Rangers Lose 4-3 To Chicago Black Hawks

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 — (AP) — New York Rangers lost their first home game of the National Hockey League season to Chicago Black Hawks 4-3 Saturday night but, except for that slight hitch in the proceedings, the comeback of Frank Boucher was a howling success.

The sell out crowd of 15,857 fans, many of whom had not seen the 41 year old veteran Ranger coach play before his retirement, didn't give him as big a hand as they did Bryan Hextall during the pre-game introductions. Once Boucher got into action, however, the din was terrific.

Back in his old centre ice position with a pair of wings who were babies when Frank's pro hockey career began, Billy Gooden and Jack McDonald. Boucher scored one goal, set up another with a clever pass, gave the first demonstration of hook checking garden fans have seen in several seasons and spent as much time on the ice as any of the younger players.
