Where Old Friends Meet

Baseball Veterans Plan Practice

It's all out for practice order, tonight when Manager Will Kelly parades his former baseball stars at the Summerside High School diamond in preparation for the big game tomorrow night. Coach Jim Hogan stated yesterday that two more old reliables will be in the line up, Jack Wright and Bob Clow, with the possibility of a third if Don Stewart gets back from Oslo in time. At any rate it is hoped that Don will be able to turn out for the return game in Charlottetown on Sunday.

The Charlottetown squad are apparently keeping their lineup under cover and up to the present have given no publicity to their players so curiosity is high in Summerside regarding the Abbie squad.

Tentative arrangements have been made to have the Miscouche Band to stage a parade prior to the game so that the occasion will have all the old-time flavor of the Charlottetown-Summerside game played when these "old boys" were young boys.

Sport Echoes From Prince County

As far as sporting, events are concerned, this is "Special Attraction Week" in Prince County. First, the Wellington Old Timers of Charlottetown and Summerside will go into action at the Summerside High School diamond. Many stars of yesterday will try to coax back into their reflexes the "up-and-ate" of their heyday. Watching these boys trying to beat out a bump at first or doing a fall-away slide into second will be worth the very modest price of admission. There will be "stop-the-game" prizes awarded, that is whenever a player wins an award the game will be stopped and the presentation will be made immediately. The prizes will be for all sorts of achievements in the popular summer pastime. The game is under the sponsorship of the newly organized Summerside Athletic Association whose president is Dr. Hillard Clark.

Friday evening, the sporting scene will shift to Kensington where that progressive little town's baseball diamond is to be officially opened. A regular league game between the Charlottetown Argonauts and the Summerside Curran & Briggs ball club in last Sunday's game was considerably above their average. Both teams were able to get men on bases in almost every inning but the fielding of the two teams was what spelled the difference between victory and defeat for them. Frankie Oatway's spectacular catch in centre field was the headline fielding feat of the game. As in many of these unexpected catches the baserunner was caught cold and doubled up at first. Henry Gallant also pulled off a really fine catch and there were other displays of headsup baseball. Powell on the mound for the winners was hit fairly freely, but he made a surprising number of hits high into the air.

The baseball savvy and skill which the Charlottetown and Summerside bantam teams displayed at Summerside Saturday afternoon was a revelation to your "Echo" scribe. In the days when there was no organization for kids of this age occasionally we attempted to score a game between two teams of boys, but invariably gave it up before many innings were played. A dozen errors in an inning was the average and a basketball score at the end of the game. The game Saturday was as easy to score as an intermediate game because the errors were few and far between. Not only that, but surprising amount of alert thinking was displayed. Our experience with kids has been that when fielding a ball they invariably tried to get the runner at first. The other runners were allowed to romp around the bases as they pleased until enough caught flies or put-outs at first were achieved to retire the side. If a runner made first safely he went to second, and quite often even to third, by default. Not so in Saturday's game. Players were thrown out at second and third take 1.0 many liberties in running the bases. Two players were cut down at the plate on fielders' choices which is really something in the bantam-age division. We were surprised at the amount of baseball which has been taught these youngsters.

The benefit game between the Tignish Aces and Wellington Dodgers and the dance which succeeded it was a complete financial success, which is the important thing in an event of this kind. Over one hundred dollars was realized and this sum will be turned over to Frank Arsenault when he is well enough to get out of the hospital. The game ended in a 6-1 draw and was a real crowd pleaser all the way. The Tignish people responsible for this benefit game-dance event are deeply grateful to those who responded so generously, and particularly to the Wellington Dodgers for their co-operation. Some of these boys left having operations and other important work to insure the success of this worthwhile project.
