New Australian Labor Ministry

CANBERRA, Australia, Sept. 21 (CP)—All members of the previous Labor Ministry except George Lawson, Minister of Transport, were re-elected for cabinet positions today at a party caucus. Arthur Augustus Calwell, one of the parliament representatives for Melbourne, was selected to replace Lawson. Calwell's election came as a surprise because he has opposed the policy of Prime Minister John Curtin to extend the area of service for conscripted militia troops. Curtin will allot the cabinet portfolios later. The caucus followed the recent elections in which the Labor Party was returned to power with a big majority.

MALLARDS ARE BEAUTIFUL

The wild mallard drake is undoubtedly one of the most beautiful of all birds. His green head with its soft plumage and the sparkling coloring of other parts of his body never fail to attract lovers of wild life. The hen mallard has almost no color, her feathers being several shades of gray. The mallard is one of the shyest and most difficult to approach of all wild ducks. The accompanying picture was taken with a great deal of difficulty by a photographer crawling through the reeds of a marsh in his stomach in order to get near enough. During the past year or two, the wild duck population has increased greatly. For a time, it was feared the birds might become extinct because of the drought that dried up middle western rivers. Now, however, the webfeet have come back in a big way. The ducks nest in the temperate zones, raising the young there. When autumn comes they start flying toward the sunny southland as do other birds, traveling in huge V-shaped flocks with a leader at the helm. En route they pause to rest and feed, sometimes stopping over for several days. After a winter in a warm climate they head back north to nest again. The end of the migration trip finds them thin and in poor condition. Long flights tax birds' strength cruelly. But rest and plenty of food soon put them back in the pink of condition. Ducks have a language all their own, although naturalists tell us it consists of only a few "words." A loud, raucous quack means danger. Soft quacks mean "come here; there's food." Ducks love to feed on water-cresses and the succulent stalks of sweet water grasses. They catch and devour large numbers of harmful insects, thus being a friend of all mankind. - Henry H. Graham
