A PAGEANT OF FASHION FOR EXHIBITION WEEK AT PATON'S BIG STORE

The Exhibition visitor to Paton's Big Store this week will find ready for inspection one of the nicest stocks procurable from the best markets of the world, a stock personally selected by buyers who study trade requirements and combine excellent taste with good judgment. The cool weather fast approaching makes heavier apparel necessary for old and young but Patons are never surprised by weather conditions, and their fall stock is now complete.

MILLINERY

Of course a new fall hat is the first consideration for Exhibition and in this department the ladies may revel to their hearts content.

There are big hats and little hats, and it is impossible to say that either holds the palm. There are tight little turbans of silk velvet or panne, and there are broad brimmed, floppy hats of the same materials, which, by the way are very fashionable and one might add comfortable.

The Quakers and Vernon Castle Sailors are the two specialties of the millinery for early fall wear and these are well represented in Patons early showing of outing hats. The "tailored girl" is sure to want one as it is just the need article for the new fall suit and will look exceedingly smart while the city is full of well dressed visitors.

In colors, whether in hats, skirts or materials, African brown is said to lead. Then comes the purple, including a new prunelle (a plum shade) and amethyst. Blues in a variety of tones, especially navy and Russian green follow. Black and white are seen in everything, especially in millinery black velvet forming the foundation for many charming models.

Hats are not "trimmed" high as they are complete in themselves, but a jaunty wing, breast or buckle is placed to give them the needed touch of smartness so much sought after.

Vests are a distinct novelty this season and for the lady who always wears one the range is very pretty and will add much to the attractiveness of her costume.

READY TO WEAR

In ready-to-wear garments Patons take the lead showing fashionable materials and weaves, carefully cut and tailored, choice nays and Russian of excellence for fall and winter wear. The separate skirts have a tailored air this season that makes them a delight to wear with one of the pretty hats or fancy blouses which are shown so extensively. And everyone wears a shirt-waist and skirt at some time in the day.

The dress materials are indeed very handsome, including broadcloths, serges, gabardine, silks and velvets, with the daintiest confections possible for evening wear.

TRAPPY FIXINGS

Gloves are an important part of any costume and whether cotton, lisle or kid, dressed or undressed Patons is the place to select them.

Dainty neckwear, collars and ruffs are very much the vogue this season and are displayed in the daintiest materials imaginable and give an added grace to even the prettiest gown.

In ladies fancy and plain hosiery some lovely lines are offered in silk and heavier wools.

DRAPERIES

Those who are in quest of pretty materials for home decoration should pay a visit to the Drapery Department where selections of serims, nets and curtains and draperies of all kinds are particularly large just now. Many ways and means of brightening the home can be conjured up in the mind, by a sight of such a splendid variety. And throughout runs a moderation of price that is surprising.

BEDDING

The cool nights have already sent out a clear clarion call for warmer bed clothes to which many shoppers have responded, judging from the recently numerous buyers of bedding in Patons home furnishing department.

Bedding of all sorts—Comforters, Blankets, Pillows, Bed Spreads, etc., find selection in abundance and the careful selection in the buying of these, assures complete satisfaction. The Blanket assortment from $3.50 to $10 leaves large range for choice while the comforters are tagged from $1.25 to $10.00.

Flannellet blankets are stocked so the buyer's choice is guaranteed at prices from $1.50 to $1.75.

MEN'S WEARABLES

These cool evenings have brought out the fall overcoat, and men who are in need of one should inspect the light-weight, nobby cheviot coats, with Italian lining. Well tailored and dressy; a full range of sizes.

For rainy weather an exceptionally nice line of Men's Pernetta Rain coats are being offered at a 25 p. c. discount. They are 50 samples secured at a saving and only two of a kind, but all sizes.

The mother who is sending her boy to school will revel in Patons ready-to-wear department where boys' clothing can be had for a definite purpose. Clothes that will wear well, that are strongly sewn and made of materials that will not show every mark and stain that gets on them. Thrifty mothers will get new this year, in Patons Clothing Department and find hundreds of suits grouped together fitting lads from 6 years old to 16 and sold regularly by the Catalogue Houses at from $5.00 to $8.00 now being offered at $3.49. This is certainly the chance of a life time.

