PARALYSIS CURABLE.
Stricken ones to be seen Everywhere—This Form of Living Death cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

The most startling example of human helplessness is the paralytic. The victim excites your commiseration, but resists your pity.
He of the palsied hand stiffly pressing the beruffled side is to be seen everywhere we go.
The most convincing proof that this pitiable condition is the outcome of kidney disease is the fact that Dodd's Kidney Pills cure it.
Not generally recognized as a kidney disease, it succumbs to kidney treatment. Did you ever know of a cure? Just think a moment!
If you do it must have been the work of Dodd's Kidney Pills, for no other medicine ever yet cured.

ANNUAL REPORT

Of the Experimental Farm at Ottawa.

DR. SAUNDERS DIRECTOR

The Sound Principals on Which the Farm is Conducted Highly Indorsed.

The thirteenth annual report of the five Dominion Experimental Farms has been issued. It embraces nearly 450 pages, giving details and results of much useful work. Dr. Wm. Saunders, the Director, who from year to year visits nearly all quarters of Canada, points out that the position of the farmers in the community, and the intelligence and success with which he carries on his work, are steadily improving, while the farm home is becoming more attractive, and the family surrounded with great comforts. The Director goes on to the state that "the farmer now seldom sells coarse grains from his farm, but converts these, by feeding, into concentrated animal products, and thus retains the elements of fertility which these crops have taken from the land and restores them to the soil in the manure. He thus supplies for future crops much plant food in a readily available form." This is a sound principle on which to anchor, and we are glad to note in connection with the Experimental Farm system, as indicated by this report, an increasing attention being paid to livestock husbandry and the growing of crops for that purpose. Too much attention cannot be paid to the question of the economical production of meat and milk of good quality by determining the best types of animals for the purpose, the use of the most suitable foods and methods of feeding. Look, for instance, at the effort of the Agriculturist, Mr. Grisdale, to ascertain the exact returns and cost of keeping the dairy herd at the Central Experimental Farm (where the modest net profit of $10 per cow is shown), or the extended details which Mr. Robertson, Superintendent of the branch farm at Nappan, gives of a similar trial with the herd of dairy cows under his charge, and for further particulars of which we would refer the readers to our dairy department. It should make the average dairyman stop and think about what his own cows are doing or are not doing to see that some of these cows at Nappan yielded a net profit of $27.83 in the year, while others fall as low as $2.68. The latter cow, too, gave nearly 5,000 pounds of milk, which would probably put her away above the average Ontario factory cow, judged by some Bureau of Industry returns once published, so that there is little doubt that many cows are making their owners poorer, but who seem to cling to them with deathlike tenacity. Why not weed out these unprofitable bovine servants?
The experiments in early, late and medium sowing, reported by the Director have been conducted long enough to show the advantage of sowing all the crops, if possible, on the farm within ten days after the ground—prepared by fall plowing—is ready for seeding. It might have been further pointed out that want of tile drainage is responsible for a good deal of late seeding and lessened yield.
Remarkable results are reported from plowing down green clover. The average increase in grain after the plowing under of green clover was, for the first year, when oats were used, 11 bushels 1 pound per acre, and in 1899, when these same plots were sown with barley, the average increase was 8 bushels 31 pounds per acre. An increase of 28 per cent. in the potato crop, where clover had been plowed down, was also shown.
The fertilizer plot experiments, which have been going on for ten or eleven years, disclosed incidentally that soil to which no barnyard manure was applied became greatly depleted of humus and power to hold moisture, and its conditions favorable to plant growth were very much lessened. With wheat, barley, oats, corn, mangels and turnips the results were obtained from barnyard manure, as compared with various artificial, and furthermore, fresh manure gave equally good—in fact, better—results, ton for ton—the latter being the case in most instances—than when well rotted.
These farms have done, perhaps, their very best work in encouraging tree-planting. During the comparatively brief period of twelve years since the Experimental Farms were founded, these useful institutions have laid the foundation for a great advancement in tree-growing in Canada in the near future. There are now growing on the five Experimental Farms a grand total of about 245,000 trees. There has also been sent out from these farms during the period mentioned to individual lovers of trees, in small lots of about 100 each, 1,261,000 (more than one and one quarter millions) young forest trees and

HASZARD & MOORE,

DEWEY OUT OF POLITICS

Says He Won't Even Vote This Year.

SOME TRAGIC RUMORS CAN HELP CLEVELAND

But This Being Impossible, He Wants Nothing to Do With the Contest.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—"I am out of politics; I am out of politics for good," said Admiral Dewey to-day.
"I have tried it, and now that I am out of it, I feel happy."

ADMIRAL DEWEY

"He is frank enough to admit that he knows nothing of politics.
The Admiral will not go to Kansas City, and he does not intend to vote.

"I would have voted for Cleveland," he said, "but it is impossible to muster a corporal's guard of Democrats in Vermont, so I knew it would be no good. I will not vote this Fall.
The Admiral will leave for Newport on the 25th to attend the meeting of the Naval Campaign Board.

The Admiral says he hesitated several weeks before becoming a candidate for the Presidency, and would not have been a candidate, had not a number of the party leaders insisted upon the use of his name. He will not be a candidate for second place on the ticket with Bryan, even though that suggestion has been made by the same Democrats.
In getting out of the race the Admiral does not seem able to conceal his disappointment. He had this to say of politics: "In these days the people do not select the President. The choice is now made by a few political leaders who put their heads together and fix up their slates before the convention assemblies."
Admiral Dewey is very much delighted, however, over the ovations tendered him in so many of the American cities since his return from Manila. He declares that such manifestations are more to him than any officer, and he will ever be grateful to his countrymen for their treatment.
