COVEHEAD

The W. C. Y. P. S. met at the home of Mrs. Frank Auld, Sr., on Friday evening, February 10. Thirty-five were present. Mr. Orr McCann President, occupied the chair. After singing two hymns, Rev. Mr. Wilson led in prayer. Mr. Chas. T. Bovyer read the Scripture lesson after which Rev. Mr. Wilson gave a splendid address on "The Church and what it stood for". He pointed out clearly that the church was built on a strong foundation and it would never fall. At the close of the meeting a new election of officers took place. The following were elected: President, Miss Edith Cameron; Vice-president, Lorne MacMillan; Secretary, Miss Nan Auld; Treasurer, Wilbur Robinson. A committee was also appointed to transact the business of erecting an open air rink. The following were elected: Messrs. Frank Hughes, Frankie Auld, Millar Bearisto and Chas. Marshall. The entertainment committee then took charge and two contests were put on. The winners of the first contest were, Mr. Clayton Matthews and Miss Cameron. The second contest prize was won by Frankie Auld and Mrs. Chas. Marshall. A dainty lunch was served and at midnight each dispersed to their respective homes.

Mr. Nathan MacMillan our aged and respected citizen of 88 years is hale and hearty and is busily engaged in doing his usual daily work.

The funeral of the late Thomas E. Townshend took place from MacLean's Funeral Home on Tuesday afternoon. The late Mr. Townshend was only 26 years of age. He was a fine young man of christian character and bore his suffering with great patience. Service at the home was conducted by Rev. Dr. Ramsay. All that was left of the mortal body was laid to rest in Covehead Cemetery. Prayer at the grave was given by Mr. Wallace MacDonald. Mr. Arthur Townshend of Covehead Road is a brother. The sympathy of the community goes out to the bereaved.

The recent rain of the past week melted the snow—and fed the streams. So great was the flow of water that it broke the dam at Marshall's Mill. Mr. Marshall who was at the dam at the time got an icy bath.

On Sunday evening, Feb. 12th, service was held in Covehead Road Church. The church was filled to the door. Special music was rendered by Union Road Choir. Rev. T. Wilson gave an inspiring sermon on John 3-8 verse. It is hoped the Union Road Choir will come back again soon.

Miss Edith McLaughlin, Suffolk, spent the week end at her home in Stanhope.

THE ST. ANDREW'S UNITED CHURCH, SYDNEY, N. S.

The annual congregational meeting of St. Andrew's United Church was held in St. Andrew's Hall, Sydney, on Wednesday evening. Following a devotional perior, conducted by the pastor, Rev. E. Melville Aitken, B. A., the chair was taken by Mr. A. N. MacLennan. Mr. J. M. MacLeod acted as secretary. Reports from all branches of the church's activities indicated a most successful year, notwithstanding adverse industrial conditions. About $6,000.00 was sent forward from the congregation for the missionary enterprises of the United Church of Canada. Current revenue was well maintained and careful supervision of expenditures resulted in a very favorable financial report by the treasurer. Increased interest and added membership was registered in the seven Sunday Schools of the congregation all of whom are fortunate in their staff of superintendents and officers. The present membership of the combined schools is about 1,000 and the average attendance for 1932 showed a remarkable increase over that of the previous years.

The session report was read by the Moderator, Rev. Mr. Aitken. It was a splendid review of the work of the church and expressed thankfulness for the fellowship and hearty unanimity existing throughout the congregation. Special reference was made to the Pastor Emeritus, Dr. Pringle, in which was expressed the pleasure it gave the members upon his return in April from further service in frontier mission work and the whole-hearted assistance he has since rendered in the congregation and to the pastor. The present Communicant membership is 1223. There was added to the roll during the year 160. 24 were removed by death, 13 of whom were members. 51 received the Sacrament of baptism and 19 marriages were solemnized. Tribute was also paid Prof. Fletcher and choir. The thanks of the congregation was extended to the pastors and all organizations for the magnificent work accomplished throughout the year.

CLARENCE P. STEWART

The following was copied from a New Glasgow N. S. paper. Mrs. C. P. Stewart is a sister of Mrs. (Rev. Dr.) M. E. Genge of Tryon, and has many relatives on P. E. I. who will sympathize with her in her sad bereavement.

A week ago, Mr. Clarence Stewart, of Little Harbor, was in New Glasgow, seeing his friends on the eve of what promised to be a glad Christmas. Yesterday came the word from his home that he was gone. He contracted dreaded pneumonia, and became seriously ill. Yesterday afternoon the end came, and one of the first men of the whole countryside joined the great silent majority.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Alice Munro, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Munro, of Alberry Plains, P. E. I., and one daughter Jean, a graduate nurse from Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal. The latter came home from Montreal during the week to be with her father during his illness.

