

FERTILIZER! FERTILIZER!!

FARMERS:

You cannot offset the present low values of farm products except by decreasing the cost of production and by increasing your yields. Therefore, it is our duty to advocate the use of home mixed chemicals rather than factory mixed fertilizers, because of the saving of costs and the higher yields it means to you.

If you buy chemicals you can purchase the same amount of plant food at $5.00 less than you will pay for a ton of mixed fertilizer, and have from three hundred to five hundred pounds less material to handle.

Home mixed chemicals generally give better yields than mixed fertilizer, particularly in a dry season. Last year one prominent grower planted one hundred acres with mixed fertilizer, using 1800 lbs. of a 4-8-12 mixture per acre. He reports: "the mixed fertilizer cost me $500.00 more than the chemicals would have cost, and based on the average yield I obtained with the home mixed chemicals during the same year I was short three thousand bushels of good potatoes."

Mr. Farmer, are you working for yourself, or for the manufacturer of mixed fertilizer?

This Association working solely in the interests of the farmer, advocates the purchase of chemicals, and home mixing. Manufacturers advocate mixed fertilizer. The choice is yours.

We can supply you with either or both. Write us for prices which are the lowest we ever issued.

may be avoided by giving some attention to clothing from a health point of view. The body coverings should be clean. Clothing should be sufficient to keep the body warm. Too much clothing, which causes perspiration, leads to the chilling of the body. Sitting with wet feet predisposes to colds, so the feet should be kept dry. Remove outdoor clothing when indoors and put on additional clothing before going out.

LET BEARDS GROW TO HELP COLLEGE FUNDS

VANCOUVER, B. C. Mar. 3.—(By The Canadian Press)—Students of the University of British Columbia "started something" when they undertook to let their beards grow until they had succeeded in raising sufficient funds for the building of their college stadium. The result is that the campus now resembles the meeting place of the House of David. "We're not doing this out of penance" exclaimed one of the undergraduate leaders. "We're doing it chiefly to attract attention to the campaign. Every time someone in Vancouver sees a beard he won't yell 'Beaver' as has been the custom heretofore. He will immediately think of the University and perhaps, if the sight of beards becomes too annoying, he will put himself down for a subscription to the $20,000 stadium fund, to hasten the day when barbers will be called in to end the beard era." Black beards, brown beards and downy blonde beards; you can find them all if you look hard enough. Science students, self-styled heroes of the campus, boasts several fine specimens. The Aggies, with the tradition of long-whiskered farmers behind them, have at least one notable contribution. Artsmen seem more fastidious about their appearance but nevertheless are putting forth some outstanding effort. Even the freshman, laboring under a hat ural handicap, are not without their champions.

But the best came recently with the senior ball. Would the pioneers in this back-to-the-beard movement brave the displeasure of their partners or drop their bold resolve and lose forever the esteem of their hardy brothers?

Co-eds were asked to encourage the scheme by refusing to make dates with men who still shave, but they apparently were not attracted by adornment in the transitional stage. It is rumored that there were many hot meetings before some of the bold lads resorted to the razor. But they can still pay and shave, for it has been arranged that a twenty-five cent fine is levied on all appearing without some evidence of beard production.

"SALMON" ONLY FOUND IN ATLANTIC

VANCOUVER, B. C. Mar. 3.—(By The Canadian Press)—Although the Pacific salmon is known the world over and the annual pack taken in British Columbia, Alaska, Oregon and Siberian waters is reckoned in many millions of dollars, there is really no such thing as a salmon in the whole Pacific ocean.

That is the declaration of John P. Babcock, who is internationally known as one of the closest students of the so-called Pacific-salmon.

"The salmon, as we know it is on the Pacific coast, is no more a salmon in reality than the American bison is a buffalo," says Mr. Babcock, who goes on to say that the only genuine salmon is found on the Atlantic and that it differs structurally and by habit from the Pacific species.

Mr. Babcock points out that the Pacific fish that is famous by its name salmon roams far and wide from the bay of Monterey in California to the Gulf of Alaska. One tagged in Alaskan waters was caught later in Siberian waters. Others have been found to wander many hundreds of miles from the fresh water streams of their nativity.

HISTORIC WALTZ HOUSE HAS BEEN DESTROYED

(By The Canadian Press)

BARKERVILLE, B. C. March 3.—The Cariboo country's "home of the death waltz", where a corpse danced one Christmas night, has been destroyed.

The old building at 150-Mile House on the historical Cariboo Road, trail to the Northern gold camps, was recently burned down and with it went some of the glamor still associated with the "roaring days."

The "Waltz house" gained its name from an incident that occurred during the days when all-night dances formed the amusement of the gold-seekers in the Cariboo diggings. When a group of Barkerville merry-makers started out, they danced night after night to Cache Creek and back again, invariably putting in a whole week at the commodious quarters at 150-Mile House.

One man in particular was sought far and wide for his agility as a dancer and his services were as much in demand as the fiddler's. No celebration was considered complete without him. One winter, shortly before Christmas, the dancer contracted pneumonia and died. As was the custom in those days, a "wake" was held in his honor for three nights.

The first was observed in a quiet manner as befitted the occasion, many reminiscences of the past being solemnly related by the mourners. The second night the "wake" was not so subdued, as a result of the arrival of a shipment of liquor from down the Cariboo Road.

