

TALKS 10 MILES WIRELESS WONDERS OF AEROPHONE

How Englishman's New Discovery Will Make Every Man His Own Telephone Exchange

CHEPSTOW, ENGL., Sept. 25.—It is only a few years since Marconi taught the world the wonders of wireless telegraphy. To-day we are on the eve of the perfection of a new discovery which will almost place Marconi's historic invention among the commonplace—a system of wireless telephony by which men can speak to one another thru the heart of a great mountain, and generals armed with the magic box can converse with officers at diverse parts of a field of battle.

Matthews has found the means of entrapping the sounds on their journey, and his discovery promises to be one of the greatest of our national assets.

Mr. Matthews, who gives the impression of a keen man of business rather than an inventor, told of these wonders after he returned here from a long day's experience with two of the directors of the syndicate which had been formed to further the future of the "aerophone," as he has christened it.

Mr. Matthews was engaged with the electric engineers during the Boer war, and therefore is in a position to judge of its utility. The war office has already recognized this fact, and the aerophone will be judged by them in forthcoming tests at Aldershot.

A direct and immediate means of communication between those in command, said Mr. Matthews, "would almost revolutionize warfare. All the time during a large engagement the generals would be able to tell each other exactly what was happening in their special sections, while those besieged in cities could communicate with the outside world."

Another important use it could be put to is that of communicating from the lowest depths of mines. No rock is too solid, no wall too thick, for the vibrations of the voice to pass thru and be caught up by the receiving instrument. In a mining disaster the entombed, by the aid of the instrument, could talk with the outer world and inform the rescuers where they could locate them.

Mr. Matthews has given practical demonstrations of this here, speaking thru dense masses of rock. He has an aeroplane installed in his motor boat on the Wye, and can order his boat from the bank when he requires it.

Naturally, the working of his invention is a deep secret, for if it once became known every nation in the world would immediately be interested. Of this Mr. Matthews would not talk, save to say that his invention is the outcome of a long study of air currents.

The voice travels thru the air in rippling waves, and what he has achieved is the control of the direction of these waves by means of electricity, so that they are attracted by the receiving machine wherever it may be. It is very different, he explained, from Marconi's system of telegraphy.

He hopes shortly to communicate between Chepstow and Cardiff.

The patrons of the opera house tonight have a treat in store when they witness Sydney Grundy's masterpiece "A FOOL'S PARADISE."

Mr. Grundy is conceded to be England's greatest modern dramatist, and his work in the above play proves unquestionably, his master-mind.

As the title suggests—the hero thinks that his "Paradise" contains no serpent yet the dramatist easily proves the fallacy of this statement, and the clever manner in which he brings about denouement is not only unique in construction but wholly unexpected.

As Kate Derwent, Edith Warren finds her most difficult role, due to the fact that she appears simplicity itself, while in reality her keen foresight of human nature makes Kate a character not only charming, but usual.

The story deals with a woman who married the man she does not love and does not hesitate, even at midnight, to leave him. The means she employs in trying to bring about the death of her husband, are so cleverly veiled, that even the eminent physician "Sir Peter Lund" who is in attendance, finds himself almost baffled.

Various criticisms state that never before has the theme of poisoning a man by arsenic been more skillfully handled.

Miss Revel as the wife and Mr. Oliver as the great physician will surprise their audience by two novel characterizations, absolutely foreign to anything their many friends have seen them portray.

Contemplate!

Do not weigh anything in a second, but take a second thought when a druggist or dealer asks you to accept a substitute for DR. FOWLER'S Extract of Wild Strawberry.

This preparation has been on the market for over 65 years, and so far as we know has never yet failed to either relieve or cure the worst case of DIARRHOEA, DYSENTERY, COLIC, CRAMPS OR PAINS IN THE STOMACH, CHOLERA MORBUS, CHOLERA INFANTUM, SUMMER COMPLAINT, OR ANY LOOSENESS OF THE BOWELS.

Mrs. A. J. McLellan, London, Ont., writes:—"It is with much pleasure I write to say that I have used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry with great success. Last summer my little boy, 18 months old, was attacked two or three times with Diarrhoea, but each time, after one day's doses, he was all right again. My husband was also taken bad one night. The next day three doses cured him. I always insist on Dr. Fowler's being given me."

If you want to be on the safe side, ask for Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and insist on getting what you ask for.

The original is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. See that our name is on the wrapper. Price 35 cents.
