parently the Herbaic gentleman who opened the door and surveyed the assembly some minutes later thought so too for he pointed to Ferguson and said: "Come this way."

Ferguson was third, but it was not time to stand on ceremony and he followed the Hebraic one long the corridor to his office.

"Sit down. What's your name?"

"John Ferguson."

"Ferguson. Scotch, isn't it?"

"Yes."

"My name's Scotch, too," the other said. "I'm the staff-supervisor. What experience have you had in salesmanship?"

"None. But I want a job pretty badly."

"We're publishers. But we sell direct to the public. No shops. We publish things like these . . ."

He made an expansive gesture to a bookcase before he continued: "See? Complete editions of Scott, Dickens and the classic. They sell like hot cakes to people like schoolmasters and parsons. Deferred payments. All you do is to get the order; we do the rest. That's our best line —and Empire Encyclopaedia. Twelve volumes published at ten guineas. You get ten per cent. A guinea for every order you get see? One of our man sold seeven sets last week as well as other stuff he got rid of. See?"

"I'll try it," said Ferguson. "Do I have a special locality to work in?"

"No. You go anywhere you like. No limit to your earnings. The more we pay the better pleased we are. You got to deposit a pound to cover the value of the samples. Returnable, of course, if you turn the job in. What about it?"

"I'll have a shot at it."

"We don't always insist on the deposit. You seem a decent sort of chap. You see the idea? That's a dummy set. Open it out . . . so . . . and it shows what the set of books looks like in a bookcase. See? That's a sample book. You get three different ones. See? Better to concentrate on the Empire Encyclopaedia. See? We provide a bag. It all fits in very nice and it isn't heavy."

"Right-ho."

"Here's the order forms and addressed envelops. You come in Saturday morning, ten o'clock, to draw what's due. Good luck!"

"You don't want references?" Ferguson asked.

"No. I rely on my own judgment of a man. You needn't bother about the deposit, either."

"Thank you. Watever happens, I shall return the bag and the samples."

"Just fill in that form, then, will you?"

President Reviews Quarter - century Institute History

"We feel proud of a work that has brought so much comfort and enjoyment to our population," Mrs. L. B. Mellish, Montague, president of the Prince Edward Island Women's Institute declared at the silver jubilee banquet of the organization Thursday night. Mrs. Mellish replying to a toast to the Institute continued, "We see so much to be done, we must still press on. Let us go forward in the good work, for our homes, schools, communities, province and Dominion! Yes, for the whole wide world." Let us continue to pray that peace may cover this earth as the waters cover the great deep, and that our homes may be filled with happiness."

The dinner at which Mrs. Mellish spoke was held in the Canadian National Hotel and marked the close of the 25th annual convention of the Institute. The text of her remarks follows:

"It is my happy privilege to respond to the toast to our Provincial Women's Institutes. We are grateful for the kind words of appreciation and commendation from the gentleman who has just spoken. We are pleased that our work is being recognized, but we are not satisfied—we must press on. There are still many communities not embraced in our organization, and receiving the benefits at hand. Our membership of four thousand (4,000) in this Province ought to be doubled.

"The Provincial Women's Institute convention which closed this afternoon, marks the silver anniversary of our work here. The first Women's Institute was organized by Miss Catherine James, Charlottetown, in 1913. She was a graduate of McDonald College. Our first president was Miss Lulu Yeo. All past-presidents (except one) are guests at this banquet. We would reverently pause, and remember with deep gratitude, Mrs. McDonald, one of our past-presidents, who has gone to her eternal reward. She was untiring in her zeal to advance the work of Women's Institutes, at home and abroad. She was in line for the National Presidency when ill health came. She was loved and revered by all who knew her. When we have passed on, will those who follow in our steps be able to say of us what has been said of Mrs. McDonald tonight?

"We are grateful to our Government for unfailing cooperation and help, for a quarter of a century. It does not matter which party is in power, we know they are in sympathy with our work. Being nonsectarian and non-party, politically, is one of the greatest assets of our Organization. All classes and creeds, banded together for the common good of all.

"Since 1936 we have been more than a provincial unit—more than a national one. We have been affiliated with the Associated Country Women of the World. Conferences of this world organization met in London in 1929; in Vienna in 1930; in Stockholm in 1933; and in Washington in 1937. Our representative at the Washington conference was Mrs. Allison MacMillan, then Provincial President. There were 7,300 delegates present, from 29 countries. The International President, Mrs. Watt, is of Canada and England. Mrs. Roosevelt, herself a member of a rural organization in New York State, speaking at the Washington conference stressed cooperation, and said that rural women made it possible for men to conquer hardships in new countries. She said women must lead in a great peace movement; they must go further than desire peace; they must understand the economic problems that bring about discord, and put inspiration into their work. Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary are members of the Women's Institute. Lady Tweedsmuir is affiliated with the work in Ontario, and in our own province, Mrs. DeBlois, wife of our beloved Lieutenant Governor, is Honorary Provincial President of our organization.

