GROWING SOCIETY—Murray Harbor North Women's Missionary Society met last Wednesday, Mrs. James Kennedy presiding. The Secretary's and Treasurer's reports showed the branch to be in a flourishing state with a substantial balance in hand. Mrs. Edward Henderson was elected as delegate to the fifty-first annual meeting of the W.M.S. of the Presbyterian Church in Canada (East), to be held in St. John, N. B., on the 28th and 29th September. The monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society was held on the same day. Mrs. Benjamin Gledhill presiding. The Secretary Mrs. E. Henderson reported that the Church painting and repairs had been satisfactorily carried out—the cost defrayed by their Society, being $155.89. A cordial vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. James Brook of Murray Harbor, for gratuitous services rendered by him in the painting of the pews.

ST. CATHERINE'S INSTITUTE MEETS—The August meeting of the St. Catherine's Women's Institute met at the home of the President Mrs. Malcolm Morrow, who occupied the chair. There were eight members and twelve visitors present. Mrs. W. R. Shaw who assumed the duties of Secretary in the absence of the latter official read the minutes of the previous meeting which on motion were adopted. A committee was appointed to consult the School teacher with reference to School Fair work. The Secretary reported that the proceeds from the Lawn Party held under the auspices of the Branch amounted to $61.86, after all expenses had been paid. A number of bills were presented, which owing to the Secretary's absence were tabled until the September meeting. A pleasant feature of the evening was an address delivered by Mrs. W. Mutch of Ringwood Institute. Mrs. Mutch gave an excellent report of the Annual Convention, and spoke in general terms of the work, aims and ambitions of women working through the Institute organization. The talk was of a very instructive nature, and delivered in a very charming manner. Needless to say it was greatly enjoyed by those present. A very interesting address was also delivered by Mr. W. R. Shaw who spoke on the World's Poultry Congress from which he had returned a few days previously as the Island's official delegate. The meeting was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem. Lunch was then served and a social hour enjoyed. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Wm. Morrow, roll to be answered with "My way of preserving vegetables for winter use."

BARN DANCE ENJOYED.—The Belfast Public Hall at Eidon was the scene of a barn dance on Tuesday evening, August the 30th. Although the masquerade dresses were few what there were very typical of the farmer and milkmaid. The prizes were awarded to the following: Miss Kathryn Larrabee as the typical farmer and Miss Marion MacWilliams as the Milkmaid. Miss Larrabee is a student at Wolfville Academy and now home on her vacation at Eidon. Miss MacWilliams is a first class school teacher in Brantpe, Mass., and also home on her vacation. Other costumes were worn by Miss Jean McLeod of Bronxville, New York and Miss Donald Putnal of Sackville and Miss Evelyn Jenkins of Charlottetown. There were a number of others but they did not have the real farmer flavor. The management of the Belfast Hall expects in the near future to have another masquerade ball.

GREENWICH WOMEN'S INSTITUTE.—The September meeting of this Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Mina Sutherland, and was attended by ten members and three visitors. The meeting opened by singing O Canada, and roll-call was answered with Recipies. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Then followed a short business discussion. A Pro-gram committee for next month was appointed. An enjoyable program was rendered which consisted of dancing by Miss Dorothy Bertram, also humorous readings and piano selections. Lunch was served by the hostess and after a social hour was spent the meeting adjourned. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ambrose Rattray, and roll-call will be answered with "My Favourite

Royal Mystery Cleared Up

(By British United Press.) PARIS, Sept. 9.—A little old-fashioned lady in black, who lives in a Paris attic, has finally cleared up the greatest historical mystery of modern times.

Ever since the fatal morning of January 30, 1885, when Archduke Rudolf, heir of Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, and Mary Vetsera his beautiful 18-year-old mistress were found dead in the old abbey a Meyerling, near Vienna, that he had converted into a shooting lodge and rendezvous of love, the real cause of this tragedy has been shrouded in mystery.

Princess Elvira of Bohron, who is a niece of the late Empress Elizabeth of Austria, has now given a sensational explanation of this royal scandal.

"I was living with my aunt in Geneva just before she was assassinated there in September, 1898, and she told me the whole history of the Meyerling tragedy," the princess said.