Every man ought to be particular because good clothes always give the right impression, and Paton's clothes are always up to the minute in style, fit and finish.

FOR COLDER DAYS.

Patrons are ephasising Fashion's preference for pretty furs and have some pieces of unusual style and beauty. It is not too early to get first choice.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

The fall housecleaning will show up the shabbiness of the furniture and fixings, but Patons big stock can easily replace the faded sofa or chair, or perhaps a new music cabinet, hall rack, dresser, table, side board or couch is needed. If so the choosing will be easy as choicest furniture, all new this year, is handsomely displayed by capable salesmen, and the prices tags show prices to induce the exhibition shopper.

Visitors and shoppers will find everything needful this week to make their shopping easy and satisfactory and the invitation to call on them is general.

BRITISH ISLES SHEATHED IN METAL GUARDING AGAINST GERMAN PIRATES

After having spent eight months in England, and taking advantage of every opportunity to study the operations of the British navy, Mr. J. Herbert Duerworth, writing to produce in the New York Sun one of the most interesting articles that has appeared on this subject. He says: "Fenced in with barbed wire, her coasts deeply furrowed with trenches, protected by fields of deadly mines, and watched by ever active patrols of destroyers and seaplanes—the eyes of the battleships that lurk in their bases ready to pounce upon the enemy—England's geographical position is something to be envied by the other warring nations. She is protected by something far more efficacious than the most cunningly devised trenches—the great natural moat of the North Sea.

ISLES SHEATHED IN METAL

"And art supports nature." The British Isles are sheathed in metal. The island kingdom is buried under a shield of almost impenetrable armor. London, the heart of the Empire, is embedded in a "Ring of Steel." Heavy guns from her forts in Aberdeen in the north to Harwick in the south frown toward Germany; more guns at Dover, Folkestone, the Isle of Wight, Portsmouth, Portland, Plymouth and Falmouth guard the English Channel; fortress artillery at Point Carnore in Ireland and Holyhead in Wales stand guard at the southern entrance to the Irish Sea, while other heavy pieces at Ballycastele in Ireland and Wigtown in Scotland perform a similar service at the northern doorway. Marco's stations are dotted in prodigious profusion around the two Islands; behind impassable rows of barbed wire at every conceivable possible landing place of an invader, troops are stationed ready to be whisked to the point of attack; small patrol boats search half forgotten coves on bleak and lonely parts of the West coast of Ireland for secret German submarine bases; seaplanes, submarines and destroyers—the Grand Fleet's auxiliaries—keep incessantly circling the Kingdom on the lookouts for enemy sea and aircraft.

FLEET COSTS $2,500,000 A DAY

"Naturally when I first reached England I wanted to know what had become of the navy that Premier Asquith has said costs $2,500,000 a day to keep afloat. I was told that it was lost somewhere in the grey mists of the North Sea, and that it was strung out in a huge semi-circle in front of Heligoland waiting to be sent to the bottom by undersea boats. By piecing together such trifles as Admiralty warnings and instructions to pilots posted at naval bases, by watching fractions of the fleet at such places as Dover, Sheerness, Portsmouth and Harwich—in short, by keeping ones open it was possible to build up a shadowy outline of the general scheme that costs, incidentally, $10,000,000 a day, by which England has succeeded in completing her isolation from the outside world.

"I have seen at the Hendon and Brooklands, aerodrome officers of the Flying Corps—the pilots of an air fleet, it is now known on the authority of Under-Secretary of State for War Tennant, numbered these airmen at war games, practising at attacking Zeppelins and preparing for the promised grand aerial raid on Krupp's and other vital spot in the enemy's territory. At present England has 16,000 men at work turning out aeroplanes. In addition American constructors are working day and night making machines for Great Britain. Up to June 30 the United States had shipped 250 aeroplanes, valued at $2,000,000, to England. There are now standing orders for sixty machines a week until the end of the war.

