THE STORY OF A WOMAN'S TRANSFORMATION

By Marion Rubincam

VI FACES A PROBLEM
Chapter 6o

"Well, after that," Bud went on defensively, "I had to go out to parties with him. Lord, you can't take a man's money, and take tips on the market from him, and then chuck him."

'No, of course not," Vi said in soothing tones. But I knew from the expression in her eyes that her thoughts were not as calm as her voice.

"So we simply ran around a lot that's all," Bud said. "Of course I had money and Pete knew it, so I couldn't pretend I was too poor to go."

"If you'd said you wanted to save it——" Vi insinuated gently.

"And be laughed at! The way to get rich isn't to spend less, it's to make more," Bud said.

Pete had often said this it was his philosophy. It is one of the most dangerous philosophies I have ever heard It leads sometimes to greater effort and more work. but more often to a blind belief in the future, and to present extravagence.

"You might combine the two a little." Vi remarked—another of the prematurely wise thoughts that she so often these days, gave voice to.

"Well, anyway," Bud went on impatiently, "Pete and Toots and some other people and went around a lot. It was pretty lonesome anyway, Vi, with you and Aunt Enid away. A long hot evening in the city isn't much to look forward to at the end of a long hot day of work.

"Poor boy!" Vi was all sympathy. It was she now who reached forward over the table. She took Bud's hand and patted it gently.

"And Pete's fond of me, for some reason," Bud went on. "Besides, he was pretty lucky this summer. He had a thousand dollars when he got that tip on the mining stock and where I cleaned up 700, he cleaned up nearly $7.000. He bought a car, a peach, and almost every evening we'd pile in that and drive somewhere. It was cool and you don't know how nice after a hot day in town. Sundays we'd drive to the shore and swim—I taught Pete how."

"But why didn't you tell me?" Vi asked.

Dad, Mother, Ironized Yeast for Rheumatism

Do You Realize What Ironized Yeast-Vitamines Will Do for Rheumatism and Lumbago?

Do you know that vitamines and iron are part of your very life? Do you know that the tissue-and-blood factory in your body needs these two materials, and needs them badly? Do you know that if your body furnace does not get enough of these, that queer poisons, joint poisons, muscle poisons, acid poisons are formed instead of the healthy flesh and the rich blood you used to have in days gone by? If you hobble in your gait, if pains distort your body, if bending over is an unspeakable agony, if dull pains make you breathe heavily and moan, do not grumble at the roughness of the way,—smile sweetly, there is a rainbow ahead. Things are different now than they used to be, in the days of liniments, salves, complicated drugs, and all that,—remember? The happy secret today is ironized yeast, one of the greatest body-and-blood builders of all time. Begin taking Ironized Yeast today. Beware of imitations and substitutes, because Ironized Yeast is not a mere combination of yeast and iron, but is yeast ironized, which is a substance all by itself. There is only one Ironized Yeast in all the world. Sold at all drug stores at $1.00 a package and containing 60 tablets, each tablet sealed. They never lose their power. Harold F. Gouraud's Oriental Cream

"Whoopee! Rheumatism Pains and Agony All Gone. Ironized Yeast Is Surely Wonderful!"

"I meant to, as soon as you came back—and you see I'm telling you. I didn't honestly know that you already knew that I was going about with the gang."

Bud's tones were pleading. I knew that whatever he was working up to was forgiven in advance.

Bud was the sort of a man that every woman always forgives. No matter how grave his transgression he has that in his eyes—some sort of pleading look—that softens every woman's heart. He was a fine looking lad; I could not help but admire him as I looked at him. Even I would have forgiven him everything—except some hurt to my niece. His profile was excellent, the forehead high, and made apparently higher by the way his hair brushed straight back from it. His nose was irregular enough to be rather attractive, his chin was perhaps a little weak but well shaped. And his present thinness made him still more appealing.

"Anyway, we ran all over the country around here with Pete and the girls and some other fellows, all messengers for some of the Wall Street firms. That's all there was to it. We dined at roadhouses and danced there, but we never were out late. It was all pretty harmless—if it wasn't, at least it was harmless enough in comparison to most of those parties."

Bud was talking rapidly. He was evidently working up to the climax of his story and he dreaded it.

"Towards the latter part of the summer, Pete brought along a man named Simons, an awfully shrewd lawyer down in Wall St. He had a lot of money—oh gee, we did have some parties! I do wish you'd been along, you would have liked them in spite of your prejudices."

Vi frowned a little, but we waited for the rest of the tale.

"Anyway they cost a lot of money. I had to get a dress suit. that was more than a hundred—anything decent these days. And pumps to dance in, and a good looking suit for other times when we weren't so much dressed up. And then, of course, we men shared the expense of running the car, and one night he let me drive —I know how now—and I turned a wheel and paid to have it fixed. Anyway, the $700 didn't last long."