"She said that when the alliance became a public scandal the Emperor came and confessed to her for the first time that he was the father of Mary Vetsera, asking her advice about what they should do to separate the couple.

"The Empress advised him to make the same confession to their son, but the young Rudolf would revolt against carrying on a love affair with his own sister.

"Instead of breaking off his liaison with Mary, as the Empress hoped, Rudolf and Mary decided to die together, and it was the Empress's belief that she was largely responsible for the tragedy which nearly made her insane.

The Meyerling tragedy deprived one of the greatest ecclesiastics of his day of election to the Papacy.

Emperor Francis Joseph, who was a devout Catholic, begged Pope Leo XIII. to authorize an obsequy that Rudolf died by his own hand, religious funeral, despite the fact the Emperor threatened that unless his request was granted he would abdicate.

Cardinal Rampolla, the Secretary of State, was uncompromising in his condemnation of such a course, but Leo, filled with pity finally consented to a religious funeral.

The Emperor learned of Cardinal Rampolla's opposition and never forgave him, and when the cardinal was on the eve of being elected to the chair of St. Peter fourteen years later, the Cardinal Archbishop of Cracow, in the name of the Austrian Emperor, pronounced a formal veto against him, and Cardinal Sarotti, afterwards Pius X., was elected.

He was an exemplary young man, whose whole life was a mirror of virtuous deeds, reflecting most faithfully the example and the precepts that came within his concept. The discharge of duty was his first care and he performed it with a conscientious mind that was inspired by true, moral strength.

Diversion he liked, 'tis true, but only after he had discharged the duty that came before.

Endowed with a most congenial disposition and gifted with rare musical abilities, he was most popular in social connections, and here he was able to enhance the enjoyment of the event by his most congenial affability. Mysterious it is why a young man, so capable of discharging multiplex duty, should so early be removed from the scene of life's activities, but, with faith in the presence of God, we must submit that He knows best, and that He alone can wisely ordain.

But consoling it is to his parents, to his sister and to his brothers to know that he went forth to meet, a Just Judge, with his soul beautifully strengthened by the essential graces of the Last Sacraments. Herein we see the final purpose of creation most beautifully accomplished, and herein we find that strength which sustains the sorrowing family.

His passing has come only a short time before our own, and how glad shall we be to find him awaiting our coming.

His funeral was held on Thursday to St. Mary's Church, Indian River, and included a very large concourse of deploring relatives, and friends. The pall bearers were: James Pen-dergast, Fraser Mann, James Saundgram committee for next month was appointed. An enjoyable program was rendered which consisted of dancing by Miss Dorothy Bertram, also humorous readings and piano selections. Lunch was served by the hostess and after a social hour was spent the meeting adjourned. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ambrose Rattray, and roll-call will be answered with "My Favourite

Rule of the Whip

(By British United Press.) LONDON, Sept. 9.—"Think what it means to be confined in a prison with negroes, depraved women, and the cut-throats of the world. With its shouting, singing, and brutality night and day, it was like being in a mad-house." In these words, Captain Percy R. Brining, of Liverpool, master of the Leyland liner Ninian, described his six weeks' ordeal in a Venezuelan goal into which he was thrown after his ship, through no fault of his own, came into collision with a mooring boat at Puerto Cabello. He was charged in connection with the death of a boatman following the accident.

Captain Brining has now been acquitted, and when he stepped ashore at St. Nazaire on his way to his home at Blundellsands, Liverpool, he was met by his wife.

Relating his experience, Captain Brining said: "The mooring-boat which came into contact with our propellers as we were going astern, had been warned to get away on my instructions. She was under our stern in a place where no one could see her; so naturally we thought, as the warning had been given, that she had gone clear away from the ship.

"You ask me to tell my prison experiences. Well; just look at my arm. Do you see these ugly scars? I have 40 of them all over my body, and on my way home to England the French doctor on board the ship considered it necessary to burn them with red-hot needles.

"I said to him, 'Carry on,' and he did so. Those sores are the result of foul air and lack of exercise. It seems inconceivable that any country claiming to be civilized could allow such conditions as those prevailing in the prisons of Puerto Cabello.