GUARDED PASSAGEWAYS

Except for her submarines, the German fleet is effectively bottled. It is believed to be absolutely impossible for an enemy vessel to run the gauntlet through the Straits of Dover owing to the immense mine fields that choke that 18-mile wide channel and the 15 inch guns that dominate the situation from Dover to Calais. Not even a submarine can pass down the English Channel, thanks to the maze of submarine nets and traps that have been set. To get out, submarines must make the circuitous journey by way of the neutral "three-mile limit" of Norway. There are mine or two tortuous channels left open among the deadly mines for friendly and neutral merchantmen that can only be traversed with the aid of an authorized pilot. These passageways are guarded by 40 knot "T.B.'s" (torpedo boat destroyers) and seaplanes. The British Government has notified Washington of the location of several other mine fields in the North Sea.

The Northern way is into the world for the German fleet is almost as effectively guarded as that to the south. All the channels between John O'Groats, the Northernmost point of Scotland, and the Orkney and Shetland Islands have been set with mines and submarine traps, or blocked with captured German ships that have been filled with rocks and stones and sunk in the fairways. Between the Shetlands and the Norwegian "three mile limit" are other mine fields. Somewhere in the neighborhood of Kirkwall or cruising between the Shetlands and Scandinavia, is the main body of the Grand Fleet of battle cruisers and Dreadnoughts, anxiously waiting for "the Day." With steam up, other squadrons of warships are stationed at such ports as Harwick, Sheerness, Chatham and Dover, ready to outflank any German flotilla that might venture forth.

"New soft felt hats have just come by express—latest fall shapes, $2.25, $2.50, $2.75, $3.00.—MOORE & McLEOD. 3011-9-17M31

MEAT IN GERMANY.

Altogether the Germans own the largest number of meat animals per inhabitant of any country in Europe, a question has arisen as to whether German agriculture will be able to supply with meat in the same way as heretofore.

The Prussian Minister of Agriculture has already pointed out that it is necessary to decrease the number of pigs on account of the impossibility of importing fodder from abroad. This enforced state of affairs is owing to the activity of the British navy, and the same ruling regarding reduction will apply to other live stock, if the war keeps on for a great length of time.

Dr. Kitchener, of Leipzig, explains that "Even in the near future the slaughtering of pigs should be undertaken to a large extent, no lack of meat would be felt, as a considerable part of the meat obtained thereby might be made to keep for a long time."

There was a very large stock of pigs in Germany at the beginning of the war—35 per hundred inhabitants, compared with 17.4 in France and 8.2 in England—but, as much as the hog food has been taken for human use, there is a big chance that the slaughter of a large number of pigs has already taken place, and when the Huns are forced to fall back on beef and mutton the carcasses will not stay cured as does the pork. "This would, however, be," says Dr. Kitchener, "only a disagreeable matter, and could not be described as need," because a serious famine would not be nearly so serious, as a famine of bread and potatoes. The position is described by the doctor "in these words: "Bread must be, meat must be." Just here is where farming will beat the

Scientifically Built Roofing

The General says:—"The Boss who comes down to his roll-top desk at 10 a. m. and leaves at 2 p. m. may get away with it—but I never could. It took years of investigation and labor to bring 'Certain-tee'd Roofing' up to its present high quality standard."

Certain-tee'd Roofing

Certain-tee'd Roofing quality is the result of thousands of experiments in our laboratories and on the roof—a world wide search for the best raw materials—a study of the effect of the rain, snow, sun, wind, heat and cold on the materials used—and Certain-tee'd costs no more than the ordinary kind.

Germany; they'll find that soon after they are short of meat, and animals in our laboratories, they will be short of bread and potatoes because a reduction in the size of their crops on farmed land will take place—as soon as they part with live stock, while they have no waste land to fall back on and their highly-prized forests will give them a lot of work before the land covered by those forests is fit for cultivation; then when they (the forests) are removed suddenly there will be lots of troubles with soil moisture, not only in the place where the trees stood, but also in the surrounding country; as altogether it looks hopeful—for anyone but the Germans.
