THE REMOVAL OF A DIRELICT.

Harbor Master White would like to have this port kept free from old hulks, direlicts and other unsightly objects and nuisances, and has exercised commendable diligence to that end. But the shattered, charred and half sunken remains of the old ferry steamer Elfin which lies beside the wharf at the foot of Prince Street has so far baffled his skill and his good intentions in that regard. The reason for this is that a coil of complications surround the old hulk.

Citizens have wondered why this old direlict has been allowed to cumber the harbor front for years. Some of them have written letters to the newspapers about it. The Guardian has grappled with the subject on several occasions, and still down to the present there has been nothing visibly done or doing to abate the nuisance. And yet the universal feeling of every self-respecting citizen who visits the harbor front is that discredit is being put upon the city and the port every day that the old hulk is allowed to remain where it is.

The facts appear to be that the Elfin, which was the property of the Provincial Government, having become unfit for further service, was laid up, and subsequently sold to Thomas Doyle of Rustico. That was in the days of Premier, the late Hon. Arthur Peters. Later there was a fire by which the steamer was partially destroyed. Then some dredging was done in the vicinity under contract with the Dominion Government and the steamer was moved from its former position without the consent of the purchaser, and when she sunk was consequently in deeper water than would otherwise have been. But although the steamer had been sold, and we believe paid for, no transfer on the registry books had been made.

As The Guardian is informed the Elfin is still on register as the property of the Provincial Government, and on this and the ground of the interference of the dredging contractor, the purchaser, Mr. Doyle, disclaims responsibility for the encumbrance to the harbor as it stands. This information The Guardian has only at second hand, not having had any communication with Mr. Doyle on the subject. The case being thus complicated and the question of actual or legal ownership in doubt, what is to be done?

The Provincial Government must have some concern in the matter. The wreck is still enregistered as the property of the Government, and lies in water controlled by the Government. It would seem that the failure to have the registry changed when the steamer was sold was by neglect of the Government of that time, for which the present Government must be more or less answerable. Be that as it may, the general feeling is that the Government ought under the circumstances to have the wreck removed, whether it be in all respects legally liable for present conditions or not.

We direct the attention of the Premier to the matter. We believe he wants to do what is right and is not insensible to the fact that the fair fame of both the port and the Province are involved. Our harbor, while thus encumbered, is open to the ships of all nations. We have had here since this wreck has been lying where it is, visiting warships of the United States, France, Germany, the British navy and the Canadian navy, all of which were anchored in full view of this unsightly and obstructive nuisance. Surely this cannot be permitted to go on for years to come. Apparently things will remain as they are unless the Government takes action as it is hoped may be promptly done.

THE AEROPLANE IN WAR.

Claude Graham White, the famous aviator, has written the Strand Magazine setting forth what he conceives must be the great utility of the aeroplane in war. He affirms that the development of the aeroplane has been so rapid that it is becoming a reliable means of communication. Now a machine bearing a pilot and two passengers can fly for several hours without descending, and at a speed exceeding that of the fastest motor car. It can fly with safety in a wind of twenty-five, thirty or even thirty-five miles an hour.

Mr. White quotes M. Berteaux, the new War Minister of France as saying, "The aeroplane has become the most admirable of modern engines of war." France has already two hundred military aeroplanes, and a trained corps of army airmen. Germany has a hundred and is training pilots. Russia is buying three hundred and has scores of army officers attending the French flying schools. And in face of this activity in this line among foreign nations Great Britain has as yet but ten military aeroplanes and is doing but little to train air scouts. And yet, says Mr. White, "it has been demonstrated that one aeroplane scout can perform in one hour more observation work than would occupy cavalry for a whole day and do it more efficiently."

FREE PULP WOOD.

President Taft promptly signed the reciprocity bill passed by Congress and a fraction of the agreement will go into effect at once. This refers only to the free admission to the United States of Canadian wood pulp, paper and paper board. British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec impose export duties on pulp wood cut on the crown lands of those Provinces respectively. Such wood will not be admitted free of duty, but from the private lands of the Provinces named, and from both public and private lands of the other Provinces there will be free admission. The great desire of American publishers to get Canadian wood pulp no doubt contributed greatly to make the American press so almost unanimous for reciprocity as it was. Free pulpwood will not affect this Province at all. New Brunswick will shortly put on an export duty, so that probably no great harm will come of the change, and some advantage may result. In any case Congress has full power to admit pulp wood free of duty, or anything else that Canada produces, quite apart from any agreement or consent on our part.

THE PARLIAMENTARY CRISIS IN BRITAIN.