Clarence Primrose Stewart was born in Pictou 71 years ago and was a scion of the family of well known millers in this county. He leaves two brothers, William, of Avondale and Winfield of Merigomish.

Few men in Pictou County were so well known and so respected as Clarence Stewart. He was known and respected for his sterling qualities. We have never heard an unkind thought expressed towards Clarence Stewart. We are equally sure he had none for any one else. !!For several years he was superintendent of highways and that brought him into contact with people all over the county. The regard for the honest and fair dealing superintendent was general. He was very highy respected.

His beautiful home at Little Harbor was one of the picture spots of the county. He kept it so attractive; it was a constant source of admiration; it was a public asset.

Within that home presided over by the kind Mrs. Stewart, was found the height of hospitality. Far and near knew the Stewart home and envied it. In the home sections of Little Harbor, it was the centre, and Mr. Stewart, the most beloved member of the community. Men there today feel they have lost a brother and the community generally their best friend.

The deepest sympathy goes out to Mrs. Stewart and Miss Jean in their dark bereavement. All mourn with them in the passing of husband and father. They mourn a worthy citizen, a worthwhile gentleman and the head of an outstanding home. The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon, Jan. 2, at two o'clock.

The happy young couple will reside in Charlottetown. Their best of friends throughout the Province wish them both a long and happy wedded life.

Mollison Will Not Return By Plane

(Associated Press)

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 18.—Captain James A. Mollison, who recently flew the south Atlantic, said today he plans to return to England by steamer. The date of his departure has not been set. He may arrange the trip to meet his wife, Amy Johnson, noted British aviatrix, in the Canary Islands.

Mollison's projected round trip to Chile awaits tests to determine whether his light plane can cross the Andes. He arrived last night from Rio De Janeiro, completing the flight from England in seven flying days.

Chronic Athritis Cause Is Obscure

MONTREAL, Feb. 18.—Branding many of the treatments of arthritis as "not only worthless, but instruments of incalculable harm," Dr. W. Paul Holbrook, physician in chief of the Desert Sanatorium and Institute of Research of Tuscon, Arizona, in his lecture yesterday before the American College of Physicians, appealed to members of the medical profession "to stop treating these patients with every new cure suggested, to recognize and treat wisely the early manifestations of the disease and, above all, to honestly explain to the patient the numerous factors necessary in giving him adequate care."

"The treatment of chronic arthritis is still passing through a phase of promiscuous therapy, much as tuberculosis did 20 years ago," was his opening remark. "There has been a tremendous increase in interest concerning rheumatic diseases during the past ten years, and as a result, the medical literature has been flooded with reports of cures accomplished perhaps by eating this or injecting that. As a result, the majority of doctors has been unable to separate fact from fancy.

"Diets, vaccines, conolic irrigations, various forms of electrophysoi and hydro-therapy, typhoid injections, the administration of scores of chemicals by mouth, or by injections, postural correction and even manipulation of the feet have all been hailed by the public, and too often by the medical press, as the answer to the problem of treating chronic arthritis," he continued.

"It is most unfortunate that many of these methods have been made available to the general medical profession, for some of them are not only worthless, but are instruments of incalculable harm. The many remedies offered are, of course, the best evidence of lack of specificity."

Exact Cause Unknown

While handling these thousand cases of various types of arthritis Dr. Holbrook was made increasingly aware of the fact that there is not yet known any one single cause for the disease any more than is a specific cure. He declared that "it is a disease not only of the joints, but is constitutional in scope, manifesting itself in nearly every system of the body." By means of a slide chart he showed 21 endocrines, circulation, gastro-intestinal including among these age, fatigue, exposure, nervous strain, diet, endocrines, circulation, gastric-intestinal dysfunction, constitutional type and malnutrition. These, he continued, illustrate the complexity of the causes and the difficulty of a direct approach to remedies, making it necessary "not to depend upon one agent, but upon every factor possible."

Some of the factors involved in the treatment of chronic atrophic arthritis he enumerated as: rest, exercise, heat, massage, prevention and correction of deformity, diet, bowel management, removal of foci, transfusion vaccine and climatic therapy. These, he said, have been found worth while, but even in the use of these great care must be taken.

Mr. Bell, who lived by himself, was alone in the house at the time, but managed to save some of his furniture. INDOOR GARDENS

Nothing peps up your winter sun porch like an ivy garden. Put a large, three cornered box across one corner of the room and plant it full of ivy. This is a very easy plant to raise, as it thrives in any soil, needing only plenty of water to keep alive.

If you live in a climate where ivy does not grow or cannot be bought, substitute that old standby, wandering jew, in place of it. If neither one is available, don't forget that sweet potato vines are beautiful. You simply take a large sweet potato—one which shows plenty of sprouts on the outside—cut it in two and stick each half in a dish containing a little water. In a short space of time the sprouts will start to grow and soon you will have a luxurious vine growth in each dish.

