bonuses or bounties; (3) members with free passes on railways and accepting mileage; (4) reciprocity with the United States; (5) the tariff; (6) Senate reform; (7) public lands for the settler only; (8) public ownership of public utilities; (9) representatives of the people rather than of party; (10) accepting assistance from campaign funds raised outside the constituency.

It seems probable that the candidates in Ontario at least will be pretty closely questioned in respect to their attitudes on many proposed reforms. The questions proposed as well as the entire discussion at the meeting indicate a growing measure of independence in regard to party affiliation and a growing disposition to vote for the welfare and prosperity of Canada's great basic industry, the cultivation of the soil. It may be doubted, however, whether the agriculturists of the country will be effectively organized for the protection and furtherance of their calling for years to come. It has been several times attempted, but with no lasting success. The best that can be hoped for the immediate future is a larger measure of political independence. The farmers are by far the largest class of voters following any one calling in Canada, and far from being the least intelligent, but they exercise less control of the Government and Parliament than is exercised by one tenth as many manufacturers. This ought not to be. But just so long as our farmers are thick and thin supporters of one or other of the two parties and careless of the interests of their own calling their votes will be exploited by scheming politicians as they have been in the past.

HANDICAPPED. The man who started to run a race in chains and fetters would be visibly handicapped. No one would expect him to succeed. The man who runs the race of life when his digestive and nutritive organs are diseased is equally handicapped. In the one case his strength is over-weighted, in the other it is under-mined. Success demands above all else a sound stomach. Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical...

SIR GEORGE DIBBS. Picturesque Career of the Former Premier of the Australian Colony of New South Wales.

Marquis de Fontenoy: Sir George Dibbs, former Premier of the Australian colony of New South Wales, has had an extraordinary career. He began life as an office boy in a wine merchant's firm in Sydney, after which he took to sea. During the Civil war here, and again during the trouble in South America, some years later, he acquired considerable notoriety and wealth as a blockade runner, but after returning to Australia he quickly lost all his money and became a bankrupt. This led him to abandon business for politics. But being blessed with an ungovernable temper, it was not long before he got into trouble by assaulting a political opponent with such vigor that he half killed him, being sentenced to twelve months in the penitentiary for the offence.

While in prison he was forced to work in the same way as the other convicts and learned the trade of wood-carving. In the course of time his forcible methods landed him in the Premiership of New South Wales, and one of his first acts on becoming Prime Minister was to appoint the jailer who had had special charge of him while in prison to the governorship of the penitentiary where he had been incarcerated. On the occasion of his visit to England as Colonial Premier he was summoned to Windsor, and not only invited to dinner, but also knighted by Queen Victoria, to whom as a token of respect, he presented a beautifully carved walking stick, which he had carved while doing time in one of Her Majesty's jails in Australia. He was breezy in his conversation, his remarks being rendered refreshing by his lack of education, and I recall a funny incident in this connection, in the course of a political speech which he delivered. He had quoted a Biblical passage in support of his arguments, whereupon one of his political opponents rather maliciously inquired whether the verse was 'in the Donay version,' that being the name of the English translation of the Bible in use among Roman Catholics. Sir George haughtily retorted, 'The honorable gentleman may go to the library and consult Mr. Dooley if he likes, I have no time to do so.'

The roar of laughter that ensued disconcerted Sir George and he subsequently had much difficulty to appease the wrath of his Catholic friends and political supporters, who naturally fancied that some slight to their religion was intended by the suggestion that their version of the Bible was the work of 'Mr. Dooley.'
