Canadians Prove Toughest Fighters

(By J. E. H. Sutherland, editor of The Evening News, New Glasgow, N.S., Maritime member of the recently returned Canadian Press party.)

Canadian soldiers are the toughest, best trained and cockiest fighting men in the United Kingdom today. They fear none; they'll match all.

I express that opinion after seeing a complete cross-section of our British overseas and comparing them with British, American and other soldiers now standing across the English Channel waiting for the word to descend upon the Germans.

And descend they will. Dieppe showed it was possible—at a tremendous high price—to teach the lessons of Dieppe will cut the cost when the real thing comes. The time will be decided upon by our leaders—but they are no longer thinking of defense only.

In interviews granted to the Canadian newspapermen just back from Britain, our leaders emphasized that offensive is their aim today. Air Vice Marshall Harold "Gus" Edwards referred to the Channel as a "trap" which our Air Force would jump to get things started. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton said, "If anyone thought our men came to Britain to sit safely on this side of the Channel they've got another thing coming."

They will come through beating Germany on the continent. Our leaders are constantly preparing for the battles which will follow.

In our tour of Canadian forces in the United Kingdom, Canadian leaders spoke frankly to us.

McNaughton told us we had come at his request. Soldiers had been in Britain for months and years and there was a danger, he thought, that the Army and home-land could get out of touch with today's total war, it was necessary that citizen and soldier should be partners.

Beating the Enemy forces are simply the expression of the task of beating the enemy. Because of the necessity of our long separation from home we over here must not allow ourselves to lose contact with the people we represent.

"That is why I asked the Canadian Government to send over a representative party of newspapermen who can see what we are doing and interpret it to the people back home for whom we are preparing to fight."

McNaughton said these words at the beginning of our tour and throughout our trip every effort was made to ensure our getting a complete understanding of what was going on.

At the end of the trip we met McNaughton again and in that interview he asked for no pulling of punches when we got back, no smothering of criticism. He asked us to print nothing which would be useful to the enemy.

In their efforts to show us what was being accomplished our Army leaders tried to ensure our getting a complete understanding of what was going on.

Being unable to be discussed in this or succeeding articles. But I can say that the Germans are in for plenty of trouble when the time comes.

I say "plenty" because these developments are being made available to British and American forces. The invasions and improvements of one country are being passed along to the others of the United Nations.

At one such demonstration, American officers were present and I overheard a couple talking as we jointly nosed around the weapon here; we'll have to order it when at once," one said to the other.

McNaughton, Crerar and the other high-ranking Canadian officers are tops in any company. We met numerous British cabinet members in the most impressive man we met was McNaughton and Lt. Gen. H. D. G. Crerar was next.

McNaughton brings a scientist's mind to the United Nations—and remember our generals have a record of being slow to adopt new developments in slow comparison to the Germans.

Newness in itself does not interest McNaughton.

Carl Atard Gadgets

"We've got to distinguish between some handy gadget and a new weapon which will help our men kill the enemy. The soldier has enough to carry what he can't afford gadgets but we do want every improvement."

McNaughton and his Generals, however, are far from the cold and scientific professors of the movies. They have a scientific approach to all problems, fortunately for our boys, but they have the warmth and humanitarian outlook of a country doctor.

They've better weapons and lots of them, to save the lives of our soldiers. Constantly they're watching the welfare of the men. It can be one instance which took place at the second interview as an illustration.

In the field I had had a conversation with Captain Henry Townsend, former New Glasgow and Louisbourg doctor, and George "Horseshoe" MacLeod, New Waterford dentist and a former Dalhousie University football star, on the teeth of the troops.

McNaughton asked for criticisms so I told him how MacLeod had contended the lack of milk and fruit was resulting in poorer teeth and that he could tell how long a man had been in England merely by looking at his teeth and his gums.

"That so?" said McNaughton, wheeling in his chair. "What about it Turner?"

Major-General G. R. Turner, a Fredericton native replied: "Yes, that's been bothering us for some months. The diet we can give the men is necessarily restricted to the supplies we can get over the Atlantic. It's a study and a study we found how to get the right vitamins and minerals to the troops and then we had to devise methods of cooking so none would be lost before the men got them in their stomachs. We've done that and we have schools reconstructing the cooks now and before long every cook will be onto the method. Then we check regularly to make sure there is no slackness. The situation is well in hand."

Other criticisms were offered but in every case we found the Army had found the weakness before us and had immediately taken steps to discover the remedy and put it into effect.

This attitude of our leaders has much to do with the reason why I can write that the Canadian soldier is the toughest, best trained and cockiest fighting man in Britain.

Plans In Progress For Convention Of Conservatives

OTTAWA, Oct. 14—(CP)—Spokesmen for the Conservative Party said here yesterday resolutions and suggestions emanating from study groups formed by constituency associations are expected to embrace such subjects as the war, economic questions, post-war reconstruction, labor relations and agricultural problems.

The local associations have been asked to set up study groups to formulate suggestions for the party's platform and gather opinions upon the form it should take, following a suggestion to this effect made by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, National Conservative leader.

The National Conservative convention on leadership and policy will be held at Winnipeg Dec. 9, 10 and 11, and officials here said constituency associations, on the recommendation of the national convention committee, are being urged to consider electing one woman and one young man as two of the three delegates they are entitled to send to the convention.

The deadline for the choosing of constituency delegates or delegates-at-large is Nov. 8.

Meanwhile, some 300 delegates ex-officio have been notified they are entitled to attend and vote at the convention.
