FOR WALL STREET SUCCESS.

Just a Few of the Qualifications Necessary if One is to "Beat the Game."

The clergyman who says that he can take a $100 bill, a pencil and a pad and make a fortune in Wall Street recommends the process only to those who possess the important qualifications. They must know the game. Given that, the rest is easy. To know the game thoroughly it is necessary to be in the confidence of the board when ten per cent. dividends are to be declared; to learn ahead of the crowd what stock is next to be marked up on the strength of rumors of dividend guarantees; what bankrupt road is to be sold to a system; what manipulation the bull pool is about to undertake, and to have other advance information equally helpful. It is given to few to possess this knowledge, no doubt by a wise provision of nature which permits the many to be sacrificed that the most fit may survive. If it were possible for any one with a $100 bill to become a Wall Street millionaire the aggregation of swollen fortunes would menace the republic. Doubtless in the case of the clergyman in question the gain to the ministry involved the loss of a magnum to the financial world. But for the ordinary run of speculators there is no place where a little learning is so dangerous a thing as in Wall Street.

MULES DON'T HANDLE

While Secret is in Knowing How to Do It, According to Army Officer.

Horse and mule men at the stock yards stood in admiration the other afternoon while the soldiers of Battery A and B, Second United States Artillery, loaded 12 cars of mules in 25 minutes. It was a new record on the loading docks, and it wasn't accomplished by any unusual methods either. Nor was the mule driver's vocabulary resorted to. How did they do it? The lieutenant simply called the roll and the mules responded to their names. "Nigger," called an officer, and a little black and white mule ambled up. "Now, Mollie, you're next," now Cyclone," and Cyclone came like a cyclone.

If a mule was refractory a few men in khaki took hold of him and pushed and shoved him into place. "No wonder," said an envious mule driver, "they know their mules; they couldn't do them all that way." "That so?" said a non-commissioned officer. "I guess we could. It's all in knowing how. You never want to touch around a mule. Never look back when you leave him. After you know how, mules are easier to handle than horses."—Kansas City Times.

How the Baby Bird Flew.

J. M. Barrie has a little fable in one of his works about a baby lark asking its mother to teach it to fly. The mother thought hard about how she herself had learned to fly long ago last year, but all she could recall was that you suddenly do it. "Wait till the sun comes out after the rain," she said, half remembering. The rain came and glued the bird's wings together. "I shall never be able to fly nor to sing," it wailed. Then of a sudden it had to blink its eyes for a glorious light had spread over the world. The baby bird's breast swelled, it did not know why, and it fluttered from the ground. It did not know how. "The sun has come out after the rain," it trilled. "Thank you, thank you," it floated up crying. "Thank you."

An Optical Illusion.

Did you ever try to see through your hand? By following these directions you may at least make yourself believe you are looking right through the palm. Out of a piece of pasteboard about five inches square roll a tube. Have one end just large enough to fit around the eye, and the other a little smaller. Take the tube between the thumb and fingers of the right hand; put the larger end to your eye, and press your left hand against the smaller end. Keep both eyes open. Objects beyond the left hand will be plainly visible, and there will appear to be a hole through the center of the palm. It is the uncovered left eye which is actually doing all the seeing, but so far as appearances go, it will seem as if the right eye were seeing, right straight through the left hand.

Well Answered.

During the encampment of several regiments of British soldiers in a certain district the wood and turf used for cooking purposes were carted by the neighboring farmers. One day a donkey-cart full of turf was brought in, the driver being a country lad. As a regimental band was playing, he stood in front of the donkey and held the animal tightly by the head. Some of the "smart ones" gathered round, highly pleased, and the wit of the party asked why he held his brother so tightly. The reply was crushing: "I'm afraid he might enlist."

Well-Stocked.

Last summer a typical down-easter furnished a New York author, who had a cottage in a Maine village, with farm produce. One day when the man called with a wagon-load of vegetables, the author, wishing to make himself agreeable, asked how much stock he kept on his farm. "Five cows and a bull," enumerated the farmer, "and two yokes of oxen, a calf, a heifer, and three shares of Maine Central."—Youth's Companion.

DUELS AMONG SUDANESE ARABS.

Where Pastoral Life Doesn't Always Lead to Peace and Quiet.

The country to the southeast of Tekar, in Africa, is the home of the Hasas; the Hadendos occupy the khors to the south and the plateau to the southwest. Both of these are black Arabs, speaking different languages. The Hasas live almost entirely on sour milk, while the Hadendos are agricultural as well as pastoral. Their dokha and durra, milletlike grains, were ripening in February and being protected from countless swarms of small birds by men who stood on elevated platforms, from which they cracked loudly large whips with palm leaf lashes 20 feet long.

The dress of these Arabs is a cotton sheet held in by a belt in which they carry crooked knives. For other weapons they use sticks, spears and words. Firearms are prohibited, judging by the many scars borne by the men the pastoral life is by no means so peaceful as the poets would lead us to think. Many of the scars come from duels, in which the men at each other alternately in the back ill one cries "Enough!"

Hash.

