RELIGIOUS SERVICES

ST. JAMES CHURCH HOLY REDEEMER CHURCH

The morning service at St. James Church was of the nature of harvest thanksgiving, and was very largely attended. Rev. Moorhead Legate preached an able sermon on the words, "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world," showing how, though physically the Lord had gone from the earth, spiritually he was more manifest than ever. The soloist was Miss Margaret Sterns. At the evening service the minister chose for his subject "The better part," his discourse being based on the story of Martha and Mary. The solo part in the anthem was taken by Miss Ethel Outton.

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH The flowers yesterday were presented by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gard in loving memory of their sister.

The Protestant Evangelical Church of this city will hold a united Thanksgiving service in Trinity Church on Thursday next at 10:30 a. m. at which Rev. J. M. Armour of Toronto will preach. At the morning worship Rev. J. M. Barbour preached on "Moral Standards and Religion." The Scripture lessons were Psalm 103 and Exodus 20-1 to 17 and his text was 1 Cor. 6-19 "Know ye not what your body is a temple of the Holy Spirit which is in you, which you have from God and ye have not your own for ye were bought with a price; glorify God therefore in your body." The best text of religion is good conduct on "The Law." The ten commandments are the very basis of civilization. They are essential to life. They make better progress by observing the rules of progress by obeying the laws of God. The Christian Church is making an effort to promote right ideals in the minds of the young. A field left vacant, grows up to weeds very quickly. Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap. Fear is not the highest motive for moral living. There is that something that responds to what is good. "One devout soul sets another on fire." There is that quality in humanity whether inherent or infused which responds to certain kinds of conduct and then there is the incentive which comes through the desire to serve others. "I would be true for there are those who trust me."

THE BAPTIST CHURCH The Rev. Alexander Gibson of the Maritime Religious Education Council preaching at the morning service of the Baptist Church took as his subject "Christ in the life of the home." Basing his thoughts on two passages from the Old Testament and one from the New, Mr. Gibson stressed the importance of religious training in the home. Religion is the outreach of the soul toward God, worship is the expression of our religion. The home is the fundamental factor in our lives, socially and religiously. The atmosphere of the home is of utter importance to the lives of particularly the younger portion of the family. Is there in our homes an intimate sense of the presence of God? Or what is that central idea, the dominating thought in our homes? Is it money, is it luxury, is it knowledge? The central idea is the one that will finally decide what sort of people the children of our homes shall be. Let us gravely, seriously, earnestly decide that our homes shall be Christ-centred.

Mr. Raouk Raymond's rich and beautifully expressive voice gave a devout, earnest interpretation to Cesar Franck's "Pavane Anglaise."

The evening service was addressed by Dr. Zella Clark, returned missionary from Somsetta, South India where she has been for a long term, a medical missionary under the Canadian Baptist Missionary Board. Dr. Clark appeared on this occasion in native Indian costume, and gave an address of the greatest interest, giving a clear idea of the problems met with the people among whom she worked, the success of the hospital and the mission with many illuminating incidents.

Sunday School at 2:30 showed a marked improvement in attendance over last Sunday, and greater still over the same Sunday last year. Intimation was given that at 10:30 Thursday morning a special thanksgiving service would be held in Trinity Church, with the speaker of the day the Rev. J. B. M. Armour, the eloquent General Secretary of the Baptist and Foreign Society in Canada and Newfoundland.

ST. DUNSTAN'S BASILICA Rev. Father Augustine, C.P., preached at all the Masses at St. Dunstan's Basilica yesterday morning and announced the opening of a retreat in preparation for the feast of Christ the King. The retreat opened last night for the women of the congregation, who filled the building to capacity. Father Augustine spoke on the "Baptism of the Spirit" during His Passion, and pointed out that the double standard which is found in the life of so many is, as it were, an attempt to deceive themselves by imagining that though their actions may be unknown to the world they are also unknown to Christ.

Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was given by Rev. W. Keefe. The singing was congregational. Masses will be celebrated each morning during the Retreat and the evening services at 7:30. The Retreat closes on Friday evening, the last three nights' services being for the men only.

Their marriage, originally planned for Oct. 5, was delayed as the first officer stuck to his post aboard the grounded liner while his fiancée vowed to wait for him if it were a year before the vessel was refloated. But it wasn't as bad as that, and the bridegroom arrived in New York last Friday.

DR. CROTEAU SPEAKS BEFORE H.N. SOCIETY

Steps were taken at a meeting of the Holy Name Society last night to form study clubs similar to the organizations formed in Nova Scotia under the direction of St. Francis Xavier University. The matter will be further discussed at the next meeting of the Society.

The meeting was addressed by Dr. John Croteau, Professor of Sociology and Economics at St. Dunstan's University and Prince of Wales College. He spoke on adult education and credit unions of which there are thirty-three in Nova Scotia. Credit unions, he said, are also prominent in almost every province of Canada, as well as in forty-two states of the United States. The clubs, he explained, will be composed of eight or ten members and will meet once or each week to study and discuss subjects in which they are interested. The small units will give each of the members an opportunity to take part in the discussion and thereby add much to the value to be derived by those taking part.

The credit unions as explained by Dr. Croteau are entered into by the employees of firms or organizations or by farmers and fishermen. They pay a small amount into a common fund each week and then can, if they need a loan, obtain it, the maximum interest rate being one per cent. The scheme was first introduced in 1906 and has not yet made a bad loan.

Mr. Cyrille Gallant, the Vice-president, presided in the absence of Mr. P. J. Roestler, the President. Rev. Father Fleming and several others also spoke.

Mr. A. R. Fleming rendered two vocal solos. Mr. A. Doucette was the accompanist.

Old Wood Boat Is Surviving At Saint John

SAINT JOHN, N. B., Oct. 19.—In Saint John harbour at the foot of Simonds Street rests the "J.A.H.", last boat of her type in the world. The squat, ugly-looking craft is a final link with days when a fleet of carried wood up and down the St. John River.

Other wood-boats which piled a lucrative trade on the river have long since passed into oblivion but the J.A.H. is going strong. She's still good for a long time to come," says Harry MacDonald, veteran St. John river navigator who operates the boat in partnership with Harry Dillon.

Nowhere else may be found a craft fashioned along the same lines, although boats designed somewhat similarly may be seen in Scandinavian waters. "They don't make 'em any more like the J.A.H.," states MacDonald. "There are scows and small schooners on the river, but no wood-boats except this one."

The J.A.H. was built for just two purposes—to slip in close to shore and transport wood. A graceful appearance had no place in the scheme. A Dutch model ship, aside from her two blunt masts she resembles a Dutch wooden shoe.
