Brief Sketch Of United Ch. Moderator

Rev. Dr. Richard Roberts, newly elected Moderator of the United Church, is an eminent preacher and author. He was elected over Rev. Donald C. MacGregor, St. Andrew's Church, London, Ont., who immediately moved that Dr. Roberts' election be made unanimous. Ballots cast totalled 253 and the Toronto minister received more than than the 127 necessary for election to the highest office of the church.

The election of the new moderator was held at the evening session and had been preceded by the retiring moderator's review of the two years since the last general council. In the afternoon the 300 commissioners participated in a service of holy communion conducted by Dr. Moore, assisted by Rev. H. L. Clarke, pastor of the Council Church.

Following his installation Dr. Roberts thanked the commissioners for the honor they had conferred on him. He confessed to a sense of pride at the confidence reposed in him but at the same time he felt "very humble."

Son of the Welsh manse, Dr. Roberts spoke feelingly of the influence his father and his wife brought to bear on his life. His three daughters, he said, had all married ministers, a tribute to the home their mother had provided for them.

Educated in Liverpool and at University of Wales, Dr. Roberts commenced pastoral work in the South Wales coal fields and later held three different charges in London.

Dr. Roberts has published numerous books and given lecture courses. He was married in 1902 to Miss Ann Catherine Thomas, of Anglesey.

Following the election of the moderator, Dr. G. J. Trueman, President of Mount Allison University, was elected chairman of the business committee.

Bears Rout Leafs 4-0

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire)

TORONTO, Sept. 13—Behind the three-hit pitching of Johnny Larocca, Newark Bears jumped into the play-off contention in their semi-final International League baseball series with Toronto Maple Leafs tonight by defeating the home forces 6-0 before a crowd of 7,500. Two of the blows secured off the Bear pitcher were scratchy, the only clout of any account coming in the eighth when Blakely doubled with one out.

Sheriff Blake who started for the Leafs gave up eight hits in his sojourn of eight frames and only in the fifth and eighth did the winners go hitless. Overcoming their failure to make hits count, the Bears were generally in command of the third contest. The victory left them trailing 2 to 1.

Suggests Province Should Have Own Trade Minister

At the Council Meeting of the Charlottetown Board of Trade, held on Wednesday evening the President, Mr. T. E. MacNutt, regretted that a larger number did not make it a point to attend the meetings, as they are open to the whole membership.

The President stated that much was heard these days as to what is the matter with the Maritimes. The question however, most closely touching the local Board is "What is the matter with Prince Edward Island?" He believed too much thought was given to party politics, and that Boards of Trade could do a great deal of good by giving expression to the ideal of a resolution adopted some years ago at a provincial convention of the Canadian Legion, which urged upon our people the necessity of looking at questions relating to the welfare of the province from a broader standpoint than the interests of any political party, and also at the same time expressed the view that it would lead to a better and purer political life in the Province if all government patronage was thrown open to the whole public.

There was need for Boards of Trade to first work in co-operation with farmers and other organizations for the increase of production in this Province before continually stressing increased transportation, as when production is increased the necessary transportation will follow as a matter of course.

Today, he said, our lobster factories and others are only working for two or three months. Cannot at least some of these plants be utilized the year round for the canning of our fruits and vegetables. Tons and tons of blueberries are picked and put in cold storage and shipped. Is it impossible that the Province which grows them cannot ship them as a finished product for the markets?

Years ago bricks were manufactured to a large extent in the Province. While it may be true that we have lost the art of making bricks, yet most of the old brick buildings in the province bear record as to the good quality of our soil for this purpose.

We lack co-operation in this Province in forwarding our industries, Mr. McNutt said, adding that Mr. Nelson Rattenbury was probably right when he said a year ago that we should have in this Province a Minister of Trade to take the leadership in such matters. The recent closing of the Broom Factory in Charlottetown is sad evidence of the necessity of closer co-operation and Provincial interest in these matters.

RESCUE SHIP

alleged failure to maintain the inexorable traditions of the sea created a sensation at the Department of Commerce inquiry.

