

A Tablespoonful to Every Pail of Water.

Just think of the economy of ASEPTO! One tablespoonful to a pail of water is plenty. And there are 25 tablespoonfuls in a 5c. package.

It's simply extravagance to use Soap when ASEPTO does the washing for so little—and does it far better, too.

Just try ASEPTO next wash day. Discarding grocers sell it.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

February 27, 1916.

THE SEVEN HELPERS.

Acts 6.

GOLDEN TEXT.

"Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the laws of Christ."—Galatians 6:2.

Verse 1. Judaism at the time of the founding of the Christian Church had developed into two forms: that of Palestine and that of the Dispersion. These were divided from each other by geographical, linguistic and cultural lines. Since the Gentiles were called Greeks because of the predominance of the Hellenic culture among them, the Jews who were dispersed among them were called Grecians of Hellenists. They spoke the common Greek language and adopted the customs of their Gentile environment so far as they did not interfere with the Jewish religion. But they looked to Jerusalem as the centre of their religious life, and visited the temple at the time of the festivals so far as this was practicable. The line of division did not exist without creating among them mutual distrust and jealousy. Even the spirit of Christ in this new brotherhood does not seem to have overcome this feeling. There arose a murmuring of the Grecians against the Hebrews, "whether justly or unjustly" we are not told. How often mutual suspicions and jealousies are drawn into the membership of the Christian Church and how incongruous they are with the spirit that should rule there!

Verses 2-5. In settling the question raised by the murmuring of the Grecians the apostles put into exercise some principles which may be followed safely in all ages. In the first place they acted on the assumption that the ministers of the Church are to be selected by the people whom they are to serve. It is only as the servants of the public are acceptable to the public that they can do their work faithfully. But, secondly, in the full installation of those who might be selected it is well that the leaders also who are already actively in service should have some voice. The apostles asked the people to designate the men who should serve, but they reserved for themselves the right of appointing (v. 3). A third principle observed in this matter was the subdivision of the work into parts with the creation of a special class of servants to do each part. The apostles who were doing both the teaching and serving at the tables would divide that work into two natural parts and limit themselves to teaching, yielding the serving of the tables to the new men.

It is further instructive to note that the apostles described to the people the characteristics which they must seek in their new ministers. "Look ye out among you seven men of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom."

A good reputation, spiritual power and common sense were the requisites to be found in the candidates. These characteristics are not often detached from one another. The man who is full of the Holy Spirit is likely also to be the man of common sense, and if so the sound judgment of the community is bound to make a man of good reputation—"honest report." It is easily conceivable, however, that one characteristic might predominate to such an extent as to give a negative aspect to the others. Spiritually may exist without a knowledge of practical affairs, or wisdom without keen appreciation of spiritual values, or ability to use them; and again both may exist without an accepted standing in the community. Those who are to serve the Church should combine these characteristics in their personality.

Verses 5-7. The names of the men designated by the multitude and ordained by the apostles to the new work show that they were drawn from the ranks of the "Grecians." They are all Greek names such as were taken upon themselves by Jews living among Greek speaking Gentiles. If the inference deducible from the fact is not a mistaken one it is a sign of the existence in that early Church of Jerusalem of a spirit of Christian courtesy which church communities in all places and times may be very well emulate. The Palestinian Jewish Christians did not resent the charge that they were crowding their brethren from the Dispersion. They generously chose all the new associates to the apostles from the ranks of these brethren, and so allayed at once and forever the suspicion of favoritism for the future. How many church differences would melt away and disappear if one of the contending parties would adopt a course similar to this. No wonder that "the word of God increased, and the number of disciples multiplied in Jerusalem."

Verses 8-15. The question has been asked whether the seven men chosen to assist the apostles were the first deacons, the first elders, or a special committee with a special task, but no permanent successors in the Church. Much could be said in support of each of the answers given to the question. The narrative in Acts, however, turns the attention of the reader to a matter of vital importance. It proceeds to trace the development of the labors of these men in at least two cases (those of Stephen and Philip) from the waiting upon tables to the higher work of evangelism.

he accepted the responsibility, and aggressively carried the gospel to the synagogue, where probably he was best known. Evidently he constructed his task in a broad way. He was appointed to minister at the tables, but the ground on which he was selected for this work was the fact that he enjoyed the confidence of his brethren as a man with God-given talents. He must needs make good use of his talents.

Moreover, as he used these talents he discovered, as did those about him, that his power was greater than appeared at first sight. Those who opposed him "were not able to resist the wisdom and spirit by which he spoke." Christian workers will find that faithfulness to duty and a larger interpretation of opportunities will disclose greater and greater powers in themselves. For after all they are only the instruments of the Holy Spirit.

WHAT CANADA PAYS!

SOLDIERS PAY AND ALLOWANCES, CONDITIONS OF ENLISTMENT PROVISION FOR WIVES, MOTHERS AND CHILDREN

Canada is determined that her sons shall be as well paid and their families as well cared for, as a grateful and wealthy country can afford. The scale of pay for Overseas Service, the allowances from the Patriotic Fund, and the Pensions, are on a more liberal basis than those of any other country engaged in the war.

SCALE OF PAY

RANK	Pay per day	Field Allowance per day	Separation Allowance per month
Sergeants.....	$1.35	$0.15	$25.00
Corporals.....	1.10	.10	20.00
Privats, Buglers, Drummers etc.....	1.00	.10	20.00

The men are, of course, fed and clothed by the Government.—
The Separation Allowance is the sum paid by the Government to the wife of each enlisted man, or to the widowed mother if the son is unmarried and is her sole support. This is in addition to part of his pay which is reserved for her.
One-half of a soldier's pay is withheld by the Government and paid to his dependents. This ensures that at least $35.00 per month is paid by the Government to the wife of each soldier.

THE PATROTIC FUND

The Patriotic Fund has been created to assist those dependents of a soldier who need more help than the Government gives. From this Fund the following sums are paid if the need exists:—

Wives.....	From $5.00 to $10.00 per month
Children of widowers.....
Mothers of unmarried men.....
Children of married men according to age and number in family.....	$1.50 to $6.00 each per month

Ladies representing the Patriotic Fund pay regular visits to families of men on Overseas Service, and give friendly advice and practical help in case of need.
Many employers have pledged themselves to give preference to returned soldiers when engaging men.

PENSIONS

The Canadian scale of pensions range for private soldier, from $75.00 per year for certain minor injuries to $264.00 for total disability. In case of death $22.00 a month is paid to the widow, and $5.00 a month for each child. A widowed mother whose son was her whole support receives $22.00 a month.

CONDITIONS OF ENLISTMENT

Age—18 to 45 years. Height—5 feet 2 inches minimum

HOW TO ENLIST

Apply to LIEUT. COL. CAMPBELL or to any recruiting officer LIEUT. COL. ALLAN, MAJOR LEIGH, JUDGE FRASER, Souris, or write for information to
