

CURTAINS

Owing to the shortage of many household furnishings—Curtains are getting longer use now than ever before. The longer they remain in use the weaker they become from the effects of wear and especially from the effects of the sun.

While we clean all curtains in special laundry nets and handle them with the greatest care possible; yet we receive a small percentage that are so weak and tender that they break, and in a few cases go to pieces.

For these reasons we, like all other laundries accept CURTAINS AT CUSTOMER'S RISK ONLY.

FERTILIZER FACTS

In the following table, we make an endeavour to show the plant food content of various Mixed Fertilizers and to indicate the relation in quantities of the materials from which they are made.

Formula	Units Plant Food in one ton	Price per ton ex our Factory	Pounds Materials That Will Make One Ton				Total Pounds
			Sulphate of Ammonia 20%	Super-Phosphate 20%	Muriate of Potash 60%	Other Materials Sometimes called filler
2-12-6	20	$29.00	200	1200	200	400	2000
3-15-6	24	33.50	300	1500	200	None	2000
4-8-10	22	32.40	400	800	334	466	2000
5-10-10	25	36.00	500	1000	334	166	2000
4-12-6	22	32.75	400	1200	200	200	2000

2-12-6 and 3-15-6 are largely used for similar crops — Grain, Hay, Turnips and Pastures. The latter contains more plant food and less "other materials", resulting in a lower cost per unit for the plant food.
 4-8-10 and 5-10-10 are largely used for Potatoes. The latter contains more plant food and less "other materials", resulting in a lower cost per unit for the plant food.
 4-12-6 is occasionally used for Potatoes. It is a good Grain, Hay and Pasture fertilizer on soils where grass and straw do not thrive.
 We manufacture 2-12-6 only for specially placed orders.
 We make 3-15-6 with 3% Borax at an extra cost of $3.00 per ton.
 We make 4-8-10 and 5-10-10 with 1% soluble Magnesium Oxide at an extra cost of $1.00 per ton.
 "Other materials" is usually Limestone, Sand, or a mixture of both. There is a limit to the quantity of Limestone that can be safely added to Mixed Fertilizers.
 We can make prompt shipment of well cured Mixed Fertilizers, and would suggest your taking delivery as early as possible. THE LABOUR SITUATION IS STILL ACUTE AND WE MAY NOT BE ABLE TO GIVE YOU SATISFACTORY SERVICE IN THE SPRING.
 The car shortage is also a matter for consideration and may prevent us from making shipments when needed.

TOMORROW is Forever by Gwen Bristow

"I know a lot of things about them they don't think I know. I know they don't want me to get mixed up in this war. They haven't said a word, they've been awfully good sports about it but here lately I can see that it's pretty hard on them. I don't think they notice it. We all talked about it—the fellows I mean—and we knew we'd get into it and we sort of took it for granted. I mean the sort of impatient, it seemed silly to stick around doing algebra and things with so much going on. The day of Pearl Harbor I was so mad I could have lit into every Jap gardener I saw and it burned me up to think I couldn't do anything about it. I just wanted to kill them. I still do. The Japs, mean. I never did get that excited about the Germans. I guess it was because they were going after other people but it was the Japs who had tried to sink the whole Navy when the Americans weren't doing anything to them. The Germans—I don't mean because you've a German anyway you never do seem like one—anyway I guess I've been hearing about Hitler practically all my life and I guess I got kind of used to him."
 "I suppose you would," Kessler observed thoughtfully. "You were eight years old when he burned the books."
 "Was I? I don't remember it. The first thing I remember—I think it was the first thing—was something about pogrom. The boss read about it in the paper, and he laughed. I suppose that sounds strange to you, but he did, and my mother too. The boss said, 'Imagine his thinking that he can get away with anything like that in this day and age, and my mother said, 'Oh, the man's insane, Spratt I asked what a pogrom was and my mother said it was just a bunch of people who think so highly of themselves that they want to exterminate everybody who isn't exactly like them. I was just a little boy then. I had forgotten about that, but I remembered it the other night when some fellow was talking about Margaret. That night I couldn't go to sleep for thinking about it. I thought that was the trouble with my folks, they're decent, they're so decent they're innocent, like children who don't know anything can happen to them."
 "They are, Dick. All civilized people are. I was thinking the same thing a few minutes ago."
 "Well, I was pretty innocent myself until just lately," Dick confessed with confiding wisdom. "I thought wars were just a bunch of because somebody had to run the earth and it had better be your side than their side, and mostly wars were fought to take care of trade and profits and it was principally the Morgans who got us into the last one. Don't think I had been in this one if the Japs had minded their own business. Now I see that's not right, you can't go along letting things happen the way they are happening, things like Margaret I mean. But what I want to know is, what can I do to my mother and father? I just can't go off and have them smiling and shriveling up inside the way they're doing. Don't think my mother has said anything to me, Mr. Kessler. She hasn't. She won't either. But I can't go off grinning and let them think I don't know anything about it. You see, there's something else I know you don't know. Dick continued regarding his friend so earnestly that he gave him a pucker between his brows. "The boss is my mother's second husband and she never says anything much about the other guy, just occasionally when she's had to fill out legal paper and give all the names she's ever been known by, or something like that, in fact it was so long ago I suppose she's more or less forgotten about it. But any-

Dorothy Dix Says—
 overdo her press-agenting of him. We are all glad when the Mrs. thinks that she married a world's wonder, but we don't want to have him stuffed down our throats every time we meet her.
 Moreover, it is a dangerous thing for a wife to be continually belittling her husband's charms and virtues. He gets to believe her and to feel that he should not waste all of his fascinations on a mere wife, but to spread them around among all the younger and prettier women of his acquaintance.
