Committee Will Arrange Natal Day

SYDNEY, N. S., Aug. 30.—(C.P.)—Although there is little prospect that the mystery of 148 years standing as to the exact date of the founding of Sydney will be cleared up, there is every reason to believe a satisfactory civic "Natal Day" will be every reason.

Unless startling new evidence should be turned up by the committee during its researches, it is considered probably the "actual date" choice will narrow down to three possibilities:

May, 1784—When the first British settler raised his log cabin on the banks of Muggah's Creek.

September 1, 1785—When the Governor of Cape Breton, Major F. W. DesBarres, formally proclaimed the infant capital and invited immigrants.

April 23, 1785 (St. George's Day)—As nearer the time when DesBarres Settlers actually began operations on what is now Battery (or Barrack) Point, Victoria Park.

Of the three possible dates, the only one actual established by existing documentary evidence is September 1, when DesBarres, having cleared the land, erected buildings and established a garrison, sent out the following proclamation: "A tract of land covered with valuable timber extending several miles into the country, situated on the eastern shore of Sydney harbor, is set apart and laid out on a plan calculated to become an opulent settlement for reception and accommodation of families intending to carry on the fishing trade and tannery, and particularly adapted for establishing a whaling business on a large scale. Premiums will be allowed at the same rate and for the same periods of time as have been allowed to like Loyalists in Nova Scotia, to commence from the day of their arrival in the government, when they will also receive a supply of implements and materials for building."

Sydney, however, had been in existence for several months before this document was posted. The founders of Sydney were Loyalists from the United States. They came to Cape Breton late in the year 1784 under the leadership of Hon. Abraham Cuyler, formerly mayor of Albany, N. Y., and since the newly appointed governor had not arrived, the colonists spent the first winter at Louisburg.

In the spring under the leadership of DesBarres, who had already selected a site for his capital, they moved in a body to the present location of Sydney and commenced the work of clearing the land. So little was the significance of the date regarded that in subsequent years it has entirely disappeared. The town site was staked out on an elaborate plan by the army engineer, Tait, and barracks commenced for reception of six companies of the 33rd Regiment, which had arrived from Halifax under the command of Lieut. Colonel Yorks. According to a faithful chronicle of the expedition, Yark's men, as well as officers of the civil government, had long to reside in tents and shanties of the meanest description.

DesBarres estimated the total population of Cape Breton Island at date of proclamation, 1785, at 800, but so effective was his primitive "ad" for settlers that within a few months 3,398 more Loyalists had joined the Sydney colony.

Unlike such settlements in North America, the settlers all worked for the government in clearing a general site, instead of each man choosing a site and building for himself. The town was carefully planned on regular city lines, and afterwards granted in parcels to those who cleared it, and others. There was no scarcity of land, and the liberal ideas of the army engineers in regard to its use are still perpetuated in various features of the old town layout.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. HARVEY STERNS

The death occurred at her home in this city Thursday of Mrs. Sterns, widow of the late Harvey Sterns at the age of 71 years.

Although the deceased had not enjoyed robust health for several months past and was confined to her bed for the past two months, her passing was wholly unexpected and came as a great shock to her family.

Of a most loveable disposition the late Mrs. Sterns whose maiden name was Elvira Cairns, enjoyed a large circle of friends who made frequent visits and spent many happy hours in her company. She was ever ready to extend sympathy and a helping hand to all in trouble and by her kindly advice smooth over rough places for her friends.

She leaves to mourn two sons and one daughter, viz., Harry and May at home and Thornton in Boston.

Two brothers and two sisters survive: Mrs. S. E. Wright, Newton, Mass., Florence and Adelbert at home and John H. in Vancouver. Her husband predeceased her last June.

The funeral will be held from her late residence 191 Kent Street, this afternoon, service starting at 2 o'clock.

MR. JAMES MCLEAN

In the early morning hours of Thursday, June 8th, Mr. James McLean, a very highly esteemed resident of Brookfield passed peacefully away at the comparatively early age of 49 years.

The deceased had been in his apparently usual good condition of health and was busy with his work every day. No one ever suspected that there was any weakness in his rugged constitution. Because of this all were greatly shocked when it was learned that Mr. McLean had suddenly passed away. It is generally believed that heart trouble was the cause of his death. Anyway, on the morning of the above mentioned date when his loved ones entered his bed room, they found that his gentle spirit had taken its homeward flight.

Mr. James McLean was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm McLean, Brookfield, and was one of a family of seven members. Of these seven, five survive the deceased. These are Mrs. David McCleave, Stewiacke, N.S.; Mrs. Frank Constantine, Medford, Mass.; Mrs. Benj. Beers, Dorchester, Mass.; Mrs. Lincoln Lewis, Nantucket, Mass., and Miss Annie McLean at home. Another brother Daniel McLean passed away some twenty-six years ago.

Mr. McLean was a young man of strong and noble character and was held in high esteem by all who knew him. He will be much missed by a large circle of relatives and friends.

The funeral, which was a very large one, was conducted by Rev. G. Carlyle Webster in the unavoidable absence of his Minister, Rev. R. Hensley Stavert. The pall bearers were Messrs. Angus McLean, Stirling McLean, Samuel Drummond, Thomas Drummond, Walter McLeod and George Stetson. Interment was in the Presbyterian Cemetery, Brookfield.

A lady driver stopped one day at a garage and said, "I see that you charge batteries here." "Yes madam." "Well, I'd like you to put a new one in my car, please . . . and charge it to my husband."

CLEANING MIRRORS Mirrors are easily cleaned by wiping them over with a cloth well wetted with methylated spirit. Rub dry and then polish with a wash leather. Mirror should always be kept bright. Paraffin does quite well instead of the spirit. Less Work for Mother Children's rompers and playthings for summer may be made of crinkly crepe which requires no ironing and thus save mother quite a lot of hot work during the summer months. cereals, flour, cornmeal, etc., should be bought in small quantities as they are very apt to become wormy or rancid, no matter what care is taken of them.