"I no longer have any respect for the master," said Chief Officer James A. Henderson. "If he is not taken off that vessel, I'll ask to be relieved."

"Why did you not make any suggestion to the master", asked Dickerson N. Hoover, assistant director of the Bureau of Navigation and chief of the inquiry.

"I judged he was competent. After he lay there a while I judged he did a very poor job."

"Do you think it was an error of judgment?"

"Well, yes, Sir."

"And even if it was an error of judgment, you no longer wish to serve with him?"

Henderson replied that he wished to be relieved.

Third officer Harold Peterson, of San Mateo, Calif., replying to the same question, declared:

"There should have been no error of judgment."

Dwight Randall, first officer, and Jeremiah Smith, second officer, expressed the same opinions as their associates. Both disclosed they had sought transfers from Captain Carey's staff.

William Francis Price of Brooklyn, whose wife died in the disaster, painted a vivid picture of panic and disorder aboard the vessel after the fire was discovered.

"Why don't you jump?—Why don't you jump?" members of the crew were shouting. Price declared a lifeboat refused to aid his wife after she had been lowered into the water.

A crew member was standing on the rail, about to jump, he testified. "I pulled a gun and told him: 'You're a dead man if you jump.'"

Price added the man heeded his order.

Captain Carey's testimony opened the fourth day of the hearing. He testified the President Cleveland's lifeboats were not lowered until 48 minutes after she reached the side of the stricken Morro Castle.

"We got them out as soon as we could," the Captain declared. "The City of Savannah was on the scene and the Monarch of Bermuda was steaming in as we reached the Morro Castle. Both vessels were closer than we were. The Monarch was between us and the Morro Castle. We did everything humanly possible but we got there too late."

Sidney F. Curtis of Oakland, Calif., seaman aboard the President Cleveland, told the investigators his vessel's lifeboat crews made no efforts to board the Morro Castle and failed to offer assistance to several persons who could be seen on her flaming decks.

Customs officials disclosed during the day that a suspicious fire had been discovered in the Grace Liner Santa Barbara last Tuesday. Although declining to say that the blaze was incendiary, officials had referred the matter to the Department of Justice for investigation.

There was "never any trouble" among crew members before the fire, said Robert Beresford, a seaman on the Morro Castle.

Beresford, who remained with the ship until taken off by a coast guard cutter late Saturday, related a conversation aboard this ship with George Alagna, second radio operator.

The seaman quoted Alagna as saying something about "fixing the mates and that he would see us later," just before the cutter Tampa reached New York.

SEES BUSINESS IMPROVEMENT

An upward tendency in business generally throughout the country as indicated by his own business is reported by Mr. J. R. Hyland of New York, the United States Manager of the Western Union Telegraph Company, who is in Charlottetown accompanying Mr. A. Swinton of Toronto, General Commercial Supervisor and G. H. Whitney of Moncton, Inspector of the Canadian National Telegraphs. They are making an inspection of the Canadian National Telegraph and Cable offices in the Maritime Provinces and from here go to Halifax and St. John.

Speaking of the development of cable communication, Mr. Hyland stated that cable capacity by means of the new metal alloy "permalloy" has been increased eight times.

Canada plays an important part in the structure of these new cables in that nickel is the dominant metal, the production of which Canada controls, supplying about ninety percent of the total world's production.

The growing interest in Canada's development on the part of the Mother Country is reflected in the increase in cable communication.

This has developed to such an extent that the Canadian National Telegraphs have established direct cable service between Montreal and Toronto and London, Eng., the first time in history that this has been the case. This service was inaugurated on August 1st.

A unique part of this cable service is that one of the cables is the original one which was laid in 1866 and terminated in Canada at Carleton Head, P. E. I. From there it went across the Strait of Northumberland by the first cable laid in North America in 1852 to Cape Tormentine, N. B., and from there continued on to Canadian centres and to New York.

This is Mr. Hyland's first visit to Prince Edward Island, and like many other visitors he is most favourably impressed with this prvince, the red soil of which reminds him of Sao Palo in Brazil.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND SYNOD IN SESSION

Vancouver, to retain the diocesan method was passed in both the Upper House of Bishops and the Lower House of Clergy and Laymen.

