Brief Session Of Town Council
 The Summerside Town Council met last evening for their regular monthly meeting but after a brief session adjourned to caucus to discuss electric light matters.
 Mayor Robinson, presiding, spoke with feeling of the loss the Council had sustained on the sad and sudden passing of the assistant clerk, Miss Mollie Mielke. During the course of the meeting the Council expressed their great sorrow in the passing of one they honored and respected. The following resolution of condolence was passed:
 "Whereas it has pleased Almighty God, in His infinite wisdom, to call home unto Himself our efficient and devoted assistant clerk, Miss Mollie Mielke.
 "Therefore be it resolved that we place on record our grateful appreciation of the faithful service rendered to this town during her years of service, and we realize the great loss we have sustained in her passing.
 "And be it further resolved that we extend to her father and mother and each member of the family, our deep and sincere sympathy in the great loss they have sustained, and assure them of our sympathy, while we fully realize that the Great Master himself will never ask us to carry any cross that he will not give us the grace and strength to bear."
 Moved by A. Stirling MacKay, seconded by J. M. Nicholson.
 After the reading of the minutes paid bills were passed to the amount of $443.50 and town electric light paid bills $639.32. The unpaid bills were left over. A by-law was then introduced and passed asking for regulations with regard to the height and structure of building within a certain area of the airport.
 Councillor Nicholson reported arrangements complete for the Remembrance Day program.
 The police report showed that 32 persons were convicted of drunkenness and one vagrant, fines collected amounted to $192.52.
 Councillor MacNeill reported good progress on the streets.
 Council then adjourned to discuss electric light matters. S.

Fred Astaire And Ginger Rogers In "Shall We Dance"
 Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers have topped all their previous efforts in "Shall We Dance," their latest RKO Radio film, which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre.
 Funnier and faster than their earlier pictures, the romantic aspects and the comedy of the new musical, have been definitely stressed, making for greater entertainment value, while the songs and the dance novelties that film-goers have learned to expect in the Astaire-Rogers offerings are present in abundance, and brilliantly conceived.
 The story itself is a novelty in the team's annals, for it presents a glittering background of Paris and the dance novelties that film-goers have learned to expect in the Astaire-Rogers offerings are present in abundance, and brilliantly conceived.
 The City had received a great deal of unfavorable publicity in connection with the case and the felt the council should do nothing to add to the publicity.
 Councillor E. A. Foster, second of the resolution said he, "couldn't add much to the remarks of the last speaker." He thought that as a member of the police committee there was nothing else to do but second the resolution.
 Coun. A. A. Hennessey told the council he was a member of the Police Committee but had not been present at any meeting of that body when the question dealt with in the resolution had been discussed. He was repeating what he said before, "that is without sin let him cast the first stone." Doyle was a good officer. He had been 22 years with the city and this was his first offense. Coun. Hennessey said he felt if the matter could have been left in the hands of the Magistrate that mercy would have been shown. He suggested if the vote went against Officer Doyle that the Council re-consider the matter and give him an opportunity to resign.
 Coun. Dr. C. H. Dougan said he couldn't see in the by-law where the council was given any authority to make recommendations. He advised that they go very slowly in the matter of taking in a resolution as perhaps they were going on record as doing something which, under the constitution and by-laws they had absolutely no authority to do. So far as he could see the power was vested in the Magistrate.
 There was no exactly similar case, Coun. McIntyre said, but in cases where a man was to be severely reprimanded recommendations had been made. "If we overlook this one, it's none of our affair. I do not think it will be taken very well by the citizens. We will be held accountable," the speaker believed.
 Stipendiary Magistrate Martin said the Council had a perfect right to make any request they liked. He had told them that he would follow any reasonable request.
 Coun. Dougan thought that perhaps they should ask for Sergeant Doyle's resignation before they put through the resolution.
 When he was elected to the Council it was with the idea that if he devoted his time to the City the way he did to his own business he might be of some value. Coun. R. C. O'handler said. Taking that attitude he knew that if he had a man in his employ for 22 years who had given reasonably good service and had made one mistake he would not discharge him. Therefore he would vote against the resolution, the speaker informed the meeting.
 Coun. McIntyre said he wanted it understood that it was not a personal matter. There was not a man at the Council that had not sympathy for the officer but he was a public servant, engaged to enforce the law and no comparison could be made with private business when considering dismissal. The Councillors represented the citizens, and should act in their interests.
 Coun. Hennessey said that of all the officers Sergeant Doyle was the most active on criminal cases. He believed that if he got another chance there would be no further trouble. "Pretty nearly every citizen who keeps in touch with the police says this was one of the best officers," the Councillor declared.
 Following the vote which resulted in defeat of the resolution five to three Mayor Turner said he regretted that "this course has been adopted because I believe the prestige of Charlottetown is at stake."
 Coun. Hennessey objected to the Mayor speaking after the resolution was defeated, claiming it was contrary to parliamentary procedure.

