Critical Stage In Sydney Steel Prospects Seen

By DAVE MACINTOSH (Canadian Press Staff Writer) (Advance) — SYDNEY, N.S., July 9 — (CP) — The United Mine Workers' recent memorandum to Trade Minister Howe on expansion of the Nova Scotia steel industry has started a hum of speculation in this steel city.

Many persons are asking: "Can Sydney some day become the greatest steel centre in the world?"

The blast furnaces and open hearths of Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation now are rolling out about 60,000 tons of steel a month, almost a 20 per cent increase over a year ago. The Sydney mills are producing some 28 per cent of Canada's total basic steel output.

The U.M.W. brief brought out what a good many industrialists and financiers have been thinking about for some time. In fact, some have been swinging into action.

Expansion of the Nova Scotia steel industry will depend on several factors. Chief among these is the gradual working out of the Mesabi iron range in Minnesota. Mesabi is given about another 20 years.

The problem then will be a new and big source for iron. To many, this has already been solved — the seams of iron deposits that straddle the northern Quebec-Labrador border. A good deal of Canadian and American capital, particularly American, has already been thrown into development of the northern iron deposits.

Plans have been laid for a railway from central Labrador to Seven Islands on the north shore of the St. Lawrence. Seven Islands is about 400 miles east of Montreal and 400 miles west of Sydney.

To Atlantic Seaboard

To save on long hauls from Seven Islands to inland steel plants, it is likely that the Canadian and American steel industries will tend to move to the Atlantic seaboard.

This is the exact point where Sydney comes into the picture. Doco's mills are at tidewater. From them finished steel can move to the St. Lawrence and into the heart of the continent or east to Europe.

The U.M.W. said there is ample evidence to indicate that American interests control or may shortly control Doco's huge steel and coal empire. It added that the Quebec-Labrador iron deposits were possibly entirely in the hands of American firms represented by M.A. Hanna Company of Cleveland, National Steel Corporation and other affiliated concerns.

blast furnaces in its backyard and a plant at tidewater.

All this seems to indicate that Sydney can become a steel city without parallel in Canada and perhaps assume the position now held by American cities like Pittsburgh.

But to the U.M.W. and other organizations, a key question is: Will the mills be Canadian- or American-owned?

The U.M.W. has urged the government to prevent the industry from falling into foreign hands "in the interests of our national independence."

It added: "The maintenance of the economic and political independence of Canada is a matter of grave concern to Canadian workers. ... Nova Scotia's particularity have had long and sad experience in having one of their major sources of livelihood controlled by people who are impervious to Nova Scotia's needs and public opinion."

FAULT-FINDING IS UNPLEASANT HABIT

One habit which an older woman should get rid of at any cost is that of finding fault with others. The danger of fault-finding, besides being an unpleasant personality trait, is that this habit invites aging lines to a face. The set line the mouth takes when a woman indulges in unfriendly criticism is aging. The coldly critical expression which creeps into a woman's eyes when she finds fault with her family or friends has so often the effect of hardening her face that this look should be avoided at any cost of effort.

On the other hand, a woman whose experience has taught her to be tolerant of the minor quirks of human nature is apt to be rewarded by her display of sympathy. The smile in her eyes and on her lips is invariably warming and beautifying to her face. Moreover, her personality is apt to be made warmer and richer by her expressions of generosity and tolerance.

"LIAR AGAINST TRUTH"

A warlock in northern England or Scotland is a wizard, sorcerer or enchanter. The Old English word means a "liar against the truth."