"When the convention of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada was held in Charlottetown, June, 1935, you had an opportunity of hearing of the work carried on from coast to coast. No doubt, through the influence of Mrs. Walter Shaw—an officer on the Federated Board—we had the privilege of entertaining the conference. Due to these contacts, and also to the Press, many of our women carry on a correspondence with women of other countries. A New Zealand woman wrote: 'We have no idea where Prince Edward Island is, but if it is near Calgary, Ontario, I have an uncle there.' The P. E. I. woman had sent her a calendar of the Dionne quints. She said: 'The girls wanted it in their room; perhaps you will send me another?' She spoke of the winter there, in July, and 'not a leaf on a tree, nor a flower do we see'.

"Now, to become reminiscent, of our province—the year following the organization of our present Institutes, the Great War began. Our motto for "Home and Country" was almost forgotten, for we emerged 'over night' into 'Patriotic Societies'. There was the ceaseless round of knitting, sewing, and packing boxes for our boys, in France and elsewhere. This strenuous time will never be forgotten by our people, as for months and years we watched and prayed, with anxious hearts, for the war to cease. Thousands of dollars were raised for Red Cross purposes. Finally, the news of 'victory' flashed over the wires, and the Armistice was signed November 11, 1918. In 1919 Institutes took a leading part in welcoming returning men, and many presentations were made. One Branch presented each soldier in that community with a gold piece. All were glad to receive their boys, but some hearts were saddened, for many had made the supreme sacrifice and were sleeping beneath the poppies in Flanders' fields. Many memorials were erected to our fallen heroes, by Women's Institutes in our province. Let us remember, with undying love and gratitude, those who fought and counted their lives not dear unto themselves, that we might enjoy the blessings of freedom.

"After the war, Institutes again took up the work for school and community. As the years passed our interests became—'Legion'.

"In 1920 we advocated medical examination in public schools, with the result that today no child need be handicapped. Institutes everywhere are enthusiastic in Red Cross work. Dental Clinics receive their support, and, although we have not reached the goal in this work, a start has been made. The present Provincial Vice-President, Mrs. Wyand, was untiring in her efforts for many years, to help make Dental Clinics possible, wherever needed, provincially. We know Mrs. Wyand is still interested and will do all in her power to make possible what she was the means of starting. We have Dr. Thompson with us tonight, and he will tell us of the Dental Clinic work.

"The Women's Institutes in this province took a very important part in making possible our Sanatorium, and are every ready to help support that indispensable institution.

"Orphanages are always remembered by our Branches, and many Institutes lead in the annual campaign for funds to support these homes for children.

"During the Carnegie Library demonstration in this province, had it not been for Women's Institutes, many centres would not have enjoyed the privilege of literature. The Branches wherever advisable did all in their power to make a library possible.

"Many of our members are on the trustee board of our public schools, and take a deep interest in education, and are ever on the alert to see that teachers and pupils have every modern facility.

"Institute members are always interested in a mission of love and charity, and many persons have been helped over the hard places of life through their benevolence. Families, when overtaken by circumstances over which they had no control, have been provided with food, clothing, fuel, and, in many instances, a nurse's care. I recall about ten years ago, a returned soldier, srtanded in our province, looking for work. No organization helped him in the town where he appealed for aid. The matter was referred to the president of the local Women's Institute. She immediately called a meeting of the members, with the result—the man was made welcome at a hotel, his bill paid there, money was supplied for incidental expenses, and a railway ticket purchased for him to his home at Pictou. 'In-as-much as ye have done it unto the least of these, ye have done it unto Me'.

"The Women's Institute is vitally interested in Adult Education, short courses on various subjects, Girls' Sewing Clubs, nursing classes, handicraft exhibits, demonstrations along various lines, assisting hospitals, etc. One Institute undertook to furnish an operating room when a small institution was established in their midst.

"The organization has a Rest Room for rural women coming to Charlottetown. There they may, with their children, be refreshed while waiting. This nicely-furnished, homey room may be found in the Currie Block, on Queen Street. It is made possible by the generosity of the Department of Agriculture.

"I must not fail to mention the broadcasts last winter. We feel sure they were very educational, and were received with a great deal of pleasure, especially by our rural women.

"As we try to recall the accomplishments of 25 years, we seem to have had part in everything except legislation—and I am wondering what our men would say, if we were to step into the political arena?

"We feel proud of a work that has brought so much comfort and enjoyment to our population; but we see so much to be done, we must, still, press on. Let us go forward in the good work, for our homes, schools, communities, province, and Dominion! Yes—for the whole wide world! Let us continue to pray that PEACE may cover this earth, as the waters cover the great deep, and that our homes may be filled with happiness. Let us dedicate all our powers, and live for God and Truth and Right; for home and every land," Mrs. Mellish concluded.

SLEEPS BESIDE SLAIN MOTHER

LEICESTERFIELD, Jamaica, June 23 — (CP) — Relatives who broke down a door when Mrs. Selina Chambers, a shop-keeper, failed to appear for breakfast, found her on the floor with her throat slashed and her body sealed to the floor by coagulated blood.

Her infant son, apparently having awakened during the night and not finding his mother in bed, crawled to the floor and was found peacefully asleep beside her body.

Some strand of our own mischief is involved in every quarrel.