The decision to retain the three boards was made on the resolution of Rev. Canon J. K. Irwin, Regina.

A prolonged discussion preceded the vote on the two propcsals and varying views were heard.

The synod should be careful, said Rt. Rev. J. A. Richardson, Bishop of Fredericton, not to foster any impression that the church was becoming too much centralized. In the regions away from central Canada, the effect of representation by provinces would be discouraging.

FISHING SEASONS FOR LOBSTERS

Subject Dealt With In Informative Bulletin of Biological Board.

"Spring, Summer and Fall Lobster Fishing in the southern part of the Gulf of St. Lawrence", is the subject of a bulletin by W. Templeman, of McGill University, recently issued by the Biological Board of Canada, which should prove of interest and value to those engaged in the industry in this Province.

Previous to 1874, it is pointed out, there were no laws imposing close seasons for lobster fishing on any part of the Canadian coast. In 1874 the months of July and August were established as a close season, and in 1876 the close season was changed to July 10 to August 20. In 1877 sectional close seasons were introduced, August 1 to 31 for Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, and August 20 to September 15 for Quebec and the northern coast of New Brunswick. In 1879 close seasons were changed to April 1 to August 1 for the western coast of Nova Scotia, and April 20 to August 20 for Quebec, Prince Edward Island and the northern coast of New Brunswick. In 1887, close seasons for districts north of Cape Canso were changed to July 15 to December 31. A complete rearrangement of close seasons was carried out by an Order-in-Council on December 7, 1899. New close seasons established in the Gulf were — Inverness County to Gaspe, with the exception of western Northumberland Strait, July 11 to April 19; western Northumberland Strait, August 11 to May 24. These seasons were continued with only minor changes until 1919, when by an Order-in-Council of September 30, 1918, the lobster fishing seasons in most of the southern gulf area were essentially reduced to May and June. In 1919 also the open season in western Northumberland Strait was changed to August 16 to October 15. The 1919 open seasons in the southern gulf have been continued with only minor changes until the present.

The largest catches are in late May and early June, with the exception of the warm Malpeque Bay, P. E. I. area, where the water is warm enough to allow moulting so early in June as to cause a rise in the lobster catch during the last part of June.

Discussing the advantages of various seasons, the bulletin concludes:

"There are no arguments in favour of a summer season since at this time lobsters caught in the spring and retained in pounds in cold water areas such as at Grand Manan can supply the market with hard shelled live lobsters. The spring season, May and June, is satisfactory from every point of view, e. g., condition of shell, amount of meat per pound of live lobster, and quantity of lobsters caught. The cool weather and hard shell are very favourable for retaining and shipping live lobsters. In the canning business the catch is small at first and the largest catches do not come for several weeks, by which time the cannery is running more efficiently. In the fall season, August 16 to October 15, the cannery is called upon to handle immense quantities of lobsters in poor condition, during hot weather, at the very beginning of the season when the staff is not yet very efficient. Tremendous losses of lobsters are frequent, due largely to overcrowding in warm water by the large catches at the beginning of the season. Shipping of live lobsters is difficult and there is little meat in the claws. Making the season open on September 1 instead of August 16 would make the general shell condition very little better expect in the deep water areas with a great proportion of large lobsters.

"In many of the warm water areas of the southern Gulf a second moulting among the smaller lobsters in late August and early September produces another body of soft shelled lobsters. Opening the season on September 1, however, would have the advantage of lessening the catches during the first week of the season since in early September many of the small lobsters are preparing for moulting, and the larger lobsters which only moult once would be harder shelled and less hungry than in August. Water and air conditions would also be considerably colder and thus more favourable in early September. It is difficult, however, to make the fall season much later than at present since the storms of late fall with destruction of gear in shallow water renders this period unsuitable for fishing in the southern gulf.

"From the above we must conclude that even in western Northumberland Strait, a region where large quantities of soft shelled lobsters have been caught for nearly thirty-five years, most of the lobster buyers, even though on the average possessing better equipment than in any other part of the southern gulf, are as yet unable to cope successfully with the difficulties of the August 16 to October 15 season.