 "Do you object to me giving my views in the matter?" the Mayor asked, and Coun. Hennessey replied "I certainly do." Coun. Foster thought the Mayor "had a perfect right to speak" and both Coun. McLeod and Coun. Chandler agreed that His Worship should have the privilege of expressing his opinion. "I'm perfectly satisfied," Coun. Hennessey said.
 "I believe in placing my position definitely before the citizens of Charlottetown," Mayor Turner said. "I believe the prestige of the City will be lowered unless very drastic steps are taken in connection with this matter. I am sorry the resolution has been lost. I tell you frankly if it had been a tie I would have voted for it."
 Coun. Vanderstine began to give his views in the matter and Coun. Hennessey objected that the speaker "was definitely out of order." The Mayor ruled that if Coun. Vanderstine wished to bring in another resolution he could speak but the discussion dropped there.
 The matter was in the hands of the Magistrate and a report would be made at the next meeting of the Council, Mayor Turner announced.

clerics, Bishop Kelly of Oklahoma, Bishop Morrison of Antigonish and the late Archbishop O'Brian of Halifax, but I suppose he forgot about them. The tribute in question, originally appeared in the Toronto Evening Telegram, and was from the pen of W. W. McPhee, now with that paper, a native of Prince Edward Island and former editor of the Orange Sentinel. If Mr. McPhee had just paid tribute to the high position which those men had attained in the hierarchy of the Church, it would indeed have been a magnificent display of tolerance which is so badly needed in this chaotic world, where nations and peoples should mingle in a common bond of friendship to combat and counteract the hammer and anvil of Communism. However, the magnanimity or spasmodic spur of tolerance loses its magnanimity in the exuberance of his eulogistic declamation on the attributes of the curricula of public schools. It reminds me of a young lady who said "age before beauty," as she conceded her seat to an elderly woman. The latter, somewhat nettled, replied that it would take glasses to see the beauty, to which the former retorted that one would not need glasses to see the age. It might require a magnifying glass to see the tolerance in the article by Mr. McPhee in his tribute to our clergy, but knowing him personally over twenty years ago, having lived directly across the street from him for several years and knowing his then religious sympathies (or antipathies) for those not of his own denomination, I must take his present tribute with a pinch of salt to make it palatable. It requires no glasses or second reading to see its bitter veiled attack upon our parochial school system throughout Canada. In justice to all concerned, I cannot expect Mr. McPhee's statements, because he attributes the high positions attained by those clerics, to the foundation laid in public schools. I most emphatically deny that a religious vocation ever got the chance of being founded on a public school education because it is a well known fact that in the majority of public schools a religious emblem can find no place and teachers wearing them have often to remove them before entering the classroom. It is also a well known fact that for years, and I might say for centuries, certain organizations have carried on a bitter war against those very schools in which the knowledge and love of God have always been taught and always will be taught until the end of time; schools in which God takes precedence over the materialistic side of life, and lastly, schools which constitute the answer to the question: "How shall we rid our country of Communism?" Teach each and every child the knowledge of God and our faith in His love and His protection. That is your answer. However, they will never get the knowledge and love of God in public schools, while for centuries the general trend has been to keep God out of the schools.
 It is not my intention to depreciate the value of the education to be obtained in public schools. That is not the point at issue. I am merely meeting Mr. McPhee upon his own ground, and because he involved several members of our hierarchy, citing them as shining examples of a public school education, knowing him so well for many years, I cannot help feeling a veritable itching to take him down a peg or two. He totally overlooks the fact that a male student is really only a boy when he is already all through with the public schools. His broadening out only comes later in some college, and any university which really fits him for the high position which he is later destined to fill.
 Mr. McPhee is a native of Prince Edward Island and he should know that this is a rural province with very few cities or towns. In fact, it has been called the "Million Acre Farm" and at present were it not for a too one sided government, it might now be known as the "Million Acre National Park", the whole Island being a huge park, the like of which would be hard to find elsewhere in Canada. The rural loveliness of our own dear native land cannot be surpassed anywhere. I know, because I have travelled from coast to coast in the United States, also in many parts of Canada, and also in islands beyond the coast.

 Getting back to the subject of Mr. McPhee, if those prelates which he mentioned, began their education in a public school, it was that in a rural province like ours, there are very few parochial schools, unfortunately.
 Mr. McPhee's veiled attack on our parochial school system, camouflaged by a preface of seeming tribute to our clergy, is like serving one some whipped cream on a piece of rhubarb pie, in which one had forgotten to put the sugar.

 Let Mr. McPhee come forward and show us how a religious vocation can be inspired by the education which one receives in public schools, where a crucifix is denied a place within its walls and in some countries the mere mention of religion in the schools is equivalent to waving a red flag in the face of a bull, and means the discharge of the teacher who would make such a break.
 As Mr. McPhee seems to have very little to do, and as his early education evidently did not inspire him with a longing to reach the heights, I would suggest that just for a hobby, he might take up the study of several adages, paying special attention to such as "Live and let live," "Credit to whom credit is due," and while I would not for the world intimate that he ever had amphibian ancestors, I would say to Mr. McPhee, "Look before you leap," next time you tread on dangerous ground!
