voiced a generous tribute to the incoming commodore of the fleet. The shrill shrieks of their sirens mingled with the deeper undertone of liners' whistles.

More Honors

Ashore, there will be more honors soon for the old skipper. The Board of Trade plans to present him with a gift and an illuminated address in token of his accomplishment. And other organizations will accord suitable recognition to Captain Kean.

He wasn't interested greatly in these matters tonight. The Beothic is in, but the sealing season is not over for her yet. Tomorrow the crew will begin unloading, a task that will keep them occupied for days.

Temperance Notes

(A column of undoubted fact and worthy opinion re the Temperance Situation.

Under the auspices of the Sons of Temperance.)

Receipts And Expenditures

Newspaper-Clipping:---To collect $5,329,788 liquor revenue in four years there was expended in New Brunswick $16,666,844.

The Government collected; the people paid. The citizens of New Brunswick spent more than three times as much as the government received. Out of every $3 invested by the people in booze more than $2 were wasted or worse than wasted, while the Government collected less than $1 for purposes of revenue. This is one of the ways in which modern governments plan to promote provincial prosperity.

The same policy, which would be better called a fallacy, prevails in all Canadian provinces save our own. Here are the fingures for 1930, which may be taken as an average year:---

British Columbia	$19,533,617
Alberta	14,049,210
Saskatchewan	12,888,490
Manitoba	10,632,392
Ontario	55,341,799
Quebec	76,279,366
New Brunswick	4,809,734
Nova Scotia (part year)	621,588
Total	$193,656,199

Nearly $200,000,000 expended on alcoholic beverages by the people of Canada. Of this amount about $85,000,000 went to the provincial and federal government in revenue. Of this the provincial governments received over $30,000,000 and the federal about $55,000,000. After all the expenses of collecting are taken into account, over $90,000,000 went to the privately owned liquor traffic. Out of all this tremendous expenditure, $20.00 for every man, woman and child in the Dominion, it is the Liquor Traffic that gets the largest share. Little wonder that the stocks of these makers of Booze increased rapidly in value. The four largest companies showed a gain of 315 percent in the value of their securities after treatment by the "government control" doctors. The Liquor Traffic gets the receipts and the public pay for the expenditures.

Nor does the cost all appear in dollars and cents. These are not small. It has been conservatively estimated that the cost indirect cost in crime, poverty, vice, jails, asylums, orphanages, penitentiaries, sickness, etc. run into at least as much as the original cost in Booze itself. This runs up a bill equal to the entire cost of federal government for all purposes. But there is a cost that cannot be estimated or expressed in dollars and cents. For it shows itself in blighted homes, wrecked lives, children's suffering, and the degradation and deterioration that follows in the whole traffic. These are items that we cannot pay for, but we can prevent.

WORKING FOR OTHERS, QUEEN FORGETS GRIEF

BRUSSELS, April 20 — Belgium's Dowager Queen Elizabeth will play once again her role of "Queen of Charities" and Queen nurse as she tries to forget her husband's tragic death.

She was back today from Luxemburg, where she recovered her health and spirit at the Grand Duchess Charlotte's Colmar Castle, and began preparations for the birth, expected in May, of a third child to King Leopold III. and Queen Astrid.

The late King Albert left his widow but little money, her private income being estimated at about $9,400, but the Belgian Parliament has voted her an annuity ten times as great. These sums, the Belgians believe, will allow her to devote the rest of her life to comforting the sick and the poor, for, knowing her as they do, it is in these pursuits they believe she will be most satisfied.

She has lost something of the cheery smile she had when she appeared in public, but she will recapture it, the Belgians are certain, when she again becomes engrossed in the work she has favored since girlhood.

Canadian flour mills ground 4,887,102 bushels of wheat during the month of February last, compared with 3,744,957 bushels for the corresponding month of last year.

Egg and Poultry Grading Stressed

Importance of Standard Quality Products Emphasized in Address By Mr. Clarence Sample.