The third night, which happened to be Christmas, a dance consisting Railway, will be remembered by the younger generation in Summerside, P.E.I., as a son of the late Dr. G. D. MacKay, a leading physician in that town between forty and forty-five years ago. Dr. MacKay moved with his family from their home in Glace Bay, Nova Scotia, at the time his brother, the Rev. Mr. MacKay, was pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Summerside, and the children received their education in the Davies School. Other members of Dr. MacKay's family, besides William A., of San Rafael, are Ernest G. MacKay, North Sydney; Albert J. MacKay, Toronto, and Ida M. of several of the famous waltzes of the dead dancer, was held. Before the event broke up at dawn, one of the mourners suggested that the corpse should have one last waltz before the burial service, and this was done with due ceremony. The final episode of the "wake" preserved the name of the house, which during the sixty odd years that followed was known as "the home of the dead waltz."

INSTITUTE NEWS

On January 19, a meeting was held in Goose River School for the purpose of organizing an Institute. In the absence of the Superior, the teacher, Miss Minnie A. Chaisson, conducted the meeting. There is scarcely a town in the whole of Japan with a population of 10,000 that has not its daily newspaper.

One by one our veteran farmers are being called to receive a reward for the heroic lives spent in service to their Creator, and in the strife co-incident with the struggles of pioneer days. An outstanding figure in the community, after a long and tedious illness, James Gorman, at the venerable age of 81 years, peacefully closed his eyes to the world on December 23rd, 1930. Some six or seven years ago, besides receiving slight paralytic attacks, he suffered the serious loss of his speech through some throat or vocal chord disability. But being a man of strong faith, and zealous in his love of God and of His Church, he complained not, but accepted all his sufferings and crosses as coming from the hand of his Creator. During his long term of suffering, he was comforted by the unremitting kindness and tender nursing of his daughter Sadie, who was ever on the watch to learn, with difficulty, his needs and requests, and to minister to them.

The deceased Mr. Gorman, who was the eldest son of the late James Gorman and Sarah McMurrer, was born in Maplewood, received his early education at the old red school house at Kelly's Cross, spent some time at St. Dunstan's College, and when still a young man, married Miss Mary Ellen McKenna, of South Melville, who predeceased him about 15 years ago. He was a man of good judgment, moral principles, social member of the parish, in which he took a prominent and enthusiastic position. He had the unique record of having been the leader (most of that time) of St. Joseph's Church Choir for upwards of 50 years, and for a term he was a member of the trustee board until compelled to retire therefrom on account of partial loss of voice.

Mr. Gorman filled a place in the parish of Kelly's Cross, which the present generation would do well to emulate, for his ideas were high, whether social, religious, political or community interests were at stake. As a father, he was a model. Of his large family, of whom five sons predeceased him, three of whom had reached manhood, there are left to mourn a father of whom any family might justly be proud. He is survived by the following: Mrs. Ernest Leonard, Cornwall; Mrs. Fred C. Monaghan, Sidley, Sask.; Mrs. Leonard McDonald, Charlottetown; Edith, Denver, Col.; Mabel, River Glade, N.B.; Sadie, Kelly's Cross, and Frank, Casper, Wym.; Raymond, Vancouver, B. C.; Louis, Denver, Col.; Emmett, Kelly's Cross. He also left one sister, Mrs. J. Doyle, Charlottetown.

The funeral took place to Kelly's Cross Church on Dec. 26th, and after celebration of a Requiem Mass by the pastor, Rev. J. C. Pitre, his remains were reverently laid to rest beside those of his wife and children, predeceased. The pall bearers were: F. Bradley Sr.; Chas. McKenna, J. A. Bradley, Ephraim Malone, Alfred Cameron and Eugene McIvor.

MISS EMMA TROWAN

While spending the week end with friends in Medford, Miss Emma Trowan, of 12 Dix street, was stricken suddenly ill and died last Friday morning at 14 Lakeview avenue in that city.

Miss Trowan had lived in Winchester for more than 20 years, coming here from Charlottetown, P. E. I., to make her home on Mystic avenue with her uncle, the late Thomas Morris. Following the latter's death, she continued to make her home in the Morris homestead with Mr. Morris' sister-in-law, Miss Anne Dodd, Winchester's oldest resident, who died March 26, 1930, at the age of 106. Miss Trowan was the daughter of William, and Jane (Morris) Trowan, and was born 76 years ago in Charlottetown, P. E. I. Her early life was spent in her native town, which she visited during the past summer, returning to Winchester during the Christmas season. She had many friends in town, having been active in the work of the Methodist Church #### and of the W. C. T. U. There are no immediate survivors.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon to the Crawford Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church with the Pastor, Rev. J. West Thompson, officiating. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery—the Winchester Star.

(Miss Trowan is a first cousin of Mr. Frank Morris, Weymouth Street. Mr. and Mrs. Morris arrived home Friday last after attending the funeral. Miss Trowan visited here last October and intended coming back to reside.)

Dad—I wonder where the step-der is. Ma—Willie had it a little while ago. Dad—Oh, then it must be in the preserve pantry.

Owing to the business depression some of the movie stars are going to keep the same husbands they had last winter.

Heart and Nerves So Bad I Was Unable To Sleep For Hours.

Miss Theresa M. Bavy, Galtengertown, Ont., writes: "I was troubled, for almost a year, with my heart and nerves, especially on retiring at night when I would be unable to sleep for hours. I was easily fatigued, and became very excitable and irritable. A friend recommended Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and after taking them for a few weeks I could enjoy a good night's rest, and rapidly regained my former state of health."