A Number Of Dangerous Organizations Operating Throughout Dominion

Minister Of Justice Makes Striking Speech Against The Proposal To Amend Criminal Code—Moves Six Months Hoist To The Woodsworth Bill.

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—A number of dangerous organizations were operating throughout the length and breadth of Canada, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, told the House of Commons last night. He was speaking on a bill sponsored by J. S. Woodsworth (Labor, Winnipeg North Centre), which would amend the criminal code making less severe the restrictions against unlawful assembly. It was under this clause, which Mr. Woodsworth wished to amend, that the eight Communists were recently sent to the penitentiary from Toronto.

"We know that there is unrest in the Dominion of Canada today of a very serious nature," the Minister declared, in moving that the bill be given a six months' hoist. He referred particularly to the Canadian Labor Defence League. He was sufficiently aware of the activities of that league to know "that it is a Communist Society of Canada operating under another name."

Threatening Telegrams

The Minister told the House of the threatening telegrams he had received, of the great batch of petitions in connection with the imprisonments of the eight Communists and the riots at Kingston penitentiary. If ever there was a time when the clause against unlawful assembly should be maintained it was now.

"I know that the Canadian Labor Defence League and the Communist Association have their affiliations outside the Dominion of Canada," said Mr. Guthrie. "I know that from telegrams which I have received threatening myself. I have been told that 150,000 Communists in New York are watching me; and I forget how many hundreds of thousands in Chicago—all telegrams framed, I believe, in the City of Toronto."

"Another thing I will state to the House incidentally, and that is that no sooner did the disturbance take place in Kingston penitentiary than I was flooded with telegrams from every quarter of Canada almost before the riot started, all framed in practically the same language, and I think all engineered from the City of Toronto."

With regard to the numerous petitions that had reached him, Mr. Guthrie said that these had come to him from every part of Canada.

"I am not overstating the case when I say that I have thousands and thousands of them. I do not now acknowledge receipt of them, I merely hand them over to the Mounted Police in order that a record may be kept of the names and addresses of these people, and I make that statement so that these parties may know what I do with them.

Not a Single Anglo-Saxon

"I have received some communications in which it is stated that this petition must not be sent to the Minister of Justice but to the head office in Toronto where the names may be registered and compiled, so that the Department of Justice may not know who signed the names and addresses of those who signed them. Some of these communications have inadvertently been sent direct to me, and I can assure the House that in long petitions there does not appear a single Anglo-Saxon or French-Canadian name—nothing but the names of foreigners, and unpronounceable names for the most part.

"I do not know all the ramifications of this society, but I believe that it is closely associated with or affiliated with the friends of the Soviet Society, another society which is operating throughout Canada, particularly in Ontario and Western Canada, and which favors me with its opinions and its petitions. I know from facts compiled through the agency of the Mounted Police that these societies are operating in almost every corner of Western Canada, and the literature which is circulated by somebody, and I attribute it to these societies, is most scandalous and most seditious."

LaPointe Favors Repeal

Those who were "begging the repeal of section 98" do not belong to any of those associations, countered Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former Minister of Justice. While he was a member of the preceding administration he had attended meetings of the cabinet at which representatives of the various labor organizations came to present their programme to the government.

"Those men were devoted to law and order. They were men like the President of the Trades and Labor Council, Tom Moore, whom nobody would accuse of being a Communist, or even a Socialist. Those men have always asked the government for the repeal of that section, because they were afraid that through certain interpretations of it their rights might be violated."

Mr. Lapointe recalled that he had on five occasions introduced legislation to repeal the statute and that the House of Commons had always supported the bill. During the session of 1930 nobody on the opposite side of the House had opposed it.

"If it is a crime to favor the bill introduced by the Hon. member for Winnipeg North Centre all Hon. members who sat opposite me in 1930 and supported the bill introduced at that time—because they did not oppose it—were guilty of a similar crime."

WEAK TEA IS HARMLESS; AVOID STRONG "BREW"

A doctor was asked recently whether he thought it harmful to drink large quantities of very hot tea during the day. This woman would drink it on first waking up, at breakfast, in the middle of the morning, after lunching, at tea time, after supper, and finally, before going to bed. Recently she noticed that she suffered a good deal from heartburn and vague discomfort high up in the stomach.

Tea drinking is harmless enough the doctor said, but it is certainly bad for you to drink it very hot and it is equally bad to drink it very strong. Very strong tea, particularly if it has stood a long time and has become bitter and very hot tea must be very irritating to the stomach; and after a time you are bound to get a chronic gastritis with heartburn and its accompanying unpleasantnesses. If you drink a lot of tea, make it fresh each time.