"You mean"—Vi said slowly—"that after you made $700 you spent it all—just on gasoline and repairs and $100 suits and silly roadhouse parties?"

"I mean it," Bud said, defiantly, and it didn't last so long either."

I knew what was in her mind. We had a few hundreds left ourselves, only a few, and on them we were to live half a year, Vi was to go to college and such clothes as we needed were to come from them too. Seven hundred meant many more months at college for her, hours and weeks in delightful studies, opening her mind, increasing her culture. It meant months in this inspiring enviroment of the city—and in a few weeks Bud had eaten and drunk and wasted it.

That was what the amount of money meant to her—and to him If we had had $700, to what uses would we not have put it?

"The worst is," Bud said, "that I found out how Pete got his first thousand to plunge. He took out some cash he was carrying to the bank, used it to plunge, and the next day paid it back—he fixed the bank book coming home to the office so the bookkeepers didn't know the difference, and next day he deposited the thousand dollars, but said he'd orgotten the book, and got a slip as a receipt. So it won't show—and it's honest, since it's paid back—but I'm afraid he'll do it again—or get caught—and I'll have to be a witness——"

His voice broke off miserably. We sat and stared at him in horror.

Tomorrow—New Associations

BRITISH INVENTORS WON

When aeroplanes crash they nearly always catch fire. This the Air Ministry decided, was due to the nature of their petrol tanks which up to now have been made of steel.

Prizes were therefore offered for designs of tanks which would make fires less likely. The competition, open to the world, has been won by British inventors, who took all the three prizes. Now the Air Ministry believe they have got types of tanks which will remove the danger of fire whether an aeropane falls or whether it is attacked in the air.

The result of this open competition proves that British ingenuity can hold its own with that of any other nation, so long as it gets a fair chance. Two of the prizes went to firms of manufacturers, the third was taken by a retired naval officer living in Surrey, England.

France Propooses Allied Control of German Finances

PARIS, Oct. 23.—Proposals by France for strict control of Germany's finances so far-reaching as to place that nation in the position of a virtual bankrupt have been presented to the reparation's commission by Louis Barthou, the new chairman of that commission. The French plan comprehends.

1, Germany's finances under Allied control.

2, A balanced German Budget.

3, German treasury forbidden to discount any bonds to the Reichsbank and required to place all internal loans under Allied control.

4, Abolition of the Reichsbanks autonomy and subjection to Allied control.

5, Prevention of the flight of capital from Germany.

6, Issue of treasury bonds association as circumstances permit, to reinforce the Reichsbank reserve and pay reparations not included in the budget.

7, Continuation of the 25 per cent. export tax.

Worthless Treasure

Banknotes have been hidden in all sorts of curious places. In this connection there is an amusing story told of two workmen in North London, who found a chest full of piles of brand new banknotes in the cellar of a house they were demolishing.

Their joy in their find was shortlived as it was proved that all the notes were imitations and were worth nothing at all. Later it transpired that they were the "throwouts" of a gang of forgers who had operated in that district during the war.

A DOG COLLAR BELT

Paris is producing all kinds of curious trimmings for the new tailleured dresses, which, worn with coquettishly short sacque coats, have taken the place of the coatfrock of yesterday. One of the most sensational trimmings takes the form of a belt made exactly like the dog collars worn by the most fasionable breeds of French bulldogs.

These are made of raspberry red suede and black patent leather, buckled and studded with brass, while the tops and bottoms are trimmed with a fringe of bristling badger hair. Incongruous as this appears, it is wonderful how smart an effect such a belt imparts. Other novelty belts are made of strips of slightly stiffened velour delain cloth, slotted at intervals, through which is threaded a bright cire taffeta ribbon smartly tied in a big bow and long ends that hang down one side of the skirt.

SEEKING HIS LOST MASTER

"Billy," Quebec's tramp dog, is still seeking his lost soldier master. When the boys came back on the "Empress of France" he and "Billy" became separated and "Billy" has been looking for him ever since. He meets the "Empress" each time she arrives at Quebec, sniffs at the passengers who come down the gangway, walks away with an air of disappointment and then waits for the next passenger ship. Everybody's friend but no man's dog for long, "Billy" has as many names as he has friends, answering with a wag of his tail to "Bum," "Tramp," "Bijou," "Rags," "Paddy," etc. Now and then an admirer takes "Billy" home, but in a few days the little wire-haired terrier is nobody's dog again—nobody's but the lost master's—and back on the docks once more to meet the ships and him.

How "Billy" knows when a passenger ship is due is a mystery of the Quebec water front, but know he does. He is as regular and prompt as the customs' men, greets the incoming steamer with joyous barking, and after he has bossed the job of placing the great hawsers which moor her alongside the pier, he dashes to the gangway and looks for a once familiar figure, khaki-clad. Perhaps some day the lost master will return. And if he does, faithful "Billy" will be there.