Some people find fault when eating hash because they don't know what it is. Such souls are simply trying to dodge happiness. Would anybody ever tart upon a journey if they knew the stars were going to leave the track, or that the bridge was sure to collapse? So, indeed, would lovers of hash ever order that most toothsome viand were it not for the delightful uncertainty attached to it—the compelling mystery in which it is wrapped?

Why be wise when perfect happiness lies in ignorance? Hash has stood the test of time, and whatever it is made of, history has yet to place a calamity at its door. Wine has caused the head to rise above the church steeples; pie has ruined the digestive apparatus and hot biscuits have brought the price of nightmares down to a surprisingly low figure; but hash, plain, regular, inoffensive hash, has gone on down the ages and left nothing in its wake but a fond memory and a sweet taste in the mouth. Why worry?

Phenomena Awed Europe.

Europe and Asia were covered by fog during the summer of 1783. Says Gilbert White (letter 109): "The summer of the year 1783 was an amazing and a portentous one . . . for, besides the alarming meteors and tremendous thunderstorms . . . the peculiar haze, or smoky fog, that prevailed for many weeks in this island (England) and in every part of Europe, and even beyond its limits, was the most extraordinary appearance. The heat was intense. Calabria and part of the Isle of Sicily were torn and convulsed with earthquakes." Cowper also refers to this phenomenon, in speaking of "nature, with a dim and sickly eye."

In and Out of Focus.

"I beg a thousand pardons," said the man with the strange eyes, "for not speaking to you the moment I entered the room. I will tell you why. When I enter a room it is almost impossible for me to recognize anybody for a few minutes. My eyes won't focus. When I was a child I had a serious illness. When I finally recovered, my eyes were in this condition, and have remained so ever since."

But just the same she noticed that when the waiter passed with the punch his eyes focused on it correctly every time.

The Kiddies.

The increasing respect for children is beginning to make itself felt on all sides. Little boys and girls are no longer put off with careless words and second rate toys. They are studied with constant thought by parents, scientists devise their playthings, and literary and artistic "celebrities" make the books. Of these things modern children are not unappreciative. If they are growing hypercritical in some directions they are becoming very tolerant in others, and not infrequently they understand their parents' little shortcomings much better than do those humiliated "elders" themselves. —Philadelphia Record.

Have You Been Stung?

Some people have recently been badly "stung" by getting substitutes for Zam-Buk. When they have asked for a box of Zam-Buk, the dealer has produced some line on which he makes more profit, and talked about "Just as good and cheaper," or "One of my own, and I know what's in it," or "Really, the same thing at half the price," etc., etc. When tested, this cheap substitute has, of course, failed to do anything like what Zam-Buk does, but the buyer has, nevertheless parted with his money! You will have to get Zam-Buk eventually. Don't waste money on useless substitutes. The name "Zam-Buk" is protected by law. See it on every packet before paying. If your local dealer should be out of stock, write "Zam-Buk, Toronto." We will mail it by return.

Constipation.

No one need expect to be healthy if the bowels are allowed to become clogged up. A free motion of the bowels daily should be the rule with everyone who aspires to perfect health.

Costiveness or constipation clogs the bowels, chokes up the natural outlet of impure matter, and retains in the system the poisonous effete waste products of nature, causing bad blood, dyspepsia, headache, biliousness, foul humors, pimples, boils, blotches, piles, etc. Burdock Blood Bitters has built up an unrivalled reputation as a cure for constipation and all the diseases which arise from it.

Mr. Burns Woodcock, Nashua, N.H., writes: "For over two years my wife was troubled with constipation. She tried several physicians, but could get no relief, but after taking three bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters she was completely cured and is to-day in good health. My wife and I cannot speak too highly of Burdock Blood Bitters."

DEMOCRATIC LORDS.

(Ottawa Citizen.) A British scientist, insisting that the first born of the family is likely to have defects the younger children escape, argues that the peers should be selected from all the children, and not sit in the House of Lords by virtue of being the first born.

This serves to recall a peculiarity of English nobility which does not obtain upon an English peer's family—a noble. Even the second son of a duke is by law a commoner and bears only the courtesy title of lord, his children not being accorded even that. Winston Churchill, although the son of Lord Randolph Churchill, a younger son of a Duke of Marlborough, is plain Mr. Churchill. Even the royal plain Mr. Churchill carries no nobility in the third generation. The Duke of Connaught's second son, although a prince by courtesy and likely to be made a peer, would nevertheless be a commoner in law and his children would of themselves possess even no courtesy titles.

Elsewhere in Europe all the children are nobles. In France, under the old regime, if a count had ten sons each was a noble by law. So in Germany. This legal and social peculiarity has had much effect upon English history. It prevented any such inbred caste as obtains upon the continent. The House of Lords has by its operation been continuously renewed by large quantities of fresh blood.

ACCIDENTAL DEATHS.

A verdict of accidental drowning was returned at the inquest held at the morgue yesterday on the body of Robt. Shaw, the Grand Trunk Railway call boy, who was drowned in a quarry at the Glen Yards of the Canadian Pacific Railway on Tuesday. Death as the result of an accident was also the verdict returned in the case of M. McCaffrey, a sailor, who died in the General Hospital on Tuesday as the result of injuries received through being struck by an engine at the wharves on Thursday last.