LONDON, July 27—The banner of revolt against the party leaders is raised. Last night at a dinner given in honor of the Earl of Halsbury several hundred Unionist peers, members of the Commons and party workers filled the largest dining hall in London and cheered the policy of resistance.

A letter from Joseph Chamberlain was read in which he said, "I heartily support the object of the meeting. The country owes a great debt to Lord Halsbury."

The final solution of the political crisis in uncertain but it may be assumed that Messrs. Balfour and Lansdowne will remain the leaders of the Unionist party. 230 peers declare themselves supporters of Lansdowne's policy and that they will allow the parliament bill to pass under protest. The number adhering to Halsbury is not known but it is believed that it will not exceed 130.

RECIPROCITY BILL IS SIGNED BY PRES. TAFT.

WASHINGTON, July 27—Speaker Clark and Vice-President Sherman signed the Canadian reciprocity bill yesterday. It was at once ratified by the President, who immediately signed it.

Instructions for the administration of so much of the law as is effective till the whole agreement is ratified by the Canadian Parliament were telegraphed to the customs collectors along the Canadian border.

Until the Canadian Parliament has ratified the agreement only Section Two which covers wood pulp, paper and paper board will be effective.

The regulations provide free entry to all such imuorts from private lands or from crown lands, provided no export tax has been levied.

British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec impose export duties on wood. New Brunswick will do so after October 1st.

CALMER TONE REGARDING THE MOROCCAN SITUATION

BERLIN, July 27—The tone of the newspapers in discussing the Moroccan question is much calmer this morning. The Lokal Anzeiger, however, says that Germany is not inclined to permit much wanton and frivolous intervention as is preached in the English press and warns meddlesome disturbers to keep their hands off.

KEITH'S MAGAZINE.

Keith's Magazine for August has come to hand and for valuable information is unsurpassed. Some splendid interior views are given of the modern dining room, showing the saving of space and material made possible by the modern wall bed which is gaining such popularity in the larger cities especially where flats are so crowded. Construction details of the home are aptly given and the plans so arranged that they can be easily followed by the practical workman. The ladies will be interested in the fine designs, given for Fornordisk embroidery in tapestry effects. This work is most fascinating and looks like old world tapestry when finished. The Garden comes in for special mention and is dealt with in a lucid manner telling how the flowers may be kept for late fall. No up-to-date home should be without this popular magazine published by Max L. Keith, Minneapolis, Minn.

SPENT A FORTUNE HER BODY MAY LIE IN POTTERS FIELD

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 25—Mrs. Carolyn Hazelton, who for the past twenty years had spent money lavishly in several so-called Bohemian sets in New York, is dead here and may be burried in the potters' field. She died at the Hotel Raleigh last Wednesday and her body lies at the establishment of a local undertaker, who has sought in vain for some friend of Mrs. Hazelton to come forward to defray the burial expenses.

Dudley Shaw, of New York, who was seen often on the broad walk with Mrs. Hazelton, left Atlantic City a few days before Mrs. Hazelton died and has not been back since. Although Mrs. Hazelton numbered among her acquaintances Mrs. Frank Leslie Vallin, the pianist, and many others of note, it has been impossible to find anybody to contribute enough money to permit of the carrying out of the dying woman's last request.

On her death bed she told the servants she wished her body to be cremated and that the ashes be taken to her beloved New York and scattered from the top of the Statue of Liberty. As no provision is made in the State for the cremation of persons dying penniless, the authorities fear that Mrs. Hazelton will be buried in the Potters' Field.

Mystery surrounds the antecedents of the woman. It is known that she was about sixty-five years old, although she dressed always in the fashion suitable to women many years her junior. She was much in the society of musicians, and two years ago went abroad at the same time that Vallin, the pianist, did. Just before going abroad Villin was here accompanied by Mrs. Hazelton. One day several men who were bathing threw the pianist into the ocean, where he almost drowned. In explanation of their action the men said the pianist's conduct on the beach had been objectionable to them.

Mrs. Hazelton visited Atlantic City frequently and always paid promptly for the apartments she occupied in the various hotels. At one time she said she was in receipt of an annuity of $25,000. The source of this annuity is not known and since Mrs. Hazelton's death the authorities have been unable to get trace of any person who can furnish information on this point. One day last week Mrs. Hazelton said she had money on deposit in the Lincoln Trust Company in New York.

The illness from which she died attacked her without warning. She was ill only a few days and until a few hours of her death she thought she would recover.

Persons from New York who are here say that Mrs. Hazelton spent a large amount of money in that city and formerly entertained lavishly.
