That we are to be moulded and fashioned, so the sand we use for our castings needs to be moulded and fashioned. That's what our moulders are doing every day, moulding and fashioning the sand like unto the patterns, it is therefore very important that the patterns be first-class in every respect, for as the patterns are so will the castings be. We have first-class pattern-makers employed and are able to meet the required need. Give us a trial when in need of Castings.

PATRIOTISM VERSUS PARTYISM.

There are so many elections, general-Federal, general-Provincial, by-Federal and by-Provincial, that the atmosphere of our fair Dominion is almost constantly filled with the clamor of party strife, the echoes of party battles recently fought, or the trumpet calls to party frays in the near future. An intelligent, fair-minded and patriotic elector attends a political meeting and what does he hear? Mutual recriminations, shouts and challenges of defiance, charges of malfeasance, corruption and treachery, of falsified accounts, shameful neglect, waste of public moneys and needless and grievous burdens heaped upon the people. If the charges are true, then our public men are guilty not of mere misdemeanors but of public crimes. Each party, be it observed, charges the other with all the offences we have enumerated, each charges the other with the same things, while the party followers of each speaker applaud him to the echo, and if perchance "the voices of the men of Israel are louder than the voices of the men of Judah," we know that victory inclines to the faction that shouts loudest and longest.

If from the political meeting and the lucubrations of the party press we turn to the actual polling of votes, what do we find? On the opposing sides the candidates and their lieutenants, pushing, pulling, cajoling, persuading, even bribing with drink or money, or promise of office, or favor, the electors to support the party standard-bearer and the dear party, which being in desires to remain in, or being not desirous to get in. In all this where is the country's interest? Where is patriotism? Is not the country's best interest sacrificed, crucified between the two malefactors of opposing parties?

If we can conceive an ideal State, in which true patriotism was allowed free course—"where none were for the party and all were for the State," how different things would be! Then at election times honest citizens would meet to take grave counsel together for the "public weal,"—not to listen to the mere clamor and recrimination of noisy demagogues. The question at issue would not be, How can we elect our party man and secure a party victory? but, How can we best secure the welfare of the entire community? How can we best provide for needed public services? How can we best guard the civil and religious liberties we have and lead on toward truer nobility in government, better laws and purer manners? Who is the wisest and most patriotic in our midst that he may be chosen a law-maker and a ruler?

It is not thus that citizens take counsel together at election times, and more's the pity. Patriotism is too often wholly forgotten at the very moment when it should be most in evidence. What a veritable chaos was our Legislature at its recent session; what a veritable chaos is the greater Parliament at Ottawa now in session, which ought to be the great and wise Council of our noble Dominion! We submit these thoughts in no pessimistic vein, for Heaven forbid that any Canadian should despair of his country. We submit them to show to thinking men that throughout the Dominion partyism has been carried far beyond its legitimate uses, to become a bane instead of a blessing. Is it not possible that something better can be devised,—some plan by which the earnest, patriotic citizenship of the country, bursting the shackles of party, may take serious counsel together for the country's good?

It will prove a severe test of the strength of the Laurier Government if they can carry Mr. Tarte, with his mouth open, through another election. No three men of the Opposition together could do so much to weaken the hold of Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the English-speaking Provinces as this one injudicious lieutenant is doing.
