

The Beauty of Crown and Country Depends on Paint

Prepared Paints are Gaining Ground

People are becoming convinced that it pays them to buy prepared paint rather than to trust to the painter to mix it up.

not is taken away that which he hath. All that is needed to bring about a more tolerable condition in a community than that which produced burnt out Sodom and Gomorrah is to refuse entrance to God's messenger and to reject his message.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 16.

JUDGEMENT AND MERCY.

Matt. 11: 2-30.

GOLDEN TEXT.

"Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."—Matt. 11: 28.

POINTED SUGGESTIONS.

By Rev. D. W. Snider.

If this lesson appears difficult, do not aggravate the situation by endeavor to get at its teaching by sheer brain-sweat. The key to its interpretation will rather be found through the affectional.

It will be profitable to let the heart find what it can discover in verses 22-27 in the lesson before attempting to unlock the apparently forbidding and judgment like bolts of verses 20-24.

Have not verses 25-27 a close companion in what Jesus has said elsewhere, namely, "Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall in no wise enter into the kingdom of heaven?" Spiritual insight, it must be learned, can only be given to fresh, frank, tender simplicity.

The worldly-wise and the pharisaically self-sufficient must measure down to that fundamental law of moral greatness and spiritual power, or fall in the very things upon which they plume their pride.

The will of Jesus to admit into the secrets and mysteries of the Kingdom the simple, open-hearted and teachable of necessity cuts the other way and excludes the egotistical and self-vaunting and sneeringly unresponsive. But they exclude them. Malice does not. Unfairness does not. It is their attitude to the tender loving which does it.

Thus the "wise and prudent" of the cities of Galilee brought judgment upon themselves. They were blinded to their opportunity and were deprived of the blessings of discipleship through their unteachableness and that self-conceit which, while courteous is proudly and, sometimes, offensively, non-committal.

When one would compare the merits or demerits of cities one with another he must keep in mind what he must also do in comparing the goodness or badness of one man with another. It is quite possible that one man may resist ten-fold more temptation than another before he makes shipwreck like the going down of the Titanic, while the sin of the other is insidious, constant, and scarcely discoverable until the flash of judgment day. Better let Almighty God decide between Chorazin and Sidon, Bethsaida and Tyre, Capernaum and Sodom.

Take note of the great things which were revealed to "babes" and "nurslings" and the simplicity of spiritual understanding which will make them to you like truths which are "felt." For example, what is the impress upon soul which is made by the fact that the Father gave all authority to Jesus? For what ends was that authority given? Can you test it by your own experience? Whereby is your assurance that your experience tests it?

The precious invitation, the urgent exhortation and the sure promises of verses 28-30 are full of the plan and power of the gospel. The verses are as sweet as bird-song and fresh as the waters from a mountain spring.

But better than any rhetoric about them is the going about it to make the voice of Jesus at the "vernal heart." One thing is certain—the voice is no galling it ought to be thrown away.