The following address on the egg and poultry industry was given by Mr. Clarence Sample at the weekly dinner of the Y's Men's Club on Thursday night:

During the past decade the poultry industry of Canada has undergone a phenomenal growth until it stands at the present time as fourth ranking Agricultural Industry of the nation. It is conceivable that if a business of this immense population is to continue in its normal trend, the product of the industry must be marketed to the consumers of the country in such a manner as to leave no opportunity for the sale of inferior goods and the consequent falling off in consumption. Eggs in this respect differ materially from the majority of farm products. Some, such as flour, are sold under trade names and the purchaser learns to place his faith in one or more favorite brands. Other products such as fruit, vegetables and meat are sold direct over the counter and the consumer is able to judge the quality of goods he is receiving. With eggs it is different, for over the counter, good and bad eggs look the same. The quality is hidden beneath the shell. In days gone by the housewife's only assurance that the eggs she was purchasing were fresh, was the dealer's word, and the dealer, sincere though he might have been, very seldom actually determined the quality of eggs. To overcome this state of affairs to ensure the housewife that when she wanted Fresh Eggs she could get them, was the problem which faced the Poultry Industry of Canada.

For some time Canada has insisted on the uniform grading of eggs for export trade, realizing that by so doing, it would be possible to build up confidence and a strong market in other countries. Three grades of eggs were established, namely, Extras, Firsts and Seconds. (Grades A, B, and C.) All eggs which were graded and passed for export had a Maple Leaf stamped on the end of each case and very soon an active demand sprang up for these eggs in other countries. Today, Canada's Maple Leaf Eggs stand second to none on the English and Scottish markets.

Grading of Product

Having placed the export trade of eggs on a solid footing, the next step was to give a graded product to the consumers of Canada to ensure them the same satisfaction in purchasing eggs at home, as a foreign importer could receive purchasing eggs here. Accordingly in July, 1923, regulations were introduced requiring that eggs sold to the domestic trade be uniformly graded. The effect has been widespread and highly gratifying. A housewife going to a store to buy eggs has the different grades before her and can purchase according to her own estimation of values. The result is she knows what she is getting and gets what she buys. The bad eggs, which in time gone by, invariably made their appearance, have disappeared. As a result Canada has increased its consumption of eggs yearly since these regulations came in force or operation. In 1901 the per capita consumption of eggs in Canada was 15 dozen and 10. In 1920, twenty years later, an increase of under one dozen of eggs had been recorded, making the per capita consumption of eggs 16 dozen and 8. In 1929, after five years of application of the Egg Grading Regulations by the Dominion Live Stock Branch, the per capita consumption of eggs was 29 dozen and 1, an increase of 12 dozen and 4 in five years. Even this will increase considerably in the course of the next few years.

Now let us consider what effect this policy has upon the province of Prince Edward Island. Prince Edward Island, being an Agricultural Province, has to export the bulk of its poultry products, which makes it very necessary that we cater to this market so that we may compete favorably with other countries, or provinces. Experience has shown us that consumers desire a high quality product and willingly pay a premium for same, while on the other hand we know there is very little demand for the lower qualities. Therefore they only act as a drug on the market. In poultry the demand is for well-fleshed milk-fed birds, and in eggs those which will grade Extras, or Grade A. Knowing these facts, does it not behoove us to follow a policy in this province whereby the largest percentage of our poultry products will grade high, thereby returning us an enhanced price. As I stated before, there is only one method of accomplishing this end, and that is by purchasing poultry products, especially eggs, on a quality basis.

Detrimental Factors

We have approximately 14,000 farmers in this province, and of this number we only have approximately 5,000 selling their eggs on a quality basis, and the majority of these, patrons of the Prince Edward Island Co-operative Egg & Poultry Association. The remainder sell their eggs on a flat rate price which instead of improving the poultry industry, is working to its detriment. Let me explain why:

The old system of purchasing eggs on a flat rate price, as practised by a large number of our merchants, is a practice which should be discouraged. The method is as follows:

A merchant offers 25c a dozen for eggs. This means 25c for good, bad, and indifferent. For instance, you take a dozen eggs to this merchant, and I a dozen made up of stale and bad eggs. I receive the same price as you do. Do you consider this fair? You will naturally say no. Neither it is, because it does not create an incentive for a producer to market quality eggs when he can receive the top price for inferior ones. Twenty years ago Prince Edward Island eggs were of a very low quality and since that time they have steadily improved until today they are second to none in Canada. Make inquiries from persons interested, and they will tell you that this has been brought about by the purchase of eggs on a quality basis. If this name for Island eggs has been accomplished more or less by five thousand farmers, how much greater could we make it if our fourteen thousand farmers were working towards this end?

