A withering and unrelenting Abbie attack throughout the entire six minutes of hockey with Wolverines last night failed to produce more than one goal and at the same time the counter did not take anything away from the Halifax clan, who tied the chucker up early in the second period, thereby retaining their six goal lead realized in the first game with Abbies in the blue-rose Forum last Wednesday night. On the round, Wolverines defeated the Red Shirts 12-to-6. Had the series been on the "every game a match basis," both teams would have been forced into an overtime last night—and no telling what the result would have been. The series is over and the most we can say is—congratulations Wolverines, and may the best team win the Maritime championship.
