BURIAL IN P. E. I.—The Moncton Transcript of April 9 says: The death of a former resident of this city, who numbered many hundreds of friends in her wide circle of acquaintances, was noted with deep regret here today, when word was received of the passing at the home of her daughter in Pasadena, California, last evening, of Mrs. George McSweeney. Mrs. McSweeney, whose husband was well known here as the proprietor of the Brunswick hotel for many years, had been living with her daughter, Mrs. Harold Dumoulin Smith, in California, for the winter months, although she had of late years been spending the summers in the Maritime Provinces. She had been ill only a week, according to word received by the Messrs. McSweeney, 80 Dufferin St. The late Mrs. McSweeney was, before her marriage, Miss Beatrice LeFurgey, daughter of the late Hon. John LeFurgey, of Summerside. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. H. D. Smith of Pasadena, and a son, J. J. McSweeney, stockbroker of Montreal. In addition one brother, A. LeFurgey of Vancouver and three sisters, Mrs. J. Brennan, of Montreal; Mrs. J. E. Wray of Summerside; and Mrs. D. Roberts of Davenport, Iowa, survive. The body will be brought to Summerside and interment will take place in the family plot in the cemetery at that place.

Would Deport Foreign Born Communists

(Canadian Press)

TORONTO, Ont., April 11.—Suggestion that foreign-born communists should be deported to their own countries was made by Major-General J. H. MacBrien, Commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, addressing veterans of the 76th battalion at a "Vimy night" reunion Saturday.

General MacBrien deplored tendency to "deprecate the Canadian corps and what it did in the war." He criticized people who "belittle the victory and say the war was useless."

Prince Nicholas Will Not Compromise

BUCHAREST, April 11.—(A.P.)—Another kink was twisted today into the much tangled domestic affairs of the Rumanian royal family when Prince Nicholas, brother of King Carol, stubbornly refused to renounce his morganatic wife, the former Mme. Lucia Deletu.

As a result the status of the Prince's November wedding in 1931 remains where it was—non-existent in the eyes of the supreme court of Rumania.

The impasse came again to public notice recently when the young Prince left Bucharest for France with his bride. He was summoned back by Carol for another conference, arriving on Saturday by aeroplane.

The Prince remained in the palace this morning. Carol presided over a meeting of the council of ministers.

In the midst of the session, Premier Jorga, accompanied by Arge Tolanu, Minister of the Interior, departed for the palace to negotiate with Nicholas, but after a long discussion, returned empty-handed.

It was reported the Prince stubbornly refused to compromise the issue if it involved renunciation of Madame Deletu.

Carol on the other hand was reported as unwilling to carry out his threat to formally deprive Nicholas of all his royal rights and privileges. Nicholas was expected to leave shortly for Paris, where, presumably, he left his wife when he came back to talk over his marriage.

Rev. E. M. Aitken Delivers Two Fine Addresses

(Sydney Post)

The services in St. Andrew's United Church on Sunday were featured by large congregations and eloquent discourses by the pastor, Rev. E. Melville Aitken, B. A., formerly of Malpeque, P. E. I.

In the morning the subject was "The Church Behind Closed Doors", from the text John 28-19. In the evening the service of praise was led by a male choir under the direction of Prof. Fletcher, formerly of Charlottetown.

The subject of the pastor's discourse was "A Monument to Defeat", based on the text, Gen. 11-4. This was the fifth sermon in this series on the book of Genesis. He said in part: "With monuments we always associate victory but never defeat. The text tells of one that has stood down through the ages as one to defeat. It is commonly called the Tower of Babel. As the writer of the Book of Genesis looked about the world of his day, long after civilization had spread beyond the Euphrates Valley, he saw many different races with different languages—they are not of one color, the question came to him, 'Why—what is the meaning of it; what is the step that bridges the gap between one race and many; what caused the dividing and the scattering? Another attempt is made to build a civilization from the one surviving family—that of Noah. Will they forget the lesson of the flood? Time has passed and there are now many more families. They have been prosperous—they have not forgotten God but they have interpreted religion merely in outward things. They have not yet discovered that God demands the surrender of the whole inner life. That second civilization developed considerable strength and gathered material prosperity. They are beginning to lose sight of the lesson of the flood. When Noah set foot on the land following the flood, he built an altar and there bowed in worship and pledged his loyalty to God, but these people set to work to erect a great tower, so strong and massive as to reach the very heavens, believing that in its erection they would find life's satisfaction and remaining long after them to do honor to their name and memory. Instead of faith reaching upward and upward toward God they are going to depend on stone and dispense with faith altogether. God seeing that they are only wasting life's opportunities causes confusion in their ranks and scatters them to and fro, by bringing them to realize a sense of dissatisfaction and scattering in all directions, thus creating the nucleus from which the different tribes had come. They gave up in despair. Thus was their monument one of defeat instead of victory. As the voice of experience speaking out of the past to the present through the story of the city and Tower of Babel, it sounds first a message of warning reminding us that danger lurks in material success. We may smile at the idea of building a tower to heaven but in our lifetime we have seen a generation attempting things equally as foolish. Following the conclusion of the war our generation went mad with materialism and when we thought we were about to realize our desires, confusion entered our ranks and instead of materialism being a monument to give us a great name it stands as a ghastly deserted structure—a monument to defeat. God's highest purposes being spiritual, man cannot find life's satisfaction in material structures. They cannot support faith in God and His purposes. Too often we interpret life in terms of an opportunity to glorify and dress up self instead of glorifying God and any monument erected by man to such purpose stands for defeat. The only one that in the light of eternity stands for victory is that of Christian character, not without but within. The only one that will reach to heaven and make for us a great name is portrayed in the words of R. L. Werry:—