"All the warders had whips, which they used freely. One night, I saw through the bars two prisoners being lashed and beaten with the whips, and then dragged along the floor bleeding and howling. As they lay on the floor a bucket of water was thrown over them.

"I could not use the exercise yard because of the collection of cut-throats who walked there. One day they took me to another prison in the town which dates from the time of Drake. It was a prison reminding me of the tales of the Inquisition. Some of the prisoners were stripped to the waist and dragged heavy chains to their feet."

MOTHER SUMMER.

I like to think that summer is as kindly to the fields and flowers as mothers are to little ones—I like to think that summer hours are tender to the plants that grow beneath the sunshine and the rain—I like to think that summer feeds a pride in growing fields of grain.

I like to think the summer morn is young and sweet and very fair—with laughter on her lovely lips, and blossoms festooned in her hair. A winsome Mother she, the life that hurries all about her way—gentle with her blessed peace and yet for all the peace is gay!

The summer noon is sterner and it prods its brood to keen desires. The sun that lights the mid-day sky is touched with flaming, sudden fires, I think the summer moon has known ambitions that are wide and free; one sees her heart reflected in the burning lantern, the flashing sea!

The summer evening sings a song—a wistful song, a lullaby. The drowsy birds who hear her voice, seek nests; no longer need they fly! The hills are wrapped in amethyst, the little running brook-lets say the prayers that they would tell God, when twilight brings the end of day. The summer evening's hands caress the whole wide world which seems to rest like some small child, worn with play, falls sleeping on a mother's breast!

Divorce For The Asking

LONDON, Aug. 31.—A phenomenal birth-rate figure of 43.6 per thousand of the population has followed the recent loosening of the marriage laws in Soviet Russia, and the granting of divorces at a dollar.

The figure of 43.6 per thousand is two and a half times the birth-rate of Great Britain.

Under the new divorce laws in Russia the man and woman merely go to the local registration office, tell the official that they do not wish to continue as man and wife, pay the fee of two roubles, and a certificate of divorce is immediately handed to them.

It is not even necessary for the two to say they want to be parted. Either one can get the divorce by making application, whether the other agrees or not.

It is this factor which is blamed by many of the experts for the birth-rate reported in the Russian returns. For there is nothing to prevent a man living with one wife for a short time, divorcing her, taking a second wife, divorcing her and then taking a third wife, and so on.

Tax on Short Hair

(By British United Press.) BERLIN, September 9.—The Rhon heights, where the German gliding flights take place every summer, have suddenly come into prominence for a very different matter—nothing other than a campaign against bobbed heads.

A few days ago the village crier paraded the one straggling street of Schwan announcing that the elders in council had decided to levy a tax on women's short hair, in force

With Ham The flavour of baked or boiled Ham, hot or cold, is improved by a dash of freshly mixed Mustard. It brings out all the succulence of the meat for your enjoyment. Try it!

From the day of announcement clothing to lift it above dull care. Such hair is in future permitted only up to the second year of continuation school—sixteen— from which time it is to be paid for at the rate of twenty marks ($5) a year up to the age of twenty. From twenty to thirty it will cost thirty marks. After thirty bobbed and shingled heads are free.

The argument is that women of that age are merely either eyesores or delights to their husbands, and not provocative to the peace of the community.

Why should the Christian ever attempt to take God's responsibilities from Him? Or again, why should the Christian ever fear or wonder whether God is going to meet His responsibilities? A Christian writer has said: "The disciples are concerned about the future. They tremble for the little flock which they are asked to believe is destined for a world-wide triumph but had not sufficient food and clothing to lift it above dull care. And the Master points them, not to the sage who knows how to endure, nor to the prophet who knows how to fling the glorifying light of eternity upon the dark places of time, nor to the statesman who can save a distressed cause by his sagacious counsel, but to the little of the field, which he does not spin; and yet I say unto you, that Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. As we ponder the miracle of the glory of the lily it comes to us that, however important toiling and spinning are in their proper sphere, they none the less belong to the circumference rather than to the centre. At the heart of life rules the law of the lily." The lily unconsciously trusts God. We are to do it consciously. It is a safe risk! "Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which today is, and to-morrow is cast into the oven, shall He not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?"—Sunday School Times.