It would be well for producers to remember that there is always a great demand for high quality eggs and a very poor demand for the lower quality. The poultryman who produces high quality eggs and takes care of them until they are marketed, receives a price which will compensate him for the extra care he has taken, and this he is fully entitled to. The poultryman who markets an inferior product, which is really due to poor management, is penalized. That is, his product will grade lower, and naturally his return price will be smaller. This should be an incentive to him to improve his product so that he may receive the highest price for his poultry or eggs, as the case may be.

The Quality Test

We have a method of determining the quality of eggs. It is based on the principle that light will pass through the shell and reveal the nature of the contents. The instrument used is known as a candling appliance and consists of a dark tube with which light is reflected. The tip of the egg is placed into the end of the tube and the light immediately reveals the entire contents of the egg. New eggs can be distinguished from old ones by the size of the air chamber or cell which is found at the top, or large end of the egg. Quality can be determined by the firmness and comparative invisibility of the yolk. The presence of undesirable qualities such as an off-colored yolk and watery whites, as well as foreign matter such as blood spots or clots, can also be detected. This is the method used for grading eggs.

Very few Prince Edward Islanders realize the value of the poultry industry to this province as a means of livelihood to many, as well as a medium of advertising the province to the rest of the world, so let us consider a few points of interest:

As stated previously, 25 years ago this industry was at a very low ebb, but through better breeding, housing and feeding methods, combined with better marketing service, it has gone ahead year by year, until today it ranks as the third leading industry of this province.

The poultry industry was worth $1,000,000.00 net to the farmers of Prince Edward Island for the past year. In all, approximately three and one-half million dozens of eggs were marketed; four hundred thousand pounds of chicken, two hundred thousand pounds fowl and two hundred and thirty-four thousands pounds of geese. This is not taking into consideration the amount consumed on the Island. When you take into consideration the population and area of the province, this is a feat deserving of much credit to our Island farmers. It would be difficult to find another section of country in Canada duplicating this.

Co-operation Ass'n Commended

In the Prince Edward Island Co-operative Egg and Poultry Association, we have one of the finest co-operative institutions on this continent. This company receives many inquiries as to its organization from all parts of Canada, and even Denmark, United States, England and Sweden. It is a great medium of bringing our province to the attention of the outside world, and Prince Edward Island is known as the Denmark of Canada. Denmark, as you know, is known the world over as the home of co-operation, and co-operative marketing.

Concluding, we can all assist in making this industry still greater, —by the producer keeping pure bred flocks and paying more attention to the management; by the country merchant paying producers for their eggs on a quality basis, which will encourage the marketing of only high quality eggs; and by the consumer purchasing only eggs which have been graded. SPECIALS (Grade A1) or EXTRAS (Grade A) are the very cream of our Canadian eggs, and are used for boiling. FIRSTS (Grade B) may be used for cooking or table use. This grade is made up of smaller eggs which are not of the same high quality as Extras (Grade A). Seconds (Grade C) are used for cooking, but should not be used in preparing mild-flavored dishes. By following these suggestions the consumer is not increasing the cost of eggs to himself, even though he pays three or four cents more for Extras (Grade A), as he is receiving a dozen two ounce eggs of the highest quality. Purchasing just eggs at a stated price, which have not been graded, you may find small and stale ones, and possibly a bad egg, and the price of this one bad egg would more than cover the difference you would have had to pay for the highest grade.

If we follow a few of these suggestions, they will tend to increase the consumption of eggs. The producer will receive a better price, and be encouraged to produce more and better eggs. It will follow that more people will be encouraged to go into poultry raising, thereby giving employment to more of our young people in this province.

Two-thirds of the orange crop of Dominica, British West Indies, was sold in the Maritime Provinces of Canada, the other third going to Bermuda.

MOUNTIES SET RECORD FOR DOG TEAM TRIP

FORT RAE, N. W. T., April 20 — A police patrol team, mushing across the icy expanse of Great Slave Lake, today claimed a new speed record for dog team travel.

Corporal L. Basler and Constable F. Woodman of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police post here, made the speedy trip on a routine run. They took three days to cover the 201 miles, an average of 68 miles a day, and were 26 hours on the trail.

Fort Rae is on the south shore of Great Slave Lake and Fort Resolution on its north arm.

After a two day halt at Resolution, the team made the return trip in the same time. The dogs arrived here in good condition, observers said.