"To mould my life that daily it may be More like the pattern Jesus left for me, My duty, clearly, in His will to see— And win my Lord's 'well-done.' This is my task."

Assassins Object To Modern Inflation Policy

BERLIN, April 11.—(A.P.)—Two men who tried to assassinate Dr. Hans Luther, President of the Reichsbank, last night, today herded the police a signed statement that they had conspired to shoot the former Chancellor.

Dr. Luther suffered a trifling wound below the elbow at the hands of Dr. Max Rossen, 58 year old native of Argentina. He was accompanied by Werner Kertscher, 34, a native of Tauringia, Germany.

Dr. Luther proceeded to Basle and was little concerned with the affair except to see that the men were handed over to the police.

"We are prepared to stand trial," the statement said, and both will appear before an examining judge on Monday.

Rossen gave his last address as Hamburg, where he formerly practiced law. Police quoted him orally as saying that he and Kertscher objected to the "deflation policy" of the Reichsbank and wanted a "moderate inflation policy."

"Our Prince"

LONDON, April 8.—Mrs. Livesey, who lives in a two-room cottage in Park Place, down in West Ham's overcrowded slums, sat by the fire with her feet in a bowl of water yesterday afternoon. On her lap her 9-month-old baby slept. Then through the window Mrs. Livesey saw a young man pushing aside the washing hanging out on the line and coming toward her cottage.

Before she could do anything about it there was a knock at the door, and there stood the Prince of Wales on the doorstep, asking: "May I come in please?" So in he came—and Mrs. Livesey, because she was bathing her feet and the baby was asleep and everything, could only stammer in her astonishment an invitation to the Prince to "have a look around upstairs if you like, sir." When he came down he chatted to Mrs. Livesey, asked the baby's name and allowed her thought it a "fine little kiddie."

Four Hours Of Visiting In Slums

That was just one incident in the day of the Empire's most versatile citizen. He spent four hours closely investigating slum conditions with the mayor of West Ham, dropping in casually at half a dozen cottages where four or six people live in one or two rooms, asking questions, having a cheery word with all and sundry and shaking hands with the poorest of the poor in their parlors and sculleries.

Then he went to the Master Mariners Company's dinner at the Mansion House and joined with 300 weather-tanned ship captains in a rollicking sea chanty chorus.

That was a night for sailormen to remember indeed. There at the top table in the historic Mansion House dining hall were the Prince of Wales, the Lord Mayor of London, the first Lord of Admiralty, rocking in their seats and bellowing the old air of "Ay Ay Ay Mr. Stormalong."

Then there was old Sir Walter Runciman, 84-year-old shipping magnate, and father of the president of the Board of Trade, upon his feet leading them all in "Tom's Gone to Hilo."

Joins Ditching Bowling Club

And now comes word that the Prince of Wales has become a full-fledged member of the Ditching Bowling Club—Ditching being a tiny hamlet nesting down behind the Sussex Downs where once King Alfred lived long centuries ago. So when, if ever, H. R. H. gets a day off the villagers of Ditching hope they may see him trundling the wood on their age-old bowling green.

Before making several unexpected calls on several cottages the Prince became a brewer but his beer may not be on the market for thirty years and then may be sold at auction.

King Edward the Prince's grandfather, brewed a portion of "King's beer" in 1902. It was auctioned for £60 a bottle. The Prince's beer was expected to become equally famous.

The Prince did his brewing on a visit to Charrington's brewery.