"It may be judged necessary to impose a fall season on some other part of the coast in order to relieve the glut in the live lobster market during the spring season. Such a fall season should certainly not be imposed on a region where most of the lobsters are canned, and any change in long established seasons should be preceded by a thorough investigation of the moulting periods in the particular area under discussion."

ready, if needed, to take a hand in the situation.

Despite the urgency of his plea, however, the Democratic caucus, which controls the lower house of the assembly, tabled his request for permission to call in the Federal troops, but did not approve of two bills—one to give him power to close the mills in time of emergency and another to appropriate $100,000 for an emergency increase in the state police forces.

The governor's decision to lay his cards before the assembly was reached early today after lawlessness had gripped Woonsocket, populous textile centre a few miles north of here.

One Killed

A shouting jeering mob of hoodlums had swept everything before it until the hard-pressed National Guardsmen and badly pummelled police, having exhausted their supply of tear gas, fired upon it, killed one youth and wounding six others. Scores of others were roughly handled. Store windows were smashed, automobiles overturned and street lights extinguished.

The governor's message, which was not read to the legislature, because, attaches explained, the legislators already knew in a general way the desires of their chief executive, hit hard at communistic agitators as he likened the bloody riots which for four days have swept Saylesville and Woonsocket to the longshoremen's strike in San Francisco.

"We are face to face," the message said, "not with a textile strike but with a communist uprising.

"The strike here in this highly industrialized state gave an opportunity on the Atlantic coast, following that of the longshoremen's strike in San Francisco on the Pacific Coast.

In each case the communists took advantage of the situation, we must put them down here as they were put down there."

The governor's announcement of his plan to seek Federal intervention earlier in the day had brought from George H. Dern, Secretary of War, the assurance that 2,000 Federal troops could be rushed into Rhode Island, if necessary.

Immediately afterward word came from Fort Devens at Ayer, Mass., that the 500 regular army troops on duty there had suddenly been recalled from manoeuvres and from Portland, Me., that troops of the 4th U. S. Infantry at Fort Williams were being recalled from New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine, where they have been engaged in field practice.

In both cases commanding officers said the troops would be held to await orders.

FINE SHOWING

ority provisions. "When she acquired her territories," the Canadian Press was told by one authority, "Poland accepted certain obligations in regard to minorities. She cannot break a treaty by unilateral declaration. We want to know what she intends to do."

Displeased

French and British circles in particular were displeased and their spokesmen said the Polish announcement struck at the very basis of the Versailles Treaty. Both Sir John Simon and Louis Barthou, heads of the British and French Foreign Offices, will speak from the League rostrum tomorrow, it was expected, and Baron Pompeo Aloisi of the Italian delegation may also intervene.

A German spokesman said that Poland's move ment the status quo set up at Versailles has been modified and treaties are no longer valid. This spokesman insisted that countries which came into existence or expanded with the peace treaties did so distinctly on the understanding they would accept minority obligations.

The German remarks fully bore out the anxiety in other delegations that Poland's announcement would considerably bolster the revisionists.

Various committees met but the session of the assembly itself was very brief. Unless some speakers come forward indeed there may be no further general discussion.

Confined to Hotel

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett remained in his hotel, nursing the cold he acquired on the trip over, and it was said possible the Prime Minister would not speak in the general debate.

With the question of Russia's entry still hanging fire Beck's speech left the delegates somewhat uneasy. The council undoubtedly will consider the matter which some delegates called a dangerous blow to the sanctity of treaties.

Beck spoke of Poland's efforts to secure a generalized system of international guarantees for protection of minority rights but nothing had been achieved, he said. He added curtly, "pending the bringing into force of a general uniform system for the protection of minorities, my government finds itself compelled as from today to refuse to collaborate with international organizations in the supervision of the application by Poland of the system of minority protection."

The largest minority in Poland is German, and Beck later explained the Polish-German minority treaty, a bilateral instrument, was not included in his denunciation. He also affirmed pledges of protection of minorities in Poland but made plain Poland is to be the judge.
