YOU DO IT WITH ZIPPERS

Speaking of zippers, do you know that many zippers are used for trimmings as well as functional purposes? A navy dress, for example, will have the sleeve edge trimmed with a white zipper—that is, half of the zipper on the front and half on the back of the sleeve. Thus if you wished to play a trick with such a dress, all you do is zip up the sleeve to vex the wearer when she tries to put it on. The real purpose, however, is for the white accent, and if used in this way, the dress usually has pockets that are also zipped in white.

Another zipper idea you can use in an evening dress is to make it with detachable straps, and an armhole cut straight, so that it has a smart line without sleeves. Then make a little puff sleeve to lift the same armhole, and attach it with a matching zipper. One night you will wear the puff sleeves and flower accessories. Another night you will take out the sleeves and attach the straps for a more formal date, and wear jewelry or some contrasting color that will change the aspect of your dress. The better makes of zippers, by the way, come with printed directions which tell you how to sew them in. Before choosing the zipper, however, study the directions, or ask the clerk which kind to buy.

Hobart, Tasmania, is proud of its new bridge, soon to be opened over the Derwent River. It is virtually a concrete highway on top of the water. The floating section of the bridge requires no abutments and no chains or anchors to hold it in position. It is 3,160 feet long and is formed of two continuous cellular members of rigid pontoons, each 1,580 feet in length and supported by the buoyancy of the water.

To help retain the color of cooked strawberries, rhubarb or cherries be careful not to over-cook them. Store them in a dark place or wrap each jar or glass with paper and hold it in place with rubber bands.

A large number of the younger folk from this vicinity were visitors to Summerside on Saturday evening where they attended and enjoyed the usual Saturday night dance.

Reports are to the effect that the side roads in and around this vicinity are now with few exceptions open to motor traffic, and with a day or two more of the fine weather we have had, they will be passable anywhere.

On Sunday evening this section of the province was visited by a real old winter blizzard with from three to four inches of snow falling. The oldtimers predicting that this will clear up the weather and that we can now settle down to our summer work.

The enthusiasm shown on Friday evening last at the baseball meeting held in the town hall, by the large number who attended indicates a banner year for the boys, and your scribe is of the opinion that if the team is given good support by the fans when the season ends, our boys will be right up with the leaders for the Island title. The officials appointed at the meeting are going right ahead with their plans. Following are the officers: Hon. Pres., Erwin Champion; pres., Chas Howatt; vice-pres., P. N. LeBlanc; sec.-treas., James Kennedy; manager, Kenneth McLean; coach, Keith S. Howatt; official scorer, Ian Darrach; finance com., W. Delaney, O. B. Darrach, G. Webster, G. Brookins, J. Kennedy, M.
