TELL THE WORLD THIS WOMAN SAYS

That Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made Me a Well Woman.

Los Angeles, Cal.—"I suffered with female troubles for years, was sick most of the time, was not able to do my own housework, and I could not get help from doctors. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the newspapers, and took six bottles, and am a well woman. You can use my name to tell the world the good your medicine has done me as I shall praise it always."

—Mrs. A. L. DEVINE, 617 St. Paul Avenue, Los Angeles, Calif.

Women who suffer from any form of weakness, as indicated by displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, headache, nervousness, or "the blues," should do as Mrs. Devine did, and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a thorough and reliable remedy, which contains the curative, strengthening properties of good old fashioned roots and herbs, has been correcting just such ailments. If you have mysterious complications write for advice to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

THE PROMOTER'S WIFE

BY JANE PHELPS

HUNTING AN APARTMENT IN NEW YORK

CHAPTER IX.

I was so bewildered in New York, its size, the height of its buildings, that Neil considered it a great joke and laughed heartily at my funny remarks. We went to a small hotel quite a way up-town.

"We will start from here to look for an apartment," he had said. "I shall be able to go with you only to-morrow and Sunday. If we find nothing by Sunday night, you will have to keep up the search next week."

"Oh, we'll surely find something by then." The very thought of going about New York alone frightened me.

"We'll certainly try," Neil said, appreciating my feeling.

The next morning as soon as we had eaten breakfast, Neil took the morning paper and marked several advertisements. Then he took the addresses of several real estate men further up-town.

"We shall have to go further than this to find something that suits my pocket book," he said.

"How much rent shall we pay, Neil?"

"We must find something for seventy-five or a hundred dollars at the most. We can't afford to go higher than that—now."

"We will surely find something very nice for that!" I exclaimed.

"Why, Mrs. Chamberlain only pays twelve dollars a month for that lovely place you so admired."

"That is Huntington, this is New York. And we must live in a decent place. It looks badly for a man to live in a cheap locality."

"There is a common belief that women are invariably to blame for a man's living beyond his means. That it is not always so—at least in the beginning. I am positive. I loved Neil so dearly, at this time, that I would have been happy had we lived in one room so long as we could be together. Had we done so, it might have been better for us both. Neil had a free way of spending, of handling money, that amazed me. He did not appear to think himself at all wasteful, however, or that he bought anything we did not need.

We tramped all day Saturday. Finally we found a perfectly charming little apartment of five rooms for $125 dollars a month.

"We'll take this," Neil told the agent.

"But Neil, you said—"

"I know, but one sometimes changes his mind. We'll save the difference in some way."

That was Neil's way. He hated to deny himself; but he always excused his extravagance by saying he "would save it in some other way." As that way never seemed to arrive, I at last felt seriously worried. But, as I have said, I had no slightest idea of the real value of money. Where mother had been saving, I saved too. Now that I was where it was freely spent, too soon learned to spend lavishly.

It is so easy to accommodate ourselves to the things which others do—so hard to stand alone.

We furnished our house slowly and carefully. Slowly because I would buy nothing without consulting Neil, although he had told me to go ahead—that I had good taste, and he would be satisfied with what I did. Carefully, because I soon found that if Neil did not like anything he tossed it aside with as little thought as he had shown in paying more rent than he had declared he could afford.

We had hired a general housework girl, but when I had objected to paying such a large wage, Neil had succeeded me by saying:

"We'll take what we can get now. If a deal I have on goes through, we'll have a cook and waitress."

A certain feeling of well being was engendered by such remarks—a feeling that no matter how much I spent, it was all right, or in some way would be all right. It was a continual discounting of the future, with so thought that future might bring demands of its own, demands hard to meet.

"Mahanna!" meant nothing but good to Neil. Is it surprising that soon, very soon, it meant nothing but good to me? Our motto was: "Live for to-day. To-morrow will care for itself."

An Old Recipe To Darken Hair

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is sold in 50-cent and 1-dollar bottles. It is sold everywhere. Ask for it by name.

Salts If Kidneys Or Bladder Bother

Harmless to flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again here is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithium and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.
